DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled :

In compliance with the law the following report of the business of the Department of Justice during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, together with statistics of crime against the United States, and a statement of the appropriations under the control of the Attorney-General, is respectfully submitted.

BUSINESS OF THE SUPREME COURT.

The condition of the docket of the Supreme Court of the United States at the close of the last term (October term, 1885), when compared with its condition at the close of the term next preceding (October term, 1884), exhibits an increase of 49 cases in the number left undisposed of on the two dockets, the appellate and the original.

At the close of the October term, 1884, there remained undisposed of on the appellate docket 851 cases, and on the original docket 4. The number of cases docketed at the October term, 1885, was 493, of which 489 were on the appellate and 4 on the original docket, making the total number of cases on the docket at that term 1,348, of which 1,340 were on the appellate and 8 on the original docket. Of this number 444 were disposed of, and of these 440 were on the appellate and 4 on the original docket.

The number of cases actually brought under consideration was 298, of which 193 were argued orally and 105 submitted on printed arguments.

Of the 440 cases on the appellate docket disposed of, 179 were affirmed, 94 reversed, 60 dismissed, 93 settled and dismissed by agreement of parties, 11 docketed and dismissed pursuant to rule 9, and in 3 cases questions certified to the court were answered.

The number of cases decided at this term (October term, 1885) in which the United States were concerned was 49, of which 29 were decided in favor of and 17 against the United States, and in 3 criminal cases questions certified were answered.

Of those in which the United States appealed, 12 were affirmed, 2 reversed, and 1 dismissed. Fifteen of the cases were appeals from the Court of Claims, in 14 of which the judgment was affirmed and 1 was dismissed. Besides the cases in which the United States were concerned that were decided, there were 8 others which were dismissed by the court, and of these 5 were dismissed at the instance of the United States, 2 at the instance of the other side, and 1 was docketed and dismissed.

Thus the total number of cases disposed of at the October term, 1885, in which the United States were interested was 57.

The above does not include one case on the appellate docket from the Court of Claims in which the District of Columbia was a party.

BUSINESS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

Since the last report 634 suits, claiming upward of $3,500,000, have been brought under the ordinary jurisdiction of the court. The total number of such cases now pending is 691, claiming upward of $25,000,000.

Under the act of March 3, 1883, known as the "Bowman" act, committees of the Senate and House of Representatives have transmitted to the court, to date, 1,238 cases. The amount claimed cannot be accurately stated, but involves a very large sum.

During the last term 84 of these cases, amounting to upward of $764,000, were acted on by the court and reported to Congress. Of this number 41 cases, aggregating about $362,000, were dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

There are now pending 1,140 cases, involving, in so far as can be ascertained from the petitions and other papers received, upward of $30,000,000.

Under the same act, there have been transmitted 28 claims by heads of Departments, amounting in the aggregate to upward of $4,000,000. Of this number 18 cases, aggregating about $450,000, have been acted on by the court and reported to the heads of Departments. One case was transferred to the general docket. Nine cases, claiming about $1,500,000, are now pending.

Under the act of January 20, 1885, known as the "French spoliations" act, there have been filed to date 2,150 cases, amounting to about $12,000,000. It is thought that there will be about 500 more, making a total of about 2,600 cases and aggregating upward of $15,000,000.

The following is a summary of the business of the last term :

CLAIMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

There were brought to trial 425 suits, claiming $17,706,427.75. In 19 of these, claiming $504,115.98, judgment was for defendants. In 394 suits, claiming $16,996,553.99, judgment was for claimants for $967,588.81. Twelve suits, claiming $205,733.48, were dismissed on motion for want of jurisdiction, or prosecution, or by consent.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Of these there were brought to trial six suits, claiming $147,346.96. Two were remanded for further argument. In one the judgment was vacated and set aside. One remains under advisement, and in two cases, claiming $18,400.71, judgments were rendered in favor of claimants for $3,342.90. Two cases, aggregating $52,373.89, were reinstated on claimants' motion. There are now pending 42 cases, claiming upward of $1,773,000.

Some of these are awaiting test cases in the Supreme Court. Others, involving intricate and complicated questions of law and fact, and requiring much labor and time in their examination, are now in course of preparation for submission to the court.

EXHIBITS ACCOMPANYING THIS REPORT.

Exhibit A is a statement of the civil suits to which the United States was a party, terminated in the circuit and district courts of the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, and of such suits pending in said courts July 1, 1886, as reported by the district attorneys.

During the last fiscal year 1,379 civil suits were terminated. In 697 of these judgments were for the United States; in 111 for the defendants, and 547 were either nol. pros., dismissed, or discontinued; 14 were appealed from the district to the circuit court, and 10 from the circuit to the Supreme Court. In many of the prosecutions under the internal-revenue laws entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed, a compromise and settlement were made in the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department.

There were pending 5,593 criminal prosecutions, viz, 77 for violation of customs laws, 2,110 for violation of internal-revenue laws, 334 for violation of post-office laws, 39 for violation of election laws, 11 for naturalization laws, 88 under intercourse laws, 182 under pension laws, 51 embezzlement, 2,701 miscellaneous prosecutions.

UNITED STATES PRISONERS.

The usual inspections of the penitentiaries where United States prisoners are confined, and personal interviews with the prisoners themselves, have extended during the past year to almost every institution used by the Government. Everything has been done looking to the comfort of the prisoners, their treatment while in confinement, and the discipline of the institutions in which they have been incarcerated. Suggestions from the Department have been promptly heeded by the several wardens and superintendents when any corrections were deemed proper.

During the past year the Department has been somewhat inconvenienced with respect to the support of Government prisoners, but has made every effort to secure the most economical and advantageous terms possible. Still, in the year to come, by reason of the abolishment of the contract system in several States, the cost for the support of prisoners must be considerably in excess of that heretofore paid. It has been the policy of the Department to ask no institution to keep the Government prisoners at a loss, and when it has been found that the labor of the convicts would not compensate the institutions for their support and maintenance, a reasonable allowance has necessarily been made. In my report of last year, in relation to this subject, I said :

The Attorney-General is authorized to provide for the care and subsistence of United States prisoners. He is compelled in States where there are no suitable penitentiaries to make arrangements for the care and maintenance of United States prisoners convicted in those States in penitentiaries of other Commonwealths. This has been done, and the Government prisoners are confined, for the most part, in State and municipal institutions. Over these the Department has no direct control. It has, however, control in an indirect way, in that yearly examinations, as far as possible, are made of the different penitentiaries throughout the country, and the United States convicts are separately interviewed and permitted to make known their wants and to state complaints, which always receive due consideration.

When the periodical examinations are made, such complaints as seem meritorious are called to the attention of the prison officials, who are ready to comply with the suggestions of the officers of the Department. Most of these State institutions are well conducted, and when it becomes necessary to select a prison for the confinement of United States convicts outside of the district in which they were convicted, pains have been taken to select the best. In the event of uniform bad treatment the Attorney-General has recourse to changing the place of confinement. In this the expense of removing all the prisoners has to be paid by the Government. And even this power to transfer from one prison to another has restrictions which sometimes render it inadequate to meet the case.

The subject of convict labor is now receiving the attention of the people and of the legislatures of the several States. Ultimately it may affect the arrangements now existing, in which event the cost of supporting prisoners would be advanced to its former large proportions, and might exceed the cost of erecting and maintaining a Government penitentiary. Still, the cost is not the only item to be considered in looking at this question, and I believe, if at all practicable, a penitentiary should be built by the Government for its prisoners, which should be a model institution and conducted on the most humane principles.

United States prisoners, as a rule, are of a better class of men than the ordinary convict, and capable of performing better work. It is undoubtedly an admitted fact that no institution of the kind referred to can be properly carried on unless there is some work which the prisoners can perform. If a Government prison should be erected the convicts could be employed in the manufacture of supplies exclusively for the Government. This would keep them employed, and should go a long way toward making the institution self-sustaining. It would also avoid any objection on the grounds of convict labor, while the tax-payers would be relieved of the burden of supporting Government prisoners.

GOVERNMENT PENITENTIARY AND REFORMATORY.

The need of a Government penitentiary becomes more apparent each year. Apart from the fact that the United States should have a model penal institution of its own, where persons convicted of violations of the United States laws could be confined, the necessity for securing accommodations for the convicts, in view of the agitation of questions touching the contract system of prison labor, and other causes, will soon become imperative. I cannot therefore but earnestly suggest to Congress the advisability of building a Government penitentiary, and, if possible, also a Government reformatory, where first offenders and young convicts may be confined, and I renew the recommendations made in my previous report, and most earnestly urge that some action be taken upon this matter.

There was submitted at the last session of Congress a bill (H. R. 8211) providing for the appointment of a commission, one member of which is to be an officer of the Department of Justice, to carefully inquire into this matter and submit plans for a new penitentiary and reformatory, and recommendations as to changes in the law relative to criminals which appeared necessary. This bill met with my hearty approval. I trust that at the present session of Congress this matter may receive careful attention and that some measure may be provided for the building of a Government penitentiary and reformatory at an early day.

I would also repeat that portion of my report of last year relative to the confinement of those prisoners who are not professional criminals, and urge upon Congress the importance of a law granting to the United States judges the power therein referred to. If provision is made for the building of a Government reformatory, in addition to a Government penitentiary, this law would still be necessary. The report is as follows:

Many of the United States prisoners are not professional criminals, and it does not seem just to send young men of intelligence, who have committed perhaps their first offense, to penal institutions which are in no sense reformatories. It would be desirable to have such persons sentenced to those institutions which are carried on solely to reform those intrusted to their care, and, as is the practice in some States, notably New York, the plan of sentencing these men for indeterminate sentences, to be lengthened or shortened by their own conduct, seems to me a good one. As the law now stands, the United States judges cannot impose sentences of this character, and hence the Government cannot avail itself of the use of these institutions.

I therefore respectfully repeat the recommendation of my predecessor that authority be given the judges of the United States courts to sentence, in their discretion, prisoners convicted of first offenses to such reformatories or graded prisons as may be selected by the Attorney-General, upon the terms and conditions which govern those institutions, in the case of prisoners convicted under the laws of the place in which the institution is located, and this is especially desirable in the case of juvenile offenders. Of the latter class, the number convicted in the United States courts is small, and it would not, perhaps, be advisable to contemplate the building of an institution especially for their confinement. At present, arrangements have been entered into with several of the best institutions of this character, to which juvenile offenders against the laws of the United States may be sentenced.

JAILS.

I also repeat herewith the statement made in my previous report concerning those persons who are awaiting trial, or sentenced and undergoing short terms of imprisonment, who are confined in the various jails throughout the country:

These prisoners are directly under the custody of the United States marshals. Efforts have been made, as far as possible, to secure the proper treatment of this class of persons, and economical arrangements have been entered into for their maintenance and medical treatment, by which the expense of their support has been reduced. It is almost unnecessary to state, however, that the average county jail is a poor place for the confinement of any one, much less the confinement of persons who have committed their first offense. The system of discipline existing in most of the jails is exceedingly lax; the prisoners mingle together, the hardened criminal with the first offender, and those who have taken but their first step in crime, while here learn the other steps which make them in future, perhaps, hardened criminals.

I am of the opinion that the several States should take this matter in hand and improve the condition of these institutions. It may be well for Congress to consider the question of building United States jails at each place throughout the country where a United States court is held, and where, at some seasons of the year, a number of persons would be confined. Of course, in some of the States the necessity for institutions of this character would be readily apparent.

During the past year the question of jails has been carefully considered by the Department, and as far as possible everything has been done to better the condition of persons confined in these institutions, yet but little success can be expected while the present system is in use. Many of the buildings are poorly ventilated and in every way improper places for the confinement of prisoners, yet the use of these jails by the Government is unavoidable. The attention of the marshals has been called to the careless manner in which many of these institutions are conducted, and they have been directed to see to it, as far as lay in their power, that the United States prisoners are treated humanely and properly cared for.

There are several places in the United States, notably at Atlanta, Georgia, and Louisville, Ky., where the number of prisoners is at times very large, and the propriety of building a Government jail at each of these points has occurred to me.

The average number of prisoners held awaiting trial or serving sentence in the northern district of Georgia is nearly always in excess of one hundred. The jail of Fulton County has been used by the Government, the United States paying a stated compensation per day for the subsistence of all United States prisoners confined there, and the sheriff has done everything in his power to accommodate and properly care for the large number committed to his custody. Any suggestions or recommendations made by the Department or its officers have been kindly received and promptly acted upon by him; still the accommodations of the jail proper are not large enough for all that are likely to be confined therein. Temporary accommodations, however, have been made by the sheriff in connection with the jail, so that the number committed may be kept. It has been represented to me by agents of the Department who have visited Atlanta that there is great need of a Government jail at this place.

The state of affairs that exists at Atlanta, Ga., is also found, to a large degree, at Louisville, Ky. In both places the majority of prisoners are committed for violations of revenue laws, and the number is about alike in each.

I would therefore respectfully invite the attention of Congress to this subject, and suggest that the question as to the advisability and necessity of building a jail at each of the cities referred to, for the confinement of Government prisoners, may receive careful consideration.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARIES AND JAILS.

The Government has under its control six penitentiaries and three jails, situated as follows:

United States penitentiaries.—Sioux Falls, Dak.; Boise City, Idaho; Deer Lodge, Mont.; Salt Lake City, Utah; McNeil's Island, Wash.; and Laramie, Wyo.

United States jails.—Sitka, Alaska; Fort Smith, Ark.; and Washington, D. C.

Congress recently appropriated $25,000 for completion and repairs of the penitentiary at Laramie, Wyo.; $25,000 for completion of the penitentiary at Deer Lodge, Mont., and $50,000 for construction and completion of the penitentiary at Salt Lake City, Utah. The improvements at Deer Lodge have been completed; at the two other penitentiaries the contemplated changes have not as yet been made. These institutions are small and are used almost solely for the confinement of prisoners who have violated the laws of the United States in the several Territories named. The penitentiary at Sioux Falls, Dak., has recently been finished and fitted up for the reception of prisoners. None were confined therein during the past fiscal year.

The need of a jail at Fort Smith, Ark., has been recognized by Congress, and the appropriation which was made at the last session for building a new one at that place is being used.

STATISTICS.

During the past year, as stated above, the usual examinations of the several penitentiaries where United States prisoners were confined have been made, and it is gratifying to learn that the prisoners of the Government are so well cared for and treated.

During the year ending June 30, 1886, there were received in the different penitentiaries, reformatories, &c., throughout the United States 1,027 United States prisoners. There were discharged during the same period 779. (Among those discharged are included 2 who died, 1 sent to the insane asylum at Auburn, N. Y., and 1 escaped.) The total number in custody on the 30th day of June, 1886, was 1,261. There were committed for revenue offenses, 246; for counterfeiting and violation of the postal laws, 503; for other offenses, 639. Of the 1,261 in custody June 30, 1886, there were 1,035 born in the United States; 226 foreign born; 932 white males; 314 colored males (of the latter 48 were Indians and 1 Chinese); 6 white females; 9 colored females; 125 under twenty years of age; 468 between twenty and thirty; 343 between thirty and forty ; 207 between forty and fifty ; and 118 over fifty years of age. There were 612 married ; 649 single. Of the total number in custody June 30, 1886 (1,261), there were but 63 disabled or sick (of the latter 17 were insane). The number of those working was 1,067 and the number idle 131.

Attached to my report (Exhibit M 1) is a detailed statement giving the names of the penitentiaries used by the Government during the past year, their location, the name of the warden, the districts from which United States prisoners have been received during the past year, and detailed statistics of each institution such as are referred to in the above general summary.

It will be noticed that a large number, to wit, 593 of the United States prisoners, are under 30 years of age. This fact should be taken into account in connection with the recommendation concerning the need of a Government reformatory.

The number of prisoners in the county jails, of course, varies from day to day, being larger at or near the time when the courts are in session.

The number received during the past year was 10,646, and there were discharged 10,353. The number in custody on the 30th of June was 782. During the year there were committed for revenue offenses 4,668 ; for counterfeiting and violations of the postal laws, 1,083 ; for other offenses, 4,341. The number serving sentence was 2,952 ; the number held awaiting trial, 2,536 ; held pending examination, 1,498. There were 4,997 white males, 165 white females, 2,488 colored males, and 341 colored females. There were 1,475 married and 1,475 single.

Exhibit N, attached to this report, is a detailed statement, as near correct as is possible to obtain, showing the jails which have been used during the past year, the location of the same, the name of the sheriff or jailor, and detailed statistics such as are summarized above with regard to each institution.

REPORT OF THE SOLICITOR OF THE TREASURY.

In submitting the report of the Solicitor of the Treasury (Exhibit K), I commend its many excellent suggestions to the careful consideration of Congress, most of which were contained in his last annual report. The matter of relief touching revenue cases in the southern district of New York cannot receive attention any too soon, for the condition of this class of litigation in that district is anything but satisfactory.

GRAND AND TRIAL JURIES IN THE TERRITORIES.

A letter from Judge Barnes, of the supreme court of the Territory of Arizona, upon the subject of the method of summoning grand and trial juries in the Territorial district courts in cases where the United States is a party, accompanies this report as Exhibit S. The subject of this letter is of importance, and I call the attention of Congress to it for such legislation as may seem necessary.

SURETIES ON THE BOND OF D. B. BONFOY, LATE COLLECTOR OF THE FOURTH DISTRICT OF TEXAS.

I submit, as Exhibit T, a letter from the attorney of the United States for the eastern district of Texas, and from an examiner of this Department, in relation to certain proceedings against the sureties on the bond of D. B. Bonfoy, late collector of the fourth district of Texas, a matter outside of the authority of this Department, and upon which, I think, Congress should take immediate action.

RECORDS OF UNITED STATES COURTS.

The attention of Congress is called to the necessity for some legislation supplementary to sections 899 to 904, Revised Statutes, and to the act of January 31, 1879 (20th Stats. at Large, pages 277 and 278), sections 2 and 3, respecting the restoration of court records.

This legislation refers to records "lost or destroyed" relating to any cost or matter in which the United States was a party in any court, or that may be lost or destroyed.

The condition of the records of several United States courts makes it as difficult to know what the records are as in some instances it would be to restore a lost record by substitution of other records, files, and papers relating to the subject-matter of the records, from the fact that the records and files of certain courts, the accumulation of years, have been thrown into disorder and cast heedlessly into heaps in rooms for storage in such a confused way that the papers are to all intents and purposes lost, their availability being impossible because of their condition.

For example, an examiner of this Department in making a report, directs attention—to the condition of the records of the United States courts in the eastern district of Virginia, from the date of the establishment of the courts down to the year 1860. Some time between 1860 and 1865 these records were thrown into a mass, in which condition they still remain. Among these records are many papers of value and importance as well to the United States as to the citizens, whose muniments of title are buried in the confused mass of papers now in what is called the "strong rooms" of the court, and which I thoroughly inspected.

Quite recently applications have been made to the clerk of the circuit court for copies of record, prior to 1865, which were refused by him because it was impossible for him to find the original papers. During the war the Government building was taken possession of by the Confederate authorities and the courts removed elsewhere. Upon the occupancy of the city by the Federal troops, those in charge of the records and papers in question piled them up in the Capitol Square, where they remained until carted back, several days later, to the Government building, and were thrown into their present shape, mixed up with internal-revenue and custom-house papers, and so remain to this day.

I am fully convinced that means should be taken to have these papers and records put in condition to be used when necessity requires it. The clerks of both courts, upon whom I called relative to the subject, assured me that records are often desired from this source and refused because of the condition of the papers from which they would have to be made. Months would be consumed in the attempt to find anything to go upon from this confused mass. Ex-United States Senator Johnston, of Virginia, recently attempted to have a record made in some case with which he is connected, but had to give it up for the reasons stated.

The condition of the records of the United States courts at Richmond, Va., as presented by the examiner, is to some extent the condition of the records of the United States courts in other places, and is presented to Congress as a proper subject for its action.

The existing law relative to records of courts makes the expense of restoration payable out of the judiciary fund, at the discretion of the Attorney-General. The portion of the judiciary fund available for such an expense is classed as "miscellaneous expenses of United States courts," and is largely drawn upon for a great variety of miscellaneous expenses, and so largely that the appropriations are not adequate to incur the additional expense which will be found necessary to place the records referred to in proper order.

It is therefore suggested that Congress should make an appropriation specifically for this purpose, available as long as the Attorney-General shall find the necessity for such an expense to exist.

CHANGES IN THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM OF THE UNITED STATES.

It is impossible to over estimate the necessity that exists for a change in the judicial system to meet the demands of the constantly increasing business of the country; and I would simply call attention in this connection to my suggestions in the last report, pages 36-43, and respectfully urge some change be made that will remedy the evils complained of on all sides, whether that change be in accordance with my views or not.

LEGISLATION TOUCHING RAILROADS IN WASHINGTON CITY.

On page 44 of the last Report legislation on this subject was asked for, and reasons therefor were given. Since the adjournment of Congress in August last complaints by citizens have been made, as heretofore, and I am of opinion legislation on this subject should not be delayed.

DEPARTMENT BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

I beg leave to renew the suggestions contained in my last report (pages 44-45) as to the charge and control of Department buildings and grounds and for the erection of a suitable building for the accommodation of the United States courts held at Washington City.

THE LIBRARY.

A larger annual appropriation than that heretofore made is needed to meet the wants of the library of this Department. To supply deficiencies already existing in treatises on various branches of jurisprudence, in law reports, and in works of reference, and to purchase the numerous books of this character published during the year, will require at least $3,000 ; and I recommend that the annual appropriation for law and miscellaneous books be increased to that amount.

COURT ROOMS AT JACKSON, MISS.

I repeat the recommendations made in my last report, page 46, as to the Supreme Court Reports, and the propriety of disposing of the interest of the Government in the matter of the court rooms at Jackson, Miss.

CITY HALL BUILDING, UTICA, N. Y.

The United States own an interest in the city hall building at Utica, N. Y. I recommend such legislation as is necessary to dispose of this interest, which is no longer of use to the Government since the erection of a public building at that place.

IN THE MATTER OF THE UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY LITIGATION.

In the last report (page 46) it was stated this litigation was pending on cross appeals from the Court of Claims in the Supreme Court, but since then final decision has been rendered affirming the judgment of the Court of Claims in favor of the Government for $1,577,683.31, and the mandate of the Supreme Court has been filed in the Court of Claims.

THE COMPENSATION OF ASSISTANT ATTORNEYS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

The pay of these assistant attorneys should be equalized. There is no good reason for giving them different salaries, as their work is alike in all respects, and the daily increasing business of the Department requires their unremitting attention. For special reasons why their salaries should be increased, which I approve, I refer to the letter of Assistant Attorney-General Howard, herewith presented (Exhibit U), and I add my testimony to the facts he states. I feel sure it would in the end prove to be a saving to the Government to increase these salaries.

COMPENSATION OF EXAMINER OF CLAIMS IN THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

The growing business of claims in the Department of State makes it necessary, in my judgment, to increase the pay of the examiner of those claims to $5,000. I am convinced the present compensation is inadequate, and I submit herewith (Exhibit V) a letter on this subject from the Secretary of State for consideration, and I wish to say I agree with the views therein expressed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General.

* Humboldt is directly on the railroad line from Memphis to Washington, but I was compelled to buy a ticket from Memphis to Humboldt, as charged for, because I could not get a "lay-over ticket" from the agent, and I bought a through ticket from Memphis to Washington, because I could get it as cheap as from Humboldt, and I knew that I would reach Humboldt in the night on my return from Trenton, and perhaps could not get a through ticket to Washington, hence the two tickets.

EXHIBIT K.—Report of the Solicitor of the Treasury.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR OF THE TREASURY,
Washington, D. C., October 26, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith seven tabular statements exhibiting the amounts, character, and results of the litigation under my direction for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, shown by the docket entries of this office.

These tables embrace respectively:

(1) Suits on transcripts of accounts of defaulting public officers, excepting those of the Post-Office Department, adjusted by the accounting officers of the Treasury Department.

(2) Post-office suits, embracing those against officers of the Post-Office Department, and cases of fines, penalties, and forfeitures for violation of postal laws.

(3) Suits on custom-house bonds.

(4) Suits for the recovery of fines, penalties, and forfeitures under the customs revenue and navigation laws.

(5) Suits against collectors of customs and other officers or agents of the Government, excepting internal-revenue officers, for refund of duties and acts done in line of their official duty.

(6) Suits in which the United States is a party, or is interested, not embraced in the other classes.

(7) A general summary or abstract of all the other tables.

An examination of the tables will show that the whole number of suits commenced within the year was 3,941, of which 132 were of class 1, for the recovery of $1,116,522.13; 275 were of class 2, for the recovery of $398,675.34; 18 were of class 3, for the recovery of $6,080.33; 138 were of class 4, for the recovery of $137,841.82; 1,462 were of class 5; and 1,916 were of class 6, for the recovery of $5,150,170.83; making a total sued for, as reported, of $6,809,290.45.

Of the whole number of suits brought, 1,440 were decided in favor of the United States, 61 were adversely decided, 376 were settled and dismissed, in 6 penalties were remitted by the Secretary of the Treasury, leaving 2,058 still pending.

Of those pending at the commencement of the year, 386 were decided for the United States, 118 were decided adversely, 716 were settled and dismissed, and in 5 penalties were remitted by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The entire number of suits decided or otherwise disposed of during the year was 3,108; the whole amount for which judgments were obtained, exclusive of decrees in rem, was $532,112.75; and the entire amount collected from all sources was $380,509.71.

The number of cases in which offers of compromise were pending and received during the fiscal year was 177, involving the sum of $1,244,677.74.

The number of offers accepted was 110, involving the sum of $743,271.38; amount accepted, $85,586.90. The number of offers rejected was 45, involving the sum of $380,987.71. In 37 of the rejected cases the amount involved was $139,987.71, and the amount rejected $10,544.90. The remaining 8 cases, involving the sum of $241,000, were on account of suits on timber trespass, in which offers of $2.50 per acre had been made, but the total amount of the offers could not be approximated except by an actual survey of the land trespassed upon.

The number of cases pending at the close of the fiscal year was 22, involving the sum of $120,418.65. The amount offered in cases pending is $7,715.01.

A statement of real property under charge of this office acquired in payment of debts due the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, appears in an exhibit hereto.

The number of official bonds, contracts, and leases referred to this office, and examined as to their correctness in form and as to their legal sufficiency, was 1,001; and the number of legal opinions returned on questions submitted by the head of the Treasury Department or by different bureaus thereof was 191.

I would take occasion to renew the recommendation made in my last annual report, respecting the necessity for additional assistance in the trial of civil cases in the office of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia.

To myself, as well as to my predecessors, the condition of the civil business in the courts of that district has been the source of grievous complaint. Doubtless, the fault does not lie with the district attorney. Numerous suits are pending against delinquent officers and other public debtors, which I have been unable to bring to trial notwithstanding earnest efforts have been made, stimulated by a due appreciation of the embarrassment and loss occasioned the Government by the long-protracted delay. I have had personal explanation of a satisfactory character from the district attorney, and I have also his official report on the subject. I would earnestly ask special attention to the statement of the wants of his office. He should undoubtedly be allowed by law an additional assistant. Sections 906 and 907, Revised Statutes, District of Columbia, provide that there shall not be allowed him compensation for any permanent assistant or deputy, nor any sum for office expenses, &c., and that he shall pay to his deputies and assistants, not exceeding in all, four thousand dollars per annum; also, his clerk hire, not exceeding twelve hundred dollars per annum, office rent, &c., out of the fees of his office.

An extract from his report will exhibit the peculiar and onerous character of the duties devolving upon him, which forbid any efficient labor on his part, or on that of his present assistants, in the preparation or trial of other than criminal cases:

In all the other judicial districts of the United States the district attorney of the United States is called upon to enforce those punitive statutes of the United States which are applicable to the whole country. In those districts which are carved out of States the State's attorney for the State prosecutes the great mass of ordinary offenders. But here, where there is no State government, and Congress has exclusive jurisdiction, both classes of cases are cognizable by the same officer. All the ordinary larcenies, burglaries, arsons, robberies, forgeries, and murders, and other common law offenses, which in other jurisdictions would be attended to by the prosecuting officer of the State, are here the subject of the United States attorney's labors. Some idea of the extent of his duties may be gathered from an inspection of the last report of the warden of the jail here and the accompanying tables. (See Report of the Attorney-General for 1886, p. 321.)

A still better means of getting information on this subject is by examining Exhibit B 2 this report of the Attorney-General for 1885, page 52. This is a statement of criminal cases pending and decided in the United States courts in the fiscal year 1885. It will be there seen that the number of criminal prosecutions terminated in the courts of the district during that year was 3,786. The whole number of cases terminated during that year in all the United States courts was 11,977; so that my office disposed of just about one-third of all the criminal business of the United States during that year. The next highest district on the list is the eastern district of Arkansas, in which 552 cases were disposed of in that period; about one-seventh of the number for this district. Large as this number may seem, the forthcoming report of the Attorney-General for 1886 will show that during the last year it was increased to 4,146; and that it will continue to increase there can be no doubt. I have been unable to get at the statistics for all the years back, but I find that in 1879 the number was 2,554. This gives some evidence of the rate at which the business of this office has increased. Yet the force now allowed the district attorney here is precisely what it was in 1870.

I am limited to $4,000 for this pay of assistants per year, and $1,200 for clerk hire, and this although the fees now earned by this office reach $40,000 per annum. Last year the amount was $43,185.

In conclusion, he says:

I have not failed to note that there has been a disposition to complain of an apparent failure to press vigorously the numerous important civil suits pending here to which the United States is a party, notwithstanding the explanations that have heretofore been made; and I wish to say that for the reasons above given, it is impossible that the civil business of the Government in the courts of this jurisdiction should receive proper attention until there shall be a change in the law.

The sections referred to should be amended so as to admit of the employment of a competent assistant to take charge of the civil business as suggested, whose compensation may be paid from the fees of the office, an excess of which is now turned into the Treasury to the amount of thirty or forty thousand dollars annually.

Again I would ask attention to the recommendation made in my last annual report, as also in the report of my immediate predecessor, favoring a statute of limitation or repose in the interests of sureties upon the bonds of delinquent officers of the Government. In the lengthening experience of the duties of this office, the reasons for affording this relief to unfortunate sureties continue to press upon me in view of the number of suits I am called upon to commence or to force to an issue where the cause of action accrued a quarter of a century or over ago. And it is not the interests of sureties alone that are involved in this proposition but to a large extent the interests of the Government. Courts and juries are not inclined to look with much favor upon a claim made long after the decease of the officer or of some of the sureties, when, if suit had been commenced within a reasonable time, the estates of the principal or of the deceased sureties might have contributed largely towards the payment of the indebtedness, and when, by the laches of the Government, the entire burden is thrown upon surviving sureties or their representatives, who, from the necessities of the case, can make no defense. This liability is likely to deter persons of substantial means from submitting themselves as sureties on official bonds. Hence, the general character and responsibility of official suretyship is deteriorating, and the ultimate reliance of the Government for securing faithfulness in the execution of public trusts is likely more and more to prove delusive. The statute now provides such a limitation as I suggest in regard to suits arising on the bonds of postmasters, and there seems no good reason why the legislation should not be made general with a longer term of limitation, say of six years from the expiration of the official service.

The great number of suits pending in the circuit court for the southern district of New York between importers and collectors of customs, and the large number that continue to be brought in that court almost daily, is a source of great solicitude. As stated by the Secretary of the Treasury in a report made to yourself in November, 1885, these suits create, in effect, a floating or unliquidated debt against the Treasury, the magnitude of which is not within the scope of conjecture, and running on interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum. Many of these have been pending for over a quarter of a century. At an early period of my administration of this office, I reported to the Secretary of the Treasury, from the best sources attainable, that the number of old suits at issue in that district was twenty-three hundred, and that the sum involved amounted to millions of dollars, but that any approximate conjecture as to the real amount was impracticable. Since that time, as the dockets of this office show, one thousand one hundred and forty-four suits have been commenced. Within that interval less than one hundred in number have been tried. With the large number of suits between private parties pending in the court and the consequent demands of private interests, it is manifestly impracticable, as the judiciary is now organized, to cope with this species of litigation to any appreciable extent. Not only is the judicial force insufficient, but the force likewise in the district attorney's office is entirely inadequate, with other business of great magnitude in its hands, to prepare even the small number of cases that may be tried in the courts. I have endeavored, at the instance of the Secretary of the Treasury, to get further accommodations on the part of the courts in New York and the adjacent judicial districts for these cases, but without avail. There should be legislation at an early day providing for an additional circuit judge in the second circuit for the exclusive trial of this class of cases. In time and by the holding of continuous sessions the dockets could in a measure be cleared off and the current causes could be tried within a reasonable time after being brought to issue. This would be in the direction of economy, as the additional expense would be far less than the interest the Government would be compelled to pay as the penalty of the delay. That this is an alarming feature, deserving and demanding serious consideration, is patent when I refer to the claim in twelve consolidated cases of Benkard vs. Schell, which recently came up for refund, where the principal debt was $44,601.15, and the interest $83,987.19.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully,

A. McCUE,
Solicitor.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General.

EXHIBIT L.—Report of the librarian.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, November 1, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to present herewith the annual report relating to the library of the Department of Justice:

During the fiscal year just closed, great inconvenience has been felt by the officers of this Department because books needed daily could not be purchased. The appropriation made by Congress was inadequate to meet the demands made upon the library. I therefore respectfully ask that you present to Congress the urgent need of an appropriation of at least $3,000 for the coming year, suggesting that said appropriation be in this form:

For law reports, works on jurisprudence, &c.....	$2, 000
To complete the sets of the several State statutes	1, 000
	3, 000

I also respectfully request that some permanent arrangement may be speedily made to take proper care of the very valuable Congressional documents owned by this Department. Many of them are now kept in bags, which is very inconvenient for those who must consult them, and is also hurtful to the books. These documents ought to be properly arranged on suitable shelves, or, what would be better, in book-cases, where they could (as they should) be most carefully protected.

During the fiscal year, July 1, 1885, to June 30, 1886, there were purchased—

EXHIBIT O.—Report of the board of trustees of the Reform School of the District of Columbia.

REFORM SCHOOL OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, October 15, 1886.

SIR : By reason of the death of Mr. George W. Adams, the president of the board of trustees, the duty of making this the seventeenth annual report of the workings of the school has devolved upon me.

In the death of Mr. Adams, which occurred on the morning of the 10th instant, the school sustained a great loss. He was a man of strict integrity, of wide acquaintance and influence, and warmly interested in the welfare of the institution. Upon the announcement of his death a special meeting of the board of trustees was called and the following resolutions unanimously adopted, which I include in this report as showing the esteem in which he was held by his associates :

Whereas in the death of George W. Adams, the president of this board of trustees, this body has lost a wise and able counselor, one who at all times was willing to give his talents and his time to the administration of the affairs of this institution, and who, in his service as trustee and president, by his courteous bearing, his kind and noble nature, endeared himself to each one of us : Now therefore be it—

Resolved, That as an expression of the grief which touches all our hearts, this board of trustees, together with officers of the school, attend his funeral, and that the school-rooms be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

Resolved, further, That as an expression of our warm and hearty sympathy with his family in their irreparable loss, the secretary transmit to them a copy of the foregoing.

Since the opening of the school, twenty years ago, there have been received up to the close of the last fiscal year 1,185 boys, of which number 106 were received during the year. The superintendent in his report appended hereto gives statistical information in reference to those received during the year. Many of them have from their earliest recollection been surrounded by vice and wretchedness, and in consequence upon entering the school are found to be of the most difficult material from which to develop the best results. During the year, 73 boys have met the requirements necessary to being awarded an honorable discharge. The board believe that the instruction and discipline they have had during their stay in the school has given to each a new start, and that many have thereby been fitted for lives of usefulness and honor.

The receipts of the school from all sources during the year, as will appear by the report of the treasurer appended hereto, are as follows :

Received from appropriation for salaries and subsistence	$36,616 00
Received from appropriation for buildings and grounds	1,800 00
	38,416 00

The disbursements of the treasurer, given in detail in his report appended hereto, may be summarized as follows :

Salaries and services	$11,606 00
Groceries, salt meats, fish, and ice	4,798 62
Flour and feed	2,433 78
Fresh meats	2,135 14
Dry goods, clothing, and hats	2,581 34
Leather, shoe, and shoe findings	666 55
Gas and fuel	3,005 86
Hardware, kitchen, table, and house ware	424 86
Seeds, fertilizers, harness, tools, wagons, and repairs to same, and black-smithing	1,451 65
Stationery, books, and printing	376 41
Medicines and medical attention	533 38
Furniture, fencing, annual repairs, machinery, &c	4,976 25
Buildings and grounds, repairs	1,607 42

Necessary sundry expenses	$476 54
Purchase of stock	445 00
Compensation account, labor, &c	554 25
Total amount of disbursements	38,073 05
Leaving an unexpended balance (to be covered back into the Treasury) of	342 95

Agreeably to the act of Congress approved February 25, 1885, the revenue derived during the year from the labor of the inmates on the farm and in the shops has been covered into the Treasury to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts. As stated in the report of the treasurer, the sum of $3,311.61 was so deposited by him.

During the last session Congress appropriated for the erection of a new family building the sum of $15,000, and for the erection of a tank-house $4,500. Plans for these buildings were duly prepared and approved by the Architect of the Capitol, Mr. Edward Clarke. They were also approved by the Commissioners of the District, under whose direction the inspector of buildings, Mr. W. B. Entwistle, prepared detailed specifications.

The additional family building thus appropriated for will enable the school to further classify the boys, and also accommodate an additional number. The board hope to have the family building ready for occupancy early next spring.

Estimates for the next fiscal year have been submitted as follows for your approval and submission to Congress:

For buildings and grounds:

For construction of greenhouses, with necessary heating apparatus complete	$4,500
For construction of a workhouse building, with necessary heating apparatus complete	4,700
For one chapel building of brick and stone, including heating apparatus, gas-fixtures, and furniture complete	7,500
For grading, draining, and permanently improving the school grounds...	1,500

The estimates for greenhouses and workshop building are submitted for the first time, the board believing that both are required in order that the industries can be made a source of considerable income and otherwise be made of great benefit to the school. The present greenhouses are too small. With the additional houses asked for little increased expenditure will be required for help and for fuel, while a large number of boys can be given an opportunity to become acquainted with this profitable industry, and be enabled to pursue it and secure employment thereat after leaving the school. So with the workshop estimated for; it will give us facilities now badly needed, and enable the school to instruct a larger number of boys in various classes of work, and at the same time add to the earnings of the institution, which, under existing law, are now covered into the Treasury and deposited to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts.

The need of an appropriation for a chapel building, and of an appropriation of $1,500 for grading, draining, and permanently improving the school grounds is again pressed upon your attention.

As stated in the last annual report of the school, the local government of the District of Columbia has no control whatever over its buildings and grounds, all of which have been paid for out of money appropriated by Congress belonging to the General Government. The District government is represented on the board by one of its Commissioners as a trustee in the management and maintenance of the school. The current expenses of the institution for several years past have been provided for in the District appropriation bill, one-half being paid by the General Government and one-half by the District.

Estimates of appropriations necessary for current expenses have been submitted to the Commissioners of the District as follows:

For 1 superintendent.....	$1,500
For 1 assistant superintendent	900
For 6 teachers and assistant teachers	4,000
For 1 matron of school	600
For 3 matrons of families, at $180.....	540
For 1 superintendent of chair shop.....	660
For 1 farmer.....	480
For 1 engineer	396
For 1 florist.....	240
For 1 shoemaker, 1 baker, 1 tailor, 1 cook, at $300	1,200
For one seamstress, 1 chambermaid, 1 laundress, and 2 dinning-room servants, at $144	720
For watchmen, not to exceed 5 in number.....	1,140
For 1 secretary and treasurer of school.....	600
In all	12,976

For support of inmates, including groceries, flour, meats, dry goods, leather and shoes, gas, fuel, furniture, tableware, hardware, machinery, farm implements, seed, fertilizers, books, stationery, medicines and medical attendance, stock, fencing, repairs to buildings, and other necessary items, including compensation, not exceeding $900, for additional labor or services, all in the discretion of the Commissioners, $25,000.

The estimate for pay-roll is $1,360 beyond the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year, as follows: Increase for teachers, $1,000; for one additional matron of family, $180, and for one additional watchman, $180. The completion of the new family building during the current fiscal year will enable the school, as already stated, to better classify the boys, and also accommodate an additional number. It is for this building that the additional force will be required. If permission were given to pay out of the earnings of the school the wages of the foreman of the several industries, a reduction could be made of $660 for the superintendent of the chair shop, and of $240 for the florist—$900 in all.

No addition has been made in the estimate for subsistence and expenses, it being the purpose of the Board, if possible, to keep the expenditure on that account within the sum of $25,000, notwithstanding the increase in the population of the school.

The Board have for several years in their annual report asked that they be given power, in their discretion, to give a leave of absence to the boys instead of an absolute discharge. This request I again urge upon your attention, inasmuch as it will enable the authorities of the school to keep a partial control over the boys discharged, who will be required at stated times to report to them. The plan has worked well elsewhere, and experience has demonstrated the need of it here.

The joint resolution which has passed the Senate and is now before the House, making the chief clerk of the Department of Justice ex officio a trustee of the school, it is hoped will become a law. The Board of Trustees cordially appreciate the interest taken by you and by your predecessor in the welfare of the institution. This will enable your Department to become more intimately acquainted with the workings of the school in all its details, a result that will be very gratifying to the Board.

The school has been free from any fatal sickness or accident during the year. The report of the physician of the school, Dr. Charles A. Wells, is herewith transmitted.

In closing this report I cannot refrain from acknowledging the fidelity and ability of the superintendent, Col. George A. Shallenberger, and the matron, Mrs. Shallenberger, and of the teachers and assistants in the immediate charge of the boys. The year has passed without change among the employes at the school, all of whom are heartily interested in the welfare of the boys and have labored night and day to that end.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

H. A. WILLARD,
President Board of Trustees.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General of the United States.

Report of the physician.

REFORM SCHOOL, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
July 1, 1886.

GENTLEMEN: Notwithstanding the crowded condition of the dormitories in family A building the health of the school has been fairly good for the past year. Numerous ailments have received my attention, but we have had no really serious illness among the boys, except six cases of typhoid fever, occurring last July and August; and a case of peritonitis, through which the patient struggled after an illness of months. I strenuously urge that ample dormitory space be provided in the proposed new building. Since the date of my last report the damp brick flooring in family A building and in the boys' basement of main building has been replaced with good concrete work. I earnestly urge that the entire basement of the main building be floored with the same material. I regard this as having an important bearing on the hygienic condition of the building.

Among the potent factors in maintaining the good health of this institution I place the thoroughly cleanly condition in which the buildings are kept. Thorough ventilation is insisted upon, and the free use of disinfectants urged at all seasons.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. A. WELLS, M. D.,
Attending Physician.

Received from chair-shop account	$1,657 97
Received from sale of farm products	446 05
Received from sale of fruit	284 69
Received from miscellaneous sources	922 96
Total	3,311 67

All receipts from farm and school are now covered into the United States Treasury for the benefit of the United States and the District of Columbia jointly.

The school sessions have been held regularly in each family during the fall and winter months. The ordinary branches of a common school education have been taught and the average advancement in study has been maintained. A large percentage of the boys admitted during the year has been below the average in age, estimating for the past ten years. Many of them seem to have been deprived of ordinary school privileges at home, or had failed to take advantage of them, as they come to us with a knowledge of little else than the alphabet. It is not to be expected that boys of this class will make rapid advancement in their studies. There is one important consideration, however, which in the end must inure to their individual advantage, as it places them in a position where they are required, for a given time at least, to attend the school sessions.

There have been 79 boys in all discharged during the year. A very few of these were returned to their homes by authority of the Board of Trustees before their time had fully expired. A large majority of them, however, remained to secure their "honor" badge, and were discharged regularly under the rules. Many inquiries come to us from official as well as individual sources for information concerning our discharged boys. How many have really been reformed is often the very direct question, and what proportion of them succeed in getting employment. The answer to these very reasonable inquiries cannot readily be given in figures, and it is impossible to follow up and locate each individual boy. On another page of this report it is shown that 107 boys were received during the year. Of this number 11 had been inmates of the school before. It must be remembered that nearly 1,200 boys in all have been received into the school, and that most of these have been discharged and are still living within the District. Those who make a bad record naturally drift into prominence, and as law-breakers are arraigned before the court, when they become "known and read of all men." Not so, however, with a large proportionate number who are seldom heard from, because they are doing well and are living quietly and peaceably in the community to which they have been returned. From among these we could select, and name them by scores, boys who, having grown to manhood, are now occupying positions of trust and responsibility and are respected by all who know them.

All of the various school industries have been prosecuted with satisfactory results, but the farm must always take front rank as our most important work-shop. For this reason, it has received perhaps more than its share of attention during the year. The season has been a favorable one for growth, and, with the exception of white potatoes, the yield in all field and vegetable crops has been above the average. The hay-crop has been larger than ever before. Fertilizing agents, principally stable manure, have been freely used, and the grounds thus treated, have been correspondingly enhanced in value. We have much to contend with on account of the rolling character of portions of our cultivated grounds. These hill-sides are subject to heavy washes during the spring and summer freshets, and often from these causes a very promising crop is badly damaged. These troubles can be avoided only by a thorough under-drainage, and for this purpose, in connection with similar improvement of front grounds, a reasonable appropriation has been asked for.

The fruit crop was very light, almost a failure in peaches, pears and grapes. Of small fruits there was less than an average yield, except strawberries which were very abundant, affording a large surplus to be disposed of in the market.

Work in the chair-caning department still furnishes light employment for most of our small boys. The older and stronger ones take care of the farm and outdoor work generally.

The tailoring and shoe shops, as also the greenhouses, are under the management of competent instructors, wherein a number of boys are employed and taught a knowledge of these several trades. So also the bakery, kitchen, and laundry affords like opportunities for other boys to prepare themselves to earn a living by securing a fair knowledge of the work peculiar to each. None are idle during working hours, if physically able to be on duty. Hours for recreation are also made a part of the daily programme. The playground is considered an essential feature in the daily routine of school life, as the exercise it brings is helpful alike to health and discipline.

A great deal of work has been done during the year to keep the several buildings in good repair. The tin roofing has been made new wherever required, and all thoroughly covered with patent elastic paint. The boys' basement in both main and family buildings, and also the principal room in laundry have all been concreted and finished with a granolithic or cement pavement.

A new tubular boiler, with all necessary attachments, including three large jacketed kettles, fitted for steam cooking, have been provided and are now in successful operation for preparing food for the boys' table. A new range, with extended facilities for supplying hot water throughout the building, has been added to other necessary kitchen improvements. Machinery of the latest designs and most approved patterns has been purchased and put in position for the manufacture of paper boxes. It is the intention to secure a competent foreman to instruct and educate a number of boys in this growing industry, believing that it promises something practical in the way of remunerative employment for them after they have been discharged from the school.

Several knitting-machines have also been purchased and placed in the tailoring department, especially designed for knitting our own supply of socks, but for a possible extension of the industry should its further development become practicable.

An additional root-cellar has been built, and especially fitted for the winter storage of sweet potatoes by the introduction of artificial heat. One hundred panels of picket fencing has also been constructed along the south line of the farm, many old and unsightly trees removed, and the main road-way to rear of farm thoroughly drained and repaired.

An orchard, containing about six hundred young peach trees, has been planted, one hundred each of six choice varieties, and also one hundred two-year old vines of the new White Niagara grape. These vines were procured direct from the vineyard of the original grower of the now justly popular variety of grapes.

The general health of the school has been very good. Dr. Charles A. Wells, the attending physician, has continued his visits throughout the year as his services have been required. No epidemic has appeared among the children, and no one has suffered from a serious accident of any kind. There has been no death in the institution during the past three years. Under the direction of Dr. Wells, a strict sanitary régime has been carried out, especially during the hot summer months, and free use has been made of the most approved disinfectants both in and outside of the several buildings.

Quite a number of strangers, from different parts of the country, as also many of our oldtime friends and neighbors, have visited the school during the year. Through the good will and favor of such friends and their knowledge of our wants, we have received frequent donations of interesting reading matter, such as magazines, pamphlets, and weekly newspapers. Periodicals of this class, selected with care, make very acceptable reading for boys, and we accept them with great pleasure, not regarding the date as of any material consequence. Daily newspapers are not distributed in the school, and should not be sent to the boys or brought to them by their friends.

All of the national holidays were observed in their regular order. The "Fourth of July" especially was made the occasion for a full round of amusements for the boys, culminating before dark in a vocal concert on the front lawn, under the direction of Mr. W. K. Cohen, and closing an hour later with a fine display of fireworks.

Thanksgiving turkeys were provided in abundance, and enjoyed by the entire school on the day specially designated. Christmas also had its usual merry welcome from the boys, old and young, and each was provided with the means to make it a very enjoyable day.

Our annual entertainment was given at the school by the boys on the evening of January 25, and consisted of recitations, dialogues, calisthenic exercises, and vocal music, the latter under the direction of Mr. W. K. Cohen, who has charge of this branch of instruction. The material for these entertainments is drawn wholly from the more advanced classes in the school grades, and boys are selected for their respective parts after a fair competition among themselves. On these occasions our limited accommodations for room are always over taxed, as in addition to the board of trustees, who are always present with their friends, our neighbors, ever welcome, all come to join us in an hour or two of solid enjoyment.

Religious services are held every Sabbath afternoon in the large school-room in south wing of main building. They are conducted by ministers of the different religious demoninations from the city and immediate neighborhood, and by intelligent laymen accustomed to public speaking. These services are in no sense denominational or sectarian in character. The hour for commencement is 3 o'clock, p. m., and all friends of the school are cordially invited to be present. Our thanks are hereby extended to ministers of the Gospel and others who have so regularly and acceptably throughout the year conducted our Sabbath afternoon services. We are also very grateful to the many good friends, ladies and gentlemen from the city, who have upon several occasions, and in the interest of our boys, voluntarily given us such charming literary and musical entertainments.

But few changes in our official force have been made during the year. A large majority of our associate officers and employés have proved themselves faithful and efficient in the line of their especial duties, and also in the ready assistance extended to the superintendent and matron in their daily routine of work and responsibility.

Under Providence the school has been permitted to close another busy and prosperous year, and I beg to express my gratitude for the continued support of your honorable Board personally and officially.

Respectfully submitted.

G. A. SHALLENBERGER,

The BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

EXHIBIT P.—Report of the warden of the jail.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 2, 1886.

The undersigned, warden of the jail in the District of Columbia, in obedience to duty, hereby submits his annual report for the year which ended October 31, 1886.

The management of this institution during the past year, as in former years, while under the supervision of the present warden, has been conducted upon strictly humanitarian principles and with very satisfactory results; intelligence, firmness, and a conciliatory spirit have been uniformly manifested by the officers in their treatment of prisoners, and as a rule the inmates in return have yielded a willing obedience to the requirements of the prison, and good discipline has prevailed with remarkable uniformity during the year. At no time during the superintendence of the present warden has there been less to complain of in regard to the efficiency and faithfulness of the officers and the general deportment of the prisoners than during the year just closed. No prisoner has escaped, and none has offered any persistent resistance to the mandates of those in authority. The inmates have been supplied with good nutritious food of the different varieties allowed for the use of the jail and in abundance. Good beds and comfortable quarters have been furnished them. Delicacies for the sick, and proper medicines, when needed, have been promptly furnished and administered, and the wants of the prisoners in all respects have been carefully attended to. A good condition of health has prevailed, and no death among the inmates has occurred, except those who suffered under sentence of the law.

Reference is hereby made to the report of Alexander McWilliams, M. D., the jail physician, hereto annexed, for a more elaborate statement in regard to the health of prisoners and the sanitary condition of the institution than is given here. The jail throughout all its apartments has been kept in good order, thoroughly clean and well disinfected, the clothing and bedding have been frequently washed as their condition required, and the prisoners have been compelled to bathe and wash their persons from week to week through the year, which it is believed has contributed very much to the satisfactory sanitary condition that has prevailed. The jail physician has visited the jail every day, furnished all medicines needed, and has been unremitting in his attention to and care of the sick. Representatives from the Young Men's Christian Association of this city (white and colored) and ladies connected with the Women's Christian Temperance Union have held religious services regularly at the jail, which have been attended with satisfactory results.

The jail building has required some repairing and a considerable amount of painting and glazing from time to time, all of which has been properly attended to, and the building and apartments are now in good condition, except the gutters around the eaves of the building, which have become impaired by reason of the action of the elements and the breaking away of the copper lining to the same, which causes the water to run down the sides of the walls in some places, and to work its way at the angles of the building down into the mason-work between the outer wall of stone and the inner walls of brick, which, if not remedied soon, will cause serious damage to the walls. The cost of making the required repairs to the gutters would be about $600. An appropriation should be made for the purpose.

By lapse of time and continued use for a period of eleven years, two of the large steam-boilers used for heating the building settled away from their supports in such a manner as to cause a collapse of the steam pipes connected with them and to render it necessary to remove the entire foundation, masonry supports, and inclosing-walls, in order to make the needed repairs. This was done. The boilers were repaired subject to the inspection and supervision of a Government inspector, raised and placed in their former position, and reset upon a substantial foundation. The entire masonry work and their supports and protecting walls were rebuilt of new material by skilled mechanics, and they are now in good condition for use. Other necessary repairs have been made to the steam-heating apparatus, the steam-distributing pipes, and also to the steam laundry, which had become to a considerable extent worn and impaired by constant use during eleven years of service. The entire cost of repairs to the building, fixtures, boilers, steam laundry, steam pipes, drainage, furniture, &c., was $715.19. The expense of painting and glazing, which includes materials only, as the work was done by prison labor, was $245.34.

The daily average number of prisoners in jail during the year was 186. The preceding year the daily average number of prisoners was 197. The total number of prisoners in jail during the year was 1,895, of whom 456 were white males, 21 were white females, 1,222 were colored males, and 181 were colored females. Of this number, 163 males and 26 females were in jail at the commencement of the year; 1,523 males and 183 females were committed during the year. Those in jail, as above stated, during the year, are accounted for as follows: There were pardoned by the President of the United States 6 white males and 1 colored male, and by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, 2 colored males. There were transferred to the Government Asylum for the Insane, in the District of Columbia, 2 white males and 2 colored males; executed pursuant to death sentence, 2 white males and 1 colored male. There were transported to the Albany County Penitentiary, at Albany, in the State of New York, 16 white males, 38 colored males, and 2 colored females. There were transferred to the Reform School for Boys, in this District, 17 white boys and 35 colored boys. There were otherwise discharged by due course of law, 1,409 males and 188 females, leaving in jail at the close of the year, 44 white males, 111 colored males, 1 white female, and 18 colored females. In compliance with duty imposed by law, 56 convicts, as above stated, were transferred from the jail to the above-mentioned Albany County Penitentiary, pursuant to sentences in their cases, respectively, by the supreme court of the District of Columbia holding a criminal term. The actual cost of such transportation was $1,076.62, of which sum $600.30 was refunded by the authorities of said penitentiary, the same being the amount of railroad fare for the 56 convicts only, leaving a balance of $476.32 expended in connection with the transportation of said convicts, for the traveling and other incidental expenses of the officers who went in charge, to be borne by the Government. The 52 boys above referred to were transferred to the Reform School without any expense to the Government. Besides those sentenced to the penitentiary and to the Reform School for boys as hereinbefore stated, there were 995 of the prisoners tried, convicted, and sentenced to serve terms in jail, of whom 199 were white males, 638 were colored males, 7 were white females, and 151 were colored females. The amount of salaries of the deputy warden, physician, engineer, and assistant engineers, guards, clerk, messenger (office now abolished), carpenter (not now employed), and cooks (only one now employed), was $25,785.80. Besides the amount paid as above stated, there were expended on account of the jail the several sums for the support of the prisoners as follows:

Beds, bedding, and clothing	1,697 96
Fuel	2,467 14

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN S. CROCKER,
Warden.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General United States.

Report of the physician to the jail.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 2, 1886.

DEAR SIR: Since my last report we have no deaths to report from diseases. The health of the jail has been all that could be desired, considering the large number of criminals and the class of prisoners who come under our care. Two cases of the opium habit have been treated within the last year, and I am happy to state they left the jail in a very improved condition. I beg to call your attention to the large number of children we are obliged to care for. Some of them are but a few months old; some from that to ten years. Mothers, who are convicted, often have children but a few months old, and they are compelled to remain a year in the badly ventilated cells of the female department. Some legislation on this subject is absolutely necessary. The food within the last year has been all that could be desired—sound, abundant, and varied. The sick are well cared for, and all necessary aid is furnished for them. The condition of the prison is a subject of congratulation. It is kept scrupulously clean at all times, perfectly ventilated, and every attention given to the persons and clothing of the inmates. The officers having special charge of this department deserve the highest praise for their energy and untiring industry. I must return my thanks to you particularly for your uniform support and kindness at all times, and to the officers and matron for their assistance and implicit obedience to my orders.

Yours, respectfully,

A. McWILLIAMS,
Physician United States Jail, Washington, D. C.

General JOHN S. CROCKER,
Warden United States Jail.

ARCHITECT'S OFFICE, UNITED STATES CAPITOL,
Washington, D. C., November 17, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to state that since the date of my last report, relative to the court-house, city of Washington, that many and important improvements have been made to the old portion of the same; rooms in the western wing have been fitted up for the use of the Civil Service Commission, and those in the upper story of the eastern wing put in condition for occupancy for the surveyor of the District of Columbia. These and the court-rooms have been heated by means of steam, two additional boilers having been placed in the boiler-rooms of the north extension for that purpose. In the basement of the new portion of the building the rooms vacated by the city surveyor have been prepared for use of the recorder of deeds, and the recorder's office moved to the western end to rooms formerly occupied by the register of wills, and the register of wills' office moved to that formerly occupied by the recorder of deeds; both have been amply furnished with shelving for records, and other changes made, which add greatly to the convenience of persons doing business with these offices.

Very respectfully yours,

EDWARD CLARK,
Architect United States Capitol.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General.

DEAR SIR: I desire to call your attention to an important matter, which seems to me to need careful consideration. I refer to the method of summoning grand and trial juries in the Territorial district courts in cases where the United States is a party.

It is very difficult at best to enforce the Federal criminal statutes in this Territory. The sympathies and interests of the people are largely against prosecutions, and it is a difficult matter to get juries who will enforce the law.

The question has been raised in this district as to how juries should be summoned. By the authority of Clinton v. Englebrecht, 13 Wall., 434, Hornbuckle v. Toombs, 18 Wall., 648, and other cases, it is insisted that juries must be summoned under and by virtue of the provisions of the Territorial laws. There is no law in this Territory, whatever may be in the others, for summoning a jury from the whole district, and as the Territorial courts sit for each county, so far as Territorial business is concerned, if the Territorial law be followed, grand and trial juries in United States cases must come from the county in which the court sits. If the Territorial law be followed defendants insist that the jury should come from the whole district over which the court has jurisdiction; if the juries be summoned from the whole district it is insisted that it is error, because the Territorial law has not been followed.

The question ought not to be one the least doubtful, especially so when it might be remedied by a very short and unobjectionable law. The court in the Hornbuckle case, 18 Wall., 656, almost suggests that additional legislation would be desirable. When it is remembered that in this county there are less than 2,000 voters registered, and when you strike out those who do not speak English, you have less than 1,500 left; and then strike out those who are not qualified by other disabilities, you will see that the source from which juries may be drawn is very small; and that it is almost out of the question to enforce the law under such circumstances. A law which provides that section 802 of the Revised Statutes, or, in fact, title "Juries" of the judiciary act, shall apply to the district courts of the Territories when sitting as Federal courts, would remedy the evil and would aid greatly in the enforcement of the law.

I call your attention to this subject that you may make such recommendations to Congress as you may deem desirable. If you concur with me in this regard, I will frame a statute such as I think will meet the case.

I am, very respectfully, yours,

WM. H. BARNES.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General of the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, October 5, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to state that, in obedience to your instructions to him, dated July 31, 1886, Leigh Chalmers, esq., examiner in the Department of Justice, reported to me for duty in the investigation of the sureties on the bond of D. B. Bonfoy, late collector of the 4th district of Texas, to have the proceedings now pending against them at Jefferson division of the United States court for the eastern district of Texas dismissed; said cause being chancery No. 12, The United States v. William T. Scott, William Umbdenstock et al. The object of this suit being to set aside a compromise heretofore made with the Government and to enforce the former judgment.

After a full and careful investigation of the whole matter, we respectfully submit the following report:

[The United States v. William T. Scott et al.—Chancery No. 12, pending in circuit court at Jefferson, Tex., fifth circuit.]

STATEMENT.

Davis B. Bonfoy was appointed collector of internal revenue of the 4th district of Texas, July 27, 1866, and entered regularly upon the discharge of the duties of his office January 1, 1867, with William T. Scott, Reuben Knight, W. C. Bristow, W. E. Miller, B. H. Martin, and William Umbdenstock as sureties, with his office and residence at Marshall, Tex.

He was a citizen of good standing, temperate, intelligent, energetic, and diligent in the discharge of his official duties. (See Ex. B, R, T, N.) He kept and used three several safes, in which he deposited Government money collected by himself and deputy—one small safe, which he kept in his office, in which he deposited daily collections; one large safe in Jones's store, in the lower part of the same building; and yet another large safe at his residence.

It was his custom to handle all Government moneys, pertaining to his office, in person. On the receipt of money from his deputies he would count it, put a wrapper around the money received from each deputy collector separately, write the name of the deputy and the amounts on the wrapper, date of receiving the same, making at the same time the same note on the accompanying "Monthly Report" of the deputy paying it in. The monthly report was handed to the book-keeper to enter up, and the money thus wrapped and marked placed in the small safe kept in his office, and at the close of each day's business he would take the money from the small safe and carry it down stairs and deposit it in the large safe kept in Jones's store, where he would let it remain until the book-keeper examined the monthly report and enter the amount on his books. The wrappers were then taken from the money and thrown away and the money carried to his residence and deposited in the large safe with the general fund. (See Ex. B, C, D, H, L, N, U, W.) On the 7th of August, 1867, Bonfoy had a difficulty with Fowler, one of his deputies at Jefferson, Tex., about twenty miles distant from Marshall, in which he killed Fowler; for which he was arrested and lodged in jail at Jefferson. (See Ex. B, C, D, H, L.) At this time the State of Texas was under military rule, and the civil arm of the State government paralyzed and powerless to protect its citizens.

The sureties on Bonfoy's bond, upon the casting of their principal into prison, notified the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of the facts, and applied to him for an agent to take charge of the business and the money collected by Bonfoy and remaining in said safe, which the Commissioner failed to do. (See Ex. B, R, T.)

Mrs. Bonfoy, wife of the collector, becoming alarmed at the state of affairs, called upon Lieut. William Hawley, Twentieth United States Infantry, commanding the post at Marshall, for a guard to protect her person and the Government funds in the safe at the residence, which request was complied with, and the very guard sent to protect her cruelly murdered her; and a few days afterwards Bonfoy died. (See Ex. B, N, O.) Upon the imprisonment of Bonfoy, Lieut. Wm. Hawley informed Lieutenant Blatchford, Twentieth United States Infantry, commanding the post at Shreveport, of the fact of Bonfoy's imprisonment, and that there were large sums of Government funds left by Bonfoy and no one to take charge of them. Whereupon Lieutenant Blatchford ordered Lieutenant Hawley to take charge of the same. Obeying said order Lieutenant Hawley, on the 13th or 14th of August, took forcible possession, by soldiers armed with muskets and bayonets, of the office, money, books, and papers belonging to Collector Bonfoy, carrying some to his camp and some to the court-house in Marshall, against the protest of S. D. Wood, senior deputy and legal custodian of the same in such case so made and provided (R. S., Sec.), and against the earnest protest of the sureties. (See Ex. Nos. 1, B, C, D, L, M, N, R, T.) This seizure was not only approved of by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the officers commended by him for the act. (See his letter in Ex. No. 1.)

Hawley retained possession of the books, papers, &c., for several days, when he returned the small safe and some of the books and papers (in great confusion) to the said S. D. Wood, whom he placed in possession of the office with instructions to turn over to him (Hawley) all moneys subsequently collected. (See Ex. b and B in red ink.) There was at the time of the seizure of the safes by Hawley the following sums of money contained in them: In the safe at Bonfoy's residence, $47,337.25, Government funds; $13,000, Mrs. Bonfoy's private funds, and a small package, marked I. O. O. F. In the safe at Jones's store, $65,000; amount in a small safe not known, but several days' collections. (See Ex. No. 1, B, C, D.)

The safe at Jones's store, with contents, has never been accounted for by the officer seizing it.

Hawley received from Deputy S. D. Wood, of money subsequently collected, $27,000, making a total, with the money taken with the safe, of $139,337.25. This money Hawley held possession of for several months, when he turned a part of it over to Capt. T. M. K. Smith, Twenty-sixth United States Infantry, who had custody of the same until the twenty-first day of April, 1868, a period of eight months from the time of the seizure of Hawley, when he (Smith) turned over to the United States Treasury at New Orleans $68,982.59 of it, leaving a balance of $70,354.66, Government money, and $13,000 belonging to Mrs. Bonfoy, unaccounted for. (See Ex. No. 1, B, B, red ink, and C.)

The officers, Smith and Hawley, were very dissipated men and much addicted to gambling, and used the money from the safe to gamble with and loaned it to individuals for private speculations, receiving interest for said loan. (See Ex. F, H, I, J, K, L, N, V.) At the April term, 1872, of the United States circuit court at Tyler, for the western district of Texas, four years after the death of Bonfoy, suit was instituted against the sureties on Bonfoy's bond. (Ex. S.) On the 11th day of December, 1873, judgment was recovered against William T. Scott, William Umbdenstock et al., as sureties on Bonfoy's bond for $50,000. Notwithstanding this judgment, the defendants claimed at the time, and sought to prove, and subsequent facts develop, that Bonfoy's account with the Government actually stood as follows:

which was due Bonfoy by the Government at the time the judgment was rendered against his sureties for $50,000. (See Ex. A, and A, B, C, D.) This result was so foreign to what we anticipated, and so incompatible with the fact that a judgment had been obtained for so large an amount against the sureties, although it had been arrived at from facts obtained by us and the data furnished by the Solicitor of the Treasury, that we were unwilling to base a report upon it alone. For this reason, at the request of Mr. Chalmers, Hon. G. A. Jenks, Acting Attorney-General, addressed a note to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue asking information on the subject, which was answered by a communication from H. C. Rodgers, Acting Commissioner, dated September 20, 1886, which is herewith submitted, marked Ex. No. 2, and made a part of this report.

It will be seen from this communication that the Government was indebted to the estate of Bonfoy at the date of the judgment in the sum of $5,999.43. This reduction of the amount found by us to be due was made by credits to the Government which we knew not of at the time we made up the account, nor are they contained in the data furnished by the Solicitor. This statement of the account, coming as it does through official sources and from official records, we, of course, adopt as more accurate than the result arrived at by us. In the trial of the suit at Tyler it appears that the defendants were forced to trial unprepared. (Ex. L, P, R, and S, pp. 69 to 78.) Execution was issued on the judgment and levied upon fifty-seven sections of land in Texas, formerly owned by William T. Scott, but sold and conveyed by him to a purchaser, not a party to the judgment, before the date of the judgment.

An equity suit was instituted on behalf of the United States at Austin, in the western district of Texas, for the discovery of fraud in Scott's conveyance, and dismissed on defendant's answer. (See Wood, 334.) Notwithstanding this proceeding, the land was offered for sale by the United States marshal and bought in by the Government, but no credit for the value of the same appears to have been entered on the judgment or claim against the defendants. In 1879 the records of the court at Tyler, including said judgment, returned executions, and all the file papers, were burned.

In 1881 the defendants, William T. Scott and William Umbdenstock, offered in compromise of said judgment $5,500, which, upon the recommendation of Edward Guthridge, esq., then United States attorney for the eastern district of Texas, was accepted by the Government. In 1884 a suit was instituted in the United States court at Jefferson, in the eastern district of Texas, to set aside said compromise on the ground that it was procured by fraud and bribery. (See copy of plaintiff's amended bill herewith submitted, and made a part of this report, marked Ex. Z.) The substance of this petition is, that the United States attorney, Edward Guthridge, was bribed by Scott and Umbdenstock to recommend said compromise, and that the statements made by him as to the solvency of the defendants were false. For a more comprehensive view of all the facts in this case, reference is respectfully made to the exhibits submitted and made a part of this report and marked No. 1, and from A to Z inclusive. The evidence is conclusive that at the time of Bonfoy's death the sureties used diligence in telegraphing the facts to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, and asking him to send an agent to take charge of the office and effects, which was not done, but the office books, papers, and money were forcibly taken in charge by Lieut. William Hawley, Twentieth United States Infantry, then commanding the post at Marshall (the State being under military rule), against the protest of the legal custodian, Deputy S. D. Wood, and the sureties. That Hawley refused to have the money, except that in the safe at the residence, counted, or to render the sureties any statement or account of the same, although frequently requested by them so to do.

The evidence abundantly shows that Hawley was a dissipated man, and used the "Bonfoy money" freely for gambling and other purposes; that his successor, Smith, was also a dissipated man, and loaned said money to individuals for speculation. That on the trial of the case against the sureties they were deprived of their defense by having, through mistake, presented their accounts and facts in favor of Bonfoy to the wrong officer at Washington for his action thereon, which was not known to the defendants until they had announced ready for trial. (See Ex. L, P, R, S, pp. 69 to 78.) For eight years after said judgment nothing had been realized thereon (barring the question to the title to the above-named land), although sundry executions had been issued. That at the time of the compromise the defendants were insolvent, and that said compromise was to the interest of the Government.

While we do not exonerate the late United States attorney, Edward Guthridge, from the grave charge of bribery, we can find no evidence showing that William T. Scott had any connection with, or knowledge of, the bribery.

We find no property belonging to the defendants, or either of them, subject to execution out of which said judgment or any part thereof can be made.

The defendants have answered the bill under oath denying the allegation of fraud and bribery, and we can find no evidence of the former and but meager of the latter, except the affidavits of Guthridge and Umbdenstock, which in their answer they attempt to explain away. (See Ex. Z and X.)

If the above facts are to be relied on—and they are taken from the official record and sworn statements of some of the best citizens in the community—the sureties on Bonfoy's bond have suffered great injustice and wrong at the hands of the Government.

In view of all the facts, after carefully considering the evidence, we respectfully recommend: (1) That the suit pending at Tyler to substitute the original judgment, and the suit pending at Jefferson to set aside the compromise recommended by the late United States attorney, Edward Guthridge, and accepted by the Government, be dismissed. (2) It would seem that justice demands that the $5,500 paid in compromise should be refunded to the sureties on Bonfoy's bond, and that the Government should, by some proper action, release the lands levied on by reason of the aforesaid execution.

We have the honor to be, very respectfully,

J. E. McCOMB,
United States Attorney, Eastern District of Texas.
 LEIGH CHALMERS,
Examiner, Department of Justice.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

 Washington, ———, —.

SIR: I desire again to call your attention to the salaries paid the six assistant attorneys of this Department, which are as follows:

Two assistant attorneys, each	$3,000
Three assistant attorneys, each	2,500
One assistant attorney	2,000

A brief reference to the duties and responsibilities of the positions at this time will, I think, convince you that the salaries paid are inadequate compensation for the services required.

In the first place they are, in connection with myself, charged with the whole responsibility of defending the Government in suits pending in the Court of Claims. There are now pending in that court about 4,500 cases, involving in the aggregate about $75,000,000 and also involving every conceivable legal question. The number is so great that no one man can by possibility become familiar with them all, and I therefore assign each case to which I do not give my personal attention to one of the assistant attorneys.

In the management of a case thus assigned the assistant attorney is necessarily intrusted with even a larger discretion than is usually allowed an attorney conducting the suit of a private individual. He has no client to furnish him with a theory of the case and the facts to maintain such theory, but must form his own conclusion as to the right of the case, and then must himself find and secure the evidence to maintain it. The cases originated in every part of this broad land, and a majority of them grow out of transactions so long past that it is extremely difficult to find any evidence to maintain the defense. On the other hand claimants and their attorneys have generally been preparing the evidence in their cases for long years, and are stimulated in the prosecution of the claim by the hope of a large pecuniary return for time and labor expended.

The best lawyers obtainable are prosecuting these claims against the Government, and in each of the many classes of cases to be defended the attorneys of the Government have to meet specialists who have devoted years with familiarizing themselves with the facts and the law pertaining thereto.

When inattention or incompetency on the part of a Government attorney in one case would cost the Government much more than the total reasonable annual compensation of the whole force, it would seem poor economy to provide so small a salary for assistant attorneys as to render their places undesirable by first-class lawyers.

In addition to the defense of suits in the Court of Claims, the assistant attorneys have been required by you to represent the Government in the prosecution of cases of special interest in the Federal courts of the States and Territories, the District of Columbia, and in the Supreme Court of the United States. You have also used them in the preparation and dispatch of the legal questions that have been presented for your solution.

All in all, it is certain that no lawyers in the United States are charged with the conduct of more important legal business than are the assistant attorneys of this Department. Their duties are never done; but from one year's end to the other their whole time is demanded for and given to the service of the Government.

What might have been a fair compensation in years past, when the business in this Department was less and the whole time of the assistant attorneys was not demanded for the performance of any official duty, I am not prepared to say; but at this time, when the business of the Court of Claims has been so largely increased by the Bowman act and the French Spoliation act, and when the range of service of the assistant attorneys has been so much enlarged by your policy of requiring assistant attorneys to conduct cases heretofore in charge of special attorneys, I am sure that their compensation should be at least $4,000 a year each. Required to live in the city of Washington, and serving the Government in this most important and responsible position, they are not to-day able to comfortably maintain themselves and their families with the compensation allowed.

The result of the policy pursued in fixing compensation of assistant attorneys is to make the positions undesirable by the best lawyers for permanent occupation. When good lawyers accept the positions it is for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the practice in the courts and Departments of the capital city. With that familiarity acquired, their services will command from claimants a fair compensation.

I think it poor policy that these positions should be held as mere training schools when it is of vast importance to the Government that they should be filled by the ablest lawyers in the land.

The record of the Court of Claims at its last session shows that 427 cases were disposed of, involving $17,724,828.46.

Is it not wise to make a fair appropriation for obtaining first-class legal talent to represent the Government in the settlement of such large interests?

I hand you herewith a letter which Chief Justice Richardson of the Court of Claims addressed to Senator E. C. Walthall, of Mississippi, with reference to the subject-matter of this communication.

I earnestly recommend to the Attorney-General, for his recommendation, that the salaries of these officers be placed at, at least, $4,000 a year.

Respectfully,

ROBERT A. HOWARD,
Assistant Attorney-General.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

COURT OF CLAIMS CHAMBER,
Washington, June 18, 1886.

MY DEAR SIR: I have received your letter of yesterday's date, asking information as to the assistants to the Attorney-General, employed to defend the interests of the United States in this court, with a view to the increase of salaries.

I am happy to say that all the assistants perform their duties with signal ability, earnestness and fidelity, and in my opinion merit liberal salaries. Immense interests are intrusted to their hands, not only in the ordinary duties of trying cases of great magnitude in court, but in hunting up evidence all over the country, and in which they do not have the ordinary assistance of clients. There is plenty of business to keep them employed all the time, and so far as I can judge they are so employed.

The business of the present session of the court has involved many million dollars, and has required the very best professional skill.

Each of several cases have been of such magnitude that, had they been between private parties, the counsel employed would no doubt have commanded more than the combined salaries of all the assistants. The responsibility is of the gravest professional kind.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM A. RICHARDSON,
Chief Justice, &c.

Hon. E. C. WALTHALL.

EXHIBIT V.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, October 20, 1886.

SIR: In the organization of the Department of Justice, an officer is deputed to the other Departments as the legal representative and counsellor-at-law to assist in their administration.

The assistant of the Attorney-General thus assigned for duty in the Department of State is styled the "Examiner of Claims," but this title does not disclose the extensive and important nature of his duties, and the functions he is called upon to perform.

The cases submitted to this officer for his examination and report include claims of our citizens upon foreign Governments, and likewise claims presented through foreign ministers against the Government of the United States.

Properly to investigate, and still more to decide upon, such cases, involves a wide and thorough knowledge of diplomatic history, international law, and precedent.

Such tasks cannot be safely and properly committed to a mere examiner, but call for the judgment of a learned and independent jurist.

Happily for the public interest, a gentleman is now employed in this Department as its Solicitor, or Examiner of Claims, as he is variously styled, who possesses in a high degree the qualifications—educational, intellectual, and moral—needful for the proper discharge of the duties he is called upon almost daily to perform.

Dr. Francis Wharton was presented by you upon my recommendation, and appointed by the President in April, 1885, and I cannot too highly speak of his services since he entered the office.

The amount of salary appropriated for this office, under existing law, is $3,500, and I respectfully submit that it should be raised to $5,000 per annum, the same as the Assistant Attorney-General.

This is not only an act of justice to the individual, but of obvious official propriety.

Very respectfully, yours,

T. F. BAYARD.

Hon. A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General.

The first of the two main objects of the Commission was to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the Crown, and to determine the value of the same. The second object was to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the private owners, and to determine the value of the same. The Commission was also required to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the private owners, and to determine the value of the same.

The Commission was also required to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the private owners, and to determine the value of the same. The Commission was also required to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the private owners, and to determine the value of the same. The Commission was also required to ascertain the extent of the land which was then in the hands of the private owners, and to determine the value of the same.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
J. H. H. H. H.

EXHIBITS ACCOMPANYING STATEMENT OF REFUNDS FOR FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1886.

EXHIBIT 1.—Tin-Plates coated with Varnish.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 7, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 9th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (8610*k*) of R. F. Downing & Co., from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 2½ cents per pound on certain lacquered tin-plates imported per "Servia," in September last, which the appellants claim to be dutiable at the rate of 1 cent per pound.

It appears that the merchandise consists of the ordinary tin-plates of commerce, which are coated with a thin varnish or lacquer to represent brass, for use in the manufacture of tin cans, boxes, signs, &c., and that you classified it (under T. I., new, 151) as sheet-iron, common or black, thinner than No. 25, wire-gauge, at 1½ cents per pound, with ¾ cent per pound additional, under the further provision for all such iron, except what is "known commercially as tin-plates * * * when galvanized with zinc, or spelter, or other metals, or any alloy of those metals."

This Department regards the article as that commodity commercially known as "tin-plates," which is expressly excepted from the rates of duty prescribed in T. I., new, 151; and the fact that it has been dipped in a cheap varnish or lacquer (nowise resembling the coating with zinc, or spelter, or other metals, or any alloy of those metals) does not operate to divest it of its character as "tin-plates," or to render it dutiable under any provision of the tariff other than that (T. I., new, 153) which prescribes a duty of 1 cent per pound on "iron-plates coated with lead or tin * * * commercially known as tin-plates."

The Department therefore decides that the appeal is well taken, and directs you to reliquidate the entry accordingly, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 2.—Refund of Duties Exacted on Natural Mineral Waters where Invoice was Not Accompanied by Certificate of Owner of Spring.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, September 18, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of a letter, dated the 24th ultimo, from the United States attorney at San Francisco, transmitting a certified copy of the judgment-roll in the case of Emile Pascal et al. vs. Philip A. Roach, administrator of the estate of E. L. Sullivan, late collector of customs at your port.

The suit was brought to recover certain duties collected by Sullivan on an importation of Apollinaris mineral water, which had been returned by the proper officials as a natural mineral water, exempt from duty under the statutes, but which was charged with the duty prescribed for artificial mineral water, because the invoice was not accompanied by a certificate of the owner or manager of the spring, as required by Department's ruling of April 9, 1879. (Synopsis, 3963.)

The case was tried on demurrer filed by the defendant, and the court, in rendering judgment for the plaintiffs, filed an opinion to the effect that the determination by the collector that the water was artificial in consequence of the failure of the plaintiffs to produce the prescribed certificate was not conclusive of the rights of the plaintiffs, and that they were not restricted to the certificate of the owner of the spring in showing the character of the waters imported.

The case was referred to the United States Attorney General, who, on the 14th instant, advises that in such opinion he entirely concurs, and he certifies, under the act of March 3, 1875, that no appeal or writ of error will be taken by the United States in such suit.

The Department acquiesces in such opinion, and you are therefore authorized to take the necessary steps for the settlement of the judgment as soon as it shall be entered on the records of the court.

You are also directed to apply the decision to all similar pending cases, where the requirements of law as to protest, appeal, institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with, and where the records of your office show that the production of the certificate mentioned in the said ruling (Synopsis, 3933) was not necessary to establish the fact that the importation consisted of natural mineral waters.

You will also cause the practice at your port on further importations of such merchandise to conform to this decision, the ruling 3963, in the particular mentioned, being reversed and set aside.

Very respectfully,

DANIEL MANNING,
Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, San Francisco, Cal.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 17, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, transmitting the appeals (8579 m and 8580 m) of Messrs. W. H. Schieffelin & Co. from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called pepsin, ginger-ale extract, and ginger ale essence imported into your port per "City of Chicago," March 3, 1885, and "Lepanto," April 25, 1885, which the appellants claim to be liable to duty as follows: The pepsin and ginger-ale extract at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision of Schedule A (T. I., new, 93) for medicinal preparations of which alcohol is not a component part, and the ginger-ale essence at the rate of $2 per gallon for the alcohol contained therein and 25 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in same schedule (T. I., new, 103) for alcoholic compounds not otherwise specially enumerated or provided for.

The appraiser reports that the said articles are not proprietary articles; that they were erroneously classified as proprietary medicines, at the said duty of 50 per cent. ad valorem, and that, in fact, they are subject to the rates of duty above mentioned, as claimed by the appellants.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entries accordingly and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties exacted.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 4.—Gold Pens.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 1, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 25th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (9241^k) of A. J. Pulsford from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 45 per cent ad valorem on certain gold pens imported per City of Berlin, May 13, 1884, which the appellant claims to be dutiable at the rate of 12 cents per gross.

The articles, the appraiser reports, are commercially known as gold pens, and are dutiable at the rate of 12 cents per gross, under the special provision in Schedule C, for "pens, metallic."

The Department concurs with the appraiser in such opinion, and you are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entry accordingly.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 5.—*Edible Beans—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 1, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of a letter from the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, dated the 13th ultimo, further relating to the trial of the suit (N. S. 9295) of Windmüller et al. against Robertson, which involved the question as to the classification under the tariff acts of imported edible beans.

The verdict in the case sustained one of the claims of the plaintiffs, and holds that edible beans are subject to a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in Schedule G. (T. I., new, 286), for "vegetables in their natural state * * * not specially enumerated or provided for."

The matter has been referred to the Solicitor of the Treasury and the United States Attorney-General, and both of these officers advise that the result of the trial be acquiesced in.

You are, therefore, directed to take the necessary steps for the payment of the judgment in the said case, when it shall be entered of record, and also for the settlement of all other similar suits now pending at your port, where the requirements of law as to protest, appeal, institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with.

You will also apply the decision to all unliquidated entries, as well as to future importations of such merchandise. Care will be taken to see that these instructions are only applied to cases where the protest or appeal is sufficient and claims 10 per cent. ad valorem to be the rate of duty, as decided by the court.

Edible peas are considered as being embraced within the same category as beans, and you will, therefore, consider these instructions as also applying to that commodity.

Very respectfully,

DANIEL MANNING,
Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 6.—*Dandelion Root and Chinoidine.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 18, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, transmitting the appeal (9583^k) of W. H. Schieffelin & Co. from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 2 cents per pound on certain so-called dandelion root, and 25 per cent. ad valorem on certain chinoidine imported per steamer "Leerdam" July 10, 1883.

Your assessment of duty at the rate of 2 cents per pound on the dandelion root, being in accordance with the provisions of Schedule G. (T. I., new, 290) and the principle contained in Department's decision of July 3, 1877 (Synopsis, 3289), is hereby affirmed.

The appraiser, in his special report, forwarded with your letter, states that the "chinoidine" is a salt of cinchonidia, and that, under the rule applied in Department's decision of September 11, 1883 (Synopsis, 5901), it is exempt from duty.

You are therefore authorized to take measures for refunding the duty exacted on this last mentioned article.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 7.—*Locust or St. John Beans.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 24, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 29th of January last, reporting upon the appeal (3160^k) of Horwitz & Neustadt from your assessment of duty at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called locust or St. John beans, imported per "Germania," from Trieste, November 21, 1884, and returned by the appraiser as a non-enumerated unmanufactured article, not otherwise provided for. The St. John bean is the pod of a plant which contains a seed. The seed itself is not edible, but the pod is used for food. In the free list of the Revised Statutes St. John beans are named as exempt from duty, but there is no specific provision in the present tariff for their classification. They are not vegetables, and hardly assimilate to vegetables in their uses. They are more in the nature of a fruit, and in the opinion of the Department should be classified under Section 2499, by assimilation to fruits not otherwise provided for, mentioned in paragraph 704 of the free list of the act of March 3, 1883, and so exempt from duty.

You will readjust the entry accordingly, and take the necessary steps to refund the duties exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 8.—Brass Buttons, Hair Pins, and Glass-Headed Pins.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 11, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo further reporting on the appeals (8588^k) of A. Steinhardt & Bro., per Ems, August 11, and (8589^k and 8590^k) of H. Wolff & Co., per Labrador, June 25, and Elbe, June 30, 1884, from your assessment of duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem on certain buttons, hair pins, and pins imported as aforesaid, which the appellants claim to be dutiable—the buttons at 35 per cent., and the hair pins and pins at 30 per cent. ad valorem.

With regard to the buttons which the appraiser returns as brass buttons and the hair pins, your decision, being in accordance with synopses, 6019, 6495, and 5989 is hereby affirmed.

As to the other pins, it appears, upon an inspection of samples, that they consist of ordinary black pins, with glass heads, inserted in cards, which are intended to be used for similar purposes as the ordinary solid-headed pins, that is to say, for temporarily fastening or pinning together articles of clothing worn on the person. Some of them are larger than the ordinary pins, but all of them partake of the same general character, and are in fact nothing but “pins.”

In this view the Department decided on the 5th of February last, by a letter addressed to the Collector of Customs at Boston, that glass-headed pins of this sort are dutiable at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision (T. I., new, 209), for “pins solid-head or other.”

You will reliquidate the entries so far as they relate to such pins, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 9.—Proprietary and Medicinal Preparations.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 2, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 26th of January last, transmitting the following appeals of Messrs. E. Fougere & Co., from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem, upon certain so-called “medicinal preparations” imported by them in the vessels named, viz:

* * * * *

The goods were returned by the appraiser at your port as “proprietary medicines,” dutiable under T. I., new, 99.

After a careful examination of the samples submitted, in connection with reports made after similar examinations by the Surgeon-General of the Marine Hospital Service and the appraisers at your port and at Boston, the Department is of the opinion that the following preparations are entitled to classification, under T. I., new, 93, at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, as medicinal preparations, to wit: Granules of proto-iodine of mercury; iron pills; powdered pepsin.

That the following preparations are dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 92, as chemical compounds, in accordance with Department's decision of April 8, 1884, (Synopsis, 6291) viz: Sels Mineraux Waters; Sels Mineraux Waters de Vichy; Sels Naturel Sainte Marie.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entries in which these articles are comprised, in accordance with the foregoing, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

The article Bouquet Cénanthique des Vins, which comes without any directions for use or any description of its character, other than its title, which implies that it is a proprietary preparation, its apparent use being that of imparting a grape flavor to imitation claret wines, is dutiable at 50 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 99, as a proprietary preparation.

The same classification is applicable to the article Café Nigro, extract of coffee, a sample of which appears among the others, but which is not enumerated in any of the reports received in this case.

The remaining articles, according to the samples received (many of which do not appear in the list furnished by the appraiser at your port), are dutiable as proprietary preparations, at 50 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 99, and Department's decision (Synopsis, 4142, 4809, and 6687).

Some of these articles appear as pharmaceutical preparations in the French Codex, but in all such cases the manufacturers claim special virtues for the articles as manufactured under their own management, according to methods and formulæ unknown to others, and this they attempt to protect by trade-marks, signatures, patents, &c. Such articles are proprietary under the principles laid down in Department's decision of December 18, 1884 (Synopsis, 6687).

The following is a list of the articles dutiable as proprietary preparations, under T. I., new, 99:

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 10.—Roasted Maize—Duty on.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 13, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, transmitting the appeal (37 m) of Mr. R. Hardcastle from your assessment of duty at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called "patent roasted maize" imported, per "Adriatic," April 21, 1885, and returned by the appraiser at your port as a proprietary article, dutiable under T. I., new, 99.

According to Department's decision of May 20 last (Synopsis, 6926), the rate of duty provided for in T. I., new, 99, applies only to such proprietary preparations as are of a medicinal character, including toilet preparations.

The appraiser reports that the article in question is not of a medicinal character, and it is evidently not a toilet preparation, hence it is not properly dutiable under T. I., new, 99.

The Department concurs with the appraiser in the opinion that, having been subjected to a manufacturing process by roasting, the article is not the "maize" provided for by T. I., new, 263, at the rate of 10 cents per bushel, but that it more properly falls within the provisions of section 2513, Revised Statutes, as a non-enumerated manufactured article, dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem.

You are authorized to readjust the entry accordingly, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 11.—*Night-Tapers.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 26, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 3d instant, reporting on the appeal (3124 l) of Lehn & Fink from your assessment of duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem on certain "night-tapers" imported at your port, per "Frisia," May 19, 1885.

From an inspection of the sample submitted, it appears that the article consists of boxes containing a large number of wax-tapers, a pair of tin pincers, and one three-pronged piece of tin, each prong being inserted in a piece of cork, the centre of the piece of tin being perforated for the purpose of holding a small wax-taper, which is inserted in a disk of wood, the object being to allow the end of the taper to reach through to a dish of oil, in which the whole apparatus floats.

Duty was assessed at the rate above specified under the provisions of T. I., new, 216, for "manufactures, articles, or wares not specially enumerated or provided for * * * composed wholly or in part of * * * metal," and you cite Department's decisions (Synopsis, 6986, and Synopsis, 6994) in support of your action in the premises.

After due consideration, the Department is of opinion that these decisions cannot apply in this case, for the reason that the articles are specially provided for in the existing tariff acts, under the clause T. I., new, 408, which imposes duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem on "tapers of all kinds," as claimed by the appellants.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entry, and to take measures for refunding the excessive duties exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 12.—*White-Lead ground in Oil, in Tubes.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 4, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 8th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (3434 l) of Messrs. G. A. & E. Meyer from your assessment of duty at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called "white-lead" imported per "Gallia," February 7 and March 13, 1884.

The appraiser at your port reports that the article is white-lead prepared in oil, and put up in tubes for artists' use, and is similar in character to that held in Synopsis, 5951, October 31, 1883, to be dutiable under T. I., new, 87, at 25 per cent. ad valorem.

By reference to that decision, it will be found that "white-lead" does not constitute one of the colors embraced therein.

White-lead, when ground or mixed in oil, is specifically provided for in T. I., new, 56, at the rate of 3 cents per pound, and by Department's decision of June 15, 1875, (Synopsis, 2299,) it was held that a similar provision in the old tariff (T. I., old, 439) excluded white-lead from the classification of painters' colors, and that it remained subject to the specific duty provided therefor, no matter in what form imported.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entries on the basis indicated, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 13.—*Manufactures of Paper.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, October 14, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 4th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (2366 m) of Wm. Phillipson from your assessment of duty at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem on certain merchandise imported by him, per "India," July 22, 1885, and returned by the appraiser at your port as papier-maché, dutiable under the provisions of T. I., new, 472.

A sample of the merchandise has been forwarded to the collector of customs at

New York, and from his report and the report of the appraiser at his port thereon, it appears that it consists of several sheets of paper pasted together, and then pressed in a mould, and thus formed into an ornamental design for decorative purposes.

The material used in the manufacture of said sample is paper, and in its present condition it is simply a manufacture of paper, dutiable as such, at 15 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 388.

The appraiser at said port reports that paper-maché is an entirely different substance, made of paper pulp which is prepared by the addition of an extra proportion of glue size, so that, when pressed into moulds, &c., it forms a hard, substantial substance resembling wood in its uses.

This view accords with the opinion of the Department, and it is therefore held that the appeal is well taken.

You will reliquidate the entry on the basis indicated, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, Chicago, Ill.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 23, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letters of December 8 and 9 last, transmitting the appeals (2477 k and 2478 k) of Messrs. Marshall Field & Co., from your assessment of duty at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called "cotton braids" imported, per "Rhein" and "Ems," and transported to your port under immediate-transportation entries Nos. 10344 and 8645, and returned by the appraiser at your port as "cotton trimmings," under T. I., new, 325.

The appraiser at Boston reports that he should classify such articles as cotton trimmings; that they are not commonly called "braids," but are sometimes so called; that they are used for trimmings, and for no other purpose.

The appraiser at New York reports that the goods, although denominated "novelty braids," "feather-edge braids," &c., and commercially known as such, are not, in fact, made upon a braiding machine, nor are they cotton trimmings, but are used in the manufacture of trimmings, and that such goods are classified at that port as "manufactures of cotton," under T. I., new, 324.

From an inspection of the samples submitted, it appears that the goods are not trimmings, not being in condition to be used as such without further manufacture, but that they are a manufacture of cotton not otherwise provided for.

It is apparent, also, that they are commercially known as "braids," though not made on a braiding-machine.

The duties on "cotton braids" and manufactures of cotton not otherwise provided for are both provided for under T. I., new, 324, at 35 per cent. ad valorem.

The Department holds that the appeals are well taken, and you will accordingly reliquidate the entries on the basis indicated, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. E. COON,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, Chicago, Ill.

EXHIBIT 15.—Free Entry—"Bragg's Charcoal."

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, October 15, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, transmitting the appeal (3455 m) of R. F. Arnold & Co. from your assessment of duty at the rate of * * * 40(?) per cent. ad valorem, on certain * * * "Bragg's charcoal" imported, per "Grecian Monarch," March 24, 1885, and returned by the appraiser at your port as a proprietary medicine, dutiable under T. I., new, 99.
* * * * *

The appraiser reports that the so-called Bragg's charcoal is simply pure charcoal, to which the maker's name has been attached for the purpose of identification; that it is not prepared according to any secret formula, nor are there any special claims made for it as a remedy or specific for disease.

The Department accordingly holds that the appeal is well taken, and you are authorized to reliquidate the entry free of duty as to said charcoal, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 16.—Raffia—Duty on.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 18, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (7543 m) of Mr. W. W. Rawson from your assessment of duty at the rate of $15 per ton on certain raffia imported, per "Boston City," September 25, last, and returned by the appraiser at your port as a vegetable substance not specially enumerated or provided for, and dutiable under T. I., new, 333.

It appears that the article in question is a grass grown in Madagascar, and imported usually by gardeners and seedsmen for tying up plants, &c.

The appellant claims that the article is entitled to free entry under the provisions of T. I., new, 636, as a "crude dried vegetable fibre, not edible."

The Department is of the opinion that the claim of the appellant is well founded, and that the article in question should be admitted to free entry under the paragraph cited, and in accordance with the Department's decision of April 11, 1884, (Synopsis 6293,) on istle-grass.

You are authorized to reliquidate the entry free of duty, and take the necessary steps for refunding the duty exacted.

Respectfully yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, Boston, Mass.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 22, 1885.

SIR: The Department duly received your letter of October 30, last, transmitting the appeal (5448 m) of T. C. Dempsey from your assessment of duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 215, on certain so-called crude mineral substances imported at your port October 10, last, and which the appellant claims to be entitled to free entry, under the provisions of the free-list, T. I., new, 621, as manganese ore.

The sample received with your letter was referred to the collector at New York, and, from his report and the reports of the appraiser and chemist at that port, it would appear that the article in question contains 67 per cent. of metallic manganese and $\frac{9}{10}$ per cent. of metallic iron.

In accordance with the rule laid down in Department's decision of July 28, 1879, (Synopsis 4114,) the article is manganese ore, and as such entitled to free entry, under T. I., new, 621.

Respectfully yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 18.—*Seeds, Mangel-Wurzel and Turnip—Free; Beet and Cabbage—Dutiable as Garden-Seeds.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 14, 1886.

SIR: The United States Supreme Court in the October term, 1885, confirmed the decision of the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Michigan in the case of D. M. Ferry & Co. vs. William Livingston, jr., collector, which involved the proper classification of certain seeds imported at your port by said firm, and embraced in their appeals 4266 k and 4267 k, submitted by you on January 3, 1885.

Under said decision it was held that mangel-wurzel and turnip-seeds are not subject to duty as garden-seeds, but are exempt from duty under the provision in the free-list, act of March 3, 1883 (T. I., new, 760), for "seeds of all kinds, except medicinal seeds, not specially enumerated or provided for," and that beet and cabbage seeds are dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in paragraph 465 of said act for "garden-seeds."

You are, therefore, authorized * * * to accept the decision of the courts as a rule of action in similar cases.

Respectfully yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, Detroit, Mich.

EXHIBIT 19.—*Fossil-Meal, or Kieselguhr—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 31, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of letters from the United States attorney at New York, dated the 1st and 22d instant, respectively, with regard to the case (N. S., 9252) of August Giese et al. vs. Wm. H. Robertson, collector, &c., lately tried at your port before Judge Wallace and a jury, in the United States circuit court.

The case involved the proper rate of duty on so-called "fossil-meal," or "kieselguhr," imported by the plaintiffs from Germany, which, it is understood, consisted of a compound article containing about 95 per cent. of infusorial earth and 5 per cent. of cow's hair and Irish moss.

It was classified by the defendant (collector) as a manufactured article not otherwise provided for, subject to duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under section 2513, Revised Statutes, as contained in act of March 3, 1883, while the plaintiffs (importers) claimed that it was dutiable at the rate of $3 per ton, under the provision in Schedule A, T. I., new, 98, for "all earths or clays, wrought or manufactured, not specially enumerated or provided for in this act."

Upon the trial of the case, the United States attorney reports that the plaintiffs proved that the article was an earth, wrought or manufactured; that earth was the principal component, and that the hair and moss were simply added in order to enable the earth to be put to the service for which it was intended—that is to say, that the earth contained the non-conducting and non-radiating properties, and that the hair and moss were simply to bind it together and to affix it to the pipes and boilers (for which the article is intended as a sort of a cement) in the shape of a mortar.

He further reports that the question, being one of fact, was left by the judge to the jury to determine; that a verdict was rendered for the plaintiffs, thus holding, in effect, that the article was substantially a wrought, manufactured earth, and dutiable at the rate of $3 per ton; and that, in his opinion, the verdict was correct, and that the decision should be acquiesced in.

The Solicitor of the Treasury, in a communication dated the 18th instant, also advises acquiescence in the said decision.

Upon submitting the matter to the United States Attorney-General, under section 1 of the act of March 3, 1875, that officer advises, under date of the 28th instant, that no appeal or writ of error should be taken by the United States in said case.

You are, therefore, instructed to take the necessary steps for the payment of the judgment as soon as it shall be entered of record, and to forward to the Department the usual certified statement for its payment.

Respectfully yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 20.—*Scrap Books—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, September 5, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 18th ultimo, submitting the appeal (1444 m) of Davis Bros., Toklas & Co. from your assessment of duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem on certain scrap-books imported by them (entry No. 163) July 6, 1885, and classified as "bound blank books."

Under date of February 16, 1875 (Synopsis, 2109), the Department decided that scrap-books or scrap-albums were not "blank books" in the sense contemplated by the statute, but were dutiable according to the materials of which they were composed.

In the present case the importers claim that the books are dutiable at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem, as "manufactures of paper," and their claim appears to be well founded.

You are hereby authorized to readjust the entry at that rate, and to take measures for refunding the excess of duty.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, San Francisco, Cal.

EXHIBIT 21.—*Loop or Button Needles—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 16, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, submitting the appeal (2744) of Messrs. J. W. Hampton, jr., & Co. from your assessment of duty on certain needles (so called) imported by them, per "British Princess," January 18, 1886, and classified as "manufactures of steel."

From an examination of the sample submitted and the report of the appraiser, it appears that the articles are known as loop-needles, and consist of a sharp-pointed steel instrument which terminates in a flat loop at one end, and is used for fastening buttons on shoes, the buttons being hooked in the loop and the shank drawn through the leather, where it is secured by a wire or otherwise.

The articles being in fact needles, are entitled to entry at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision for "needles, sewing, darning, knitting, and all others not specially enumerated or provided for."

You are therefore authorized to readjust the entry and to take measures for refunding the excess of duty.

Respectfully yours,

W. E. SMITH,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 22.—*Cartons and other inside Coverings.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., February 2, 1886.

Appended hereto will be found a copy of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the suit of Oberteuffer et al. vs. Robertson, which involved the question as to the liability to duty of cartons and other inside coverings of imported merchandise, and the cost of packing the same in the outside packages.

The merchandise which was the subject of the suit consisted of gloves and hosiery put up in cartons or paper boxes of one-half dozen and one dozen pairs each. The importers (plaintiffs) on making entry at the custom-house excluded the cost of such cartons and packing charges, while the appraiser in returning the dutiable value of the goods added to such entered value the cost of the cartons and packing, whereupon duty was assessed by the collector on the addition thus made.

It will be seen that the Supreme Court now decides that such action on the part of the appraiser and collector was erroneous, and that under the provisions of section 7 of the act of March 3, 1883, neither the cost of the cartons, and other inside coverings, nor the charges incident to the packing of goods for shipment are elements of dutiable value.

The rule thus laid down in this decision will be applied to all future importations and unliquidated entries, and also to all entries where the requirements of law as to protest, appeal, institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with.

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

To COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS AND OTHERS.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. 1192.—OCTOBER TERM, 1885.

Reece M. Oberteuffer et al., Plaintiffs in Error, vs. William H. Robertson, Collector of the Port of New York.	}	In error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

[January 25th, 1886.]

Mr. JUSTICE BLATCHFORD delivered the opinion of the court.

This is an action brought in a State court in New York, by Reece M. Oberteuffer, Henry Abegg, and Henry H. Daeniker, composing the mercantile firm of Oberteuffer, Abegg & Daeniker, against William H. Robertson, collector of the port of New York, to recover $140.80 as an excess of duties, paid on coverings and putting up charges on hosiery and gloves, on which ad valorem duties were imposed by law. It was removed into the circuit court of the United States by the defendant. At the trial the jury rendered a verdict for the defendant, by direction of the court, and there was a judgment for him, for costs, to review which the plaintiffs have brought a writ of error.

In July, 1883, the plaintiffs imported from Bremen 2 cases of wool gloves, Nos. 4836, 4837; 21 cases of cotton hosiery, Nos. 4852 to 4872; and one other case of cotton hosiery, No. 168. There were three invoices covered by one entry.

The invoice of the two cases of gloves was dated at Leipzig and Chemnitz, in Saxony, June 29th, 1883, and was of goods purchased by the plaintiffs. It covered 500 dozen of gloves, in 5 items, the prices of which per dozen were given, and amounted to 2,415 marks. There was a deduction of 3 per cent. discount for cash, or 72 marks, 45 pfennigs, leaving 2,342 marks, 55 pfennigs. There was then added, under the item of "packing charges," 25 marks "for cases," 220 marks "boxes," and 5 marks "packing," being a total of 250 marks, less 3 per cent. discount for cash, or 7 marks, 50 pfennigs, leaving 242 marks, 50 pfennigs, which added made 2,585 marks, 05 pfennigs. In the entry, the value was stated at 2,342 marks, 55 pfennigs.

The invoice of the 21 cases of hosiery was dated at Leipzig and Chemnitz, in Saxony, July 5th, 1883, and was of goods purchased by the plaintiffs. It covered 2,949 dozen of hose, in 21 items, the prices of which per dozen were given, and amounted to 13,530 marks, 70 pfennigs. There was a deduction of 3 per cent. discount for cash, or 405 marks, 95 pfennigs, leaving 13,124 marks, 75 pfennigs. There was then added, under the item of "packing charges," 420 marks "for cases," 1,204 marks, 50 pfennigs "boxes," and 42 marks "packing," being a total of 1,666 marks, 50 pfennigs, less 3 per cent. discount for cash, or 50 marks, leaving 1,616 marks, 50 pfennigs, which added made 14,741 marks, 25 pfennigs. In the entry the value was stated at 13,124 marks, 75 pfennigs.

The invoice of the one case of hosiery was dated at Hohenstein, Ernstthal, in Saxony, July 4th, 1883, and was of goods consigned to the plaintiffs for sale. It covered 178 dozen of hose, in 6 items, the prices of which per dozen were given, and amounted to 1,629 marks, 20 pfennigs. There was a deduction of 4 per cent. discount for cash, or 65 marks, 20 pfennigs, leaving 1,564 marks. There was then deducted, for "case" 10 marks; "freight from Hohenstein to Bremen," 15 marks; "and to New York," 29 marks; "consul fees," 10 marks, 75 pfennigs; and "insurance," 10 marks, 25 pfennigs; being a total of 75 marks, less 4 per cent. discount for cash, or 3 marks, leaving 72 marks, which deducted left 1,492 marks; which was the value stated in the entry.

On the invoice of the 2 cases of gloves the report of the appraiser was that 225 marks, (being the 220 marks for "boxes" and the 5 marks for "packing,") less importer's discount, should be added "to make market value in marketable condition." This was done, and the duty paid on the added amount was $20.80.

On the invoice of the 21 cases of hosiery the report of the appraiser was that 1,246 marks, 50 pfennigs, (being the 1,204 marks, 50 pfennigs, for "boxes," and the 42 marks for "packing,") less importer's discount, should be added "to make market value in marketable condition." This was done, and the duty paid on the added amount was $114.80.

On the invoice of the one case of hosiery, the report of the appraiser was that 30 pfennigs per dozen should be added "to make market value in marketable condition." This was done, and the duty paid on the added amount was $5.20.

The importers filed a protest with the collector in due time, and duly appealed to the Secretary of the Treasury, and brought suit in due time. The protest covered the entry in this case and was as follows: "We protest against the liquidation, as made by you, of our entries of merchandise, below referred to, and against the payment of the duties exacted thereon, and exacted on the charges, of whatever nature, thereon, on the following grounds, and upon each and every one of them:

"First. That, under the act of March 3, 1883, the cost or market value of said merchandise is alone dutiable, whereas, in ascertaining the dutiable value thereof, there has been illegally estimated and included, as a part of such value, charges expressly declared by section 7 of said act to be non-dutiable.

"Second. That, under the act of March 3, 1883, only the value of said cotton hose or other merchandise is dutiable, whereas the value of the usual and necessary sacks, crates, boxes, and other coverings have been estimated as part of the value of said goods, in determining the amount of duties for which they should be liable, contrary to the provisions of section 7, act March 3, 1883.

"Third. By the act of March 3, 1883, all duties heretofore exacted upon charges incurred in the importation of merchandise are repealed, but there has been included, in estimating the dutiable value of said goods, actual, usual, and necessary charges for putting up, preparing, and packing said merchandise, and we hereby separately and distinctly protest against all duties assessed by reason of such additions to the actual cost or market value of the actual merchandise imported.

"Fourth. That, under the act of March 3, 1883, said cotton hose or other merchandise are only dutiable at their first cost or net market value in principal markets of countries whence exported, whereas the appraiser, in fixing the dutiable value of said merchandise, has illegally estimated and included as a part of such value the charges for finishing and putting up said merchandise, or one or more of said charges.

"Fifth. That the dutiable value of said merchandise is its cost or true market value, at the date of its exportation, in the principal markets of the country whence it was exported, free of charges, but you have assessed a duty thereon upon a valuation in excess of such net cost or value.

"Sixth. We further protest against the duty assessed hereon, claiming that, for reasons heretofore set forth, the net invoice or entered value is the true legal value upon which the duties should have been assessed, and that the additions made to such value are made contrary to the statutes of the United States, in that non-dutiable charges have been reckoned as a part of the dutiable value of said goods.

"And we give notice that we pay all higher duties or rates than is claimed above as the legal duty, under compulsion, and to obtain and keep quiet possession of our goods; and we also give notice that we do not intend by this protest to relinquish or waive any right we may have to a refund of the difference between the duty exacted of us and any less duty which may hereafter be adjudged the legal duty upon said goods, intending this protest to be made against the present duty charged upon said goods, claiming that said duty is not the legal duty to which said goods are chargeable, holding you and the Government responsible for all excess of duty exacted by you upon said goods above the legal duty, and protesting against all illegal exactions of duty thereon, and hereby give notice that we intend this protest to apply to all future similar importations by us, and also intend the duplicate protest herewith submitted for transmission by you to the Secretary of the Treasury, under the rules of your office, to be an appeal to him from your decision, and to likewise apply to all future similar importations by us."

The main question involved in the the case is as to whether it was lawful to impose duties on the items for "boxes" and "packing" in the invoices of the 2 cases and the 21 cases, and on the item added to the invoice of the one case, which item was one for like boxes and packing. There was no duty charged on the outside packing case. The "boxes" in question were paper boxes or cartons, which contained the goods, and were themselves packed in the outside case, and the item for "packing" was for packing the goods in the cartons and lining the outside case and packing the cartons in it. The cartons contained some of them a dozen, and some a half dozen, pairs of the articles. The outside case had a lining of heavy paper or oil-cloth, to protect the goods from sea-water. Some of the cartons had a partition running through the middle, with half a dozen pairs of the articles on each side of the partition; some had a dozen pairs in each carton; and some had half a dozen pairs in each carton. The prices affixed to the gloves and hosiery bought, in the invoices of them, represent the prices of the goods, without case, or cartons or packing. The plaintiffs paid not only for the goods, but for the cases, the cartons and the packing, paying a price per dozen of the goods, which covered the cases, the cartons and the packing, which price was 50 pfennigs higher per dozen of the goods than if there had been no cartons. In the invoice of the one case, the prices affixed are the prices for the goods, including, in fact, the items deducted on the invoice, and also the charge for cartons, which charge was not deducted on the invoice, although there is nothing on the invoice to show that that charge was part of the price. The cartons are for the convenience of the trade, in transporting the goods, and preserving them, and handling them, and counting them; and the cartons go with the goods in them, until they become empty through the sale of their contents in the United States, to consumers who buy at retail, for use. The cartons have labels on, showing the article, and the style, and the size, and the quantity.

The contention of the plaintiffs is, that, by virtue of section 7 of the act of March 3d, 1883 (22 Stat., 523), referred to in the protest, it was unlawful to exact duty on the value of the cartons and the packing; that, in respect to the invoice of the one case, the addition made was for cartons already included in the entered value; and that it was error to direct a verdict for the defendant.

Before examining the provisions of the act of 1883, it will serve to make a determination of their meaning more easy if it is distinctly seen what were the enactments in force on the subject at the time that act was passed.

By section 7 of the act of March 3d, 1865 (13 Stat., 493), it was provided as follows: "That in all cases where there is or shall be imposed any ad valorem rate of duty on any goods, wares or merchandise imported into the United States, and in all cases where the duty imposed by law shall be regulated by, or directed to be estimated or based upon, the value of the square yard, or of any specified quantity or parcel of such goods, wares or merchandise, it shall be the duty of the collector within whose district the same shall be imported or entered, to cause the actual market value, or wholesale price thereof, at the period of the exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from which the same shall have been imported into the United States, to be appraised, and such appraised value shall be considered the value upon which duty shall be assessed." The same section then provided for an addition, on entry, by the importer, to the invoice value, to make such actual market value or wholesale price, and for a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem on the appraised value, in addition to other lawful duties, if the appraised value should exceed by 10 per cent. or more the value so declared in the entry. It also provided that the duty should "not be assessed on an amount less than the invoice or entered value;" and then repealed sections 23 and 24 of the act of June 30th, 1864 (13 Stat., 216, 217), "and all acts and parts of acts requiring duties to be assessed upon commissions, brokerage, costs of transportation, shipment, transshipment, and other like costs and charges incurred in placing any goods, wares or merchandise on shipboard, and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act." Section 24 of the act of 1864, thus repealed, was in these words: "That in determining the valuation of goods imported into the United States from foreign countries, except as hereinbefore provided, upon which duties imposed by any existing laws are to be assessed, the actual value of such goods on shipboard at the last place of shipment to the United States shall be deemed the dutiable value. And such value shall be ascertained by adding to the value of such goods at the place of growth, production, or manufacture the cost of transportation, shipment, and transshipment, with all the expenses included, from the place of growth, production, or manufacture, whether by land or water, to the vessel in which such shipment is made to the United States, the value of the sack, box, or covering of any kind, in which such goods are contained, commission at the usual rate, in no case less than two and one-half per centum, brokerage, and all export duties, together with all costs and charges, paid or incurred for placing said goods on shipboard, and all other proper charges specified by law."

The effect of the legislation thus embodied in section 7 of the act of 1865, as applicable to goods subject to ad valorem duty, was to fix as their dutiable value their actual market value or wholesale price at the period of their exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from which they were imported into the United States, instead of their actual value on shipboard at their last place of shipment to the United States. The provision in the act of 1864, for adding, as part of the dutiable value, to the value of the goods themselves, the value of any sack, box, or covering containing the goods was repealed; and, under the act of 1865, the dutiable value was such actual market value or wholesale price abroad of the goods themselves, without sack, box, or covering; and the value of the sack, box, or covering was not to be added, and was not dutiable.

So much of section 7 of the act of 1865 as related to additions by the importer, on entry, and to the duty not being assessed on an amount less than the invoice or entered value, was re-enacted as section 2900 of the Revised Statutes. So much of the same section as related to the rule for appraisement was re-enacted as section 2906, in these words: "When an ad valorem rate of duty is imposed on any imported merchandise, or when the duty imposed shall be regulated by, or be directed to be estimated or based upon, the value of the square yard, or of any specified quantity or parcel of such merchandise, the collector within whose district the same shall be imported or entered shall cause the actual market value, or wholesale price thereof, at the period of the exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from which the same has been imported, to be appraised, and such appraised value shall be considered the value upon which duty shall be assessed."

After the act of 1865 followed the act of July 28th, 1866, the 9th section of which (14 Stat., 330) provided as follows: "That in determining the dutiable value of merchandise hereafter imported, there shall be added to the cost, or to the actual wholesale price or general market value at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence the same shall have been imported into the United States, the cost of transportation, shipment, and transshipment, with all the expenses included, from the place of production, growth, or manufacture, whether by land or water, to the vessel in which shipment is made to the United States; the value of the sack, box, or covering of any kind in which such goods are contained; commission at the usual rates, but in no case less than two and a half per centum; brokerage, export duty, and all other actual or usual charges for putting up, preparing, and packing for transportation or shipment. And all charges of a general character incurred in the purchase of a general invoice shall be distributed pro rata among all parts of such invoice; and every part thereof charged with duties based on value shall be advanced according to its proportion, and all wines or other articles paying specific duty by grades shall be graded and pay duty according to the actual value so determined: Provided, That all additions made to the entered value of merchandise for charges shall be regarded as part of the actual value of such merchandise, and if such addition shall exceed by ten per centum the value so declared in the entry, in addition to the duties imposed by law, there shall be levied, collected, and paid a duty of twenty per centum on such value."

These provisions of section 9 of the act of 1866 were re-enacted as sections 2907 and 2908 of the Revised Statutes in these words: "Sec. 2907. In determining the dutiable value of merchandise, there shall be added to the cost, or to the actual wholesale price or general market value at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence the same has been imported into the United States, the cost of transportation, shipment, and transshipment, with all the expenses included, from the place of growth, production, or manufacture, whether by land or water, to the vessel in which shipment is made to the United States; the value of the sack, box, or covering of any kind in which such merchandise is contained; commission at the usual rates, but in no case less than two and a half per centum; and brokerage, export duty, and all other actual or usual charges for putting up, preparing, and packing for transportation or shipment. All charges of a general character incurred in the purchase of a general invoice shall be distributed pro rata among all parts of such invoice; and every part thereof charged with duties based on value shall be advanced according to its proportion, and all wines or other articles paying specific duties by grades shall be graded and pay duty according to the actual value so determined. Sec. 2908. All additions made to the entered value of merchandise for charges shall be regarded as part of the actual value of such merchandise, and if such addition shall exceed by ten per centum the value declared in the entry, in addition to the duties imposed by law, there shall be collected a duty of twenty per centum on such value."

Then followed section 14 of the act of June 22d, 1874 (18 Stat., 188,) which provides as follows: "That wherever any statute requires that, to the cost or market value of any goods, wares, and merchandise imported into the United States, there shall be added to the invoice thereof, or, upon the entry of such goods, wares, and merchandise, charges for inland transportation, commissions, port duties, expenses of shipping, export duties, cost of packages, boxes, or other articles containing such goods, wares, and merchandise, or any other incidental expenses attending the packing, shipping, or exportation thereof from the country or place where purchased or manufactured, the omission, without intent thereby to defraud the revenue, to add and state the same on such invoice or entry shall not be a cause of a forfeiture of such goods, wares, and merchandise, or of the value thereof; but in all cases where the same, or any part thereof, are omitted, it shall be the duty of the collector or appraiser to add the same, for the purposes of duty, to such invoice or entry, either in items or in gross, at such price or amount as he shall deem just and reasonable, (which price or amount shall, in the absence of protest, be conclusive), and to impose and add thereto the further sum of one hundred per centum of the price or amount so added; which addition shall constitute a part of the dutiable value of such goods, wares, and merchandise, and shall be collectible as provided by law in respect to duties on imports." Section 26 of the same act repealed all prior inconsistent provisions.

Such were the enactments in force when the act of 1883 was passed. When the duty was ad valorem, or based on the value of a given quantity or parcel of goods, there was, by section 2906 of the Revised Statutes, to be an appraisement here of the actual market value or wholesale price of the goods, at the period of exportation, in the principal markets of the country from which they were imported, and such appraised value was to be the dutiable value of the goods, as merchandise, without reference to any of the items required by section 2907 to be added as charges to such actual market value or wholesale price of the goods. All those items so required to be added were charges, and not part of the appraised value of the goods. By section 2908, if the items added for charges, after entry, exceeded by 10 per cent. the entered value of the goods, a duty of 20 per cent., in addition to the duties imposed by law, was required to be collected "on such value." This additional duty did not depend on an intent to defraud, but was imposed for the mere omission of the charges from the entry. By section 14 of the act of 1874, the omission to add the charges, without intent to defraud, was declared not to be a cause of forfeiture, but when they were omitted, it was made the duty of the public officers to add them for the purposes of duty, and to add the further sum of 100 per cent. of the amount so added, such additions to be a part of the dutiable value.

Then followed the 7th section of the act of 1883, in these words: "That sections twenty-nine hundred and seven and twenty-nine hundred and eight of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and section fourteen of the act entitled 'An act to amend the customs revenue laws, and to repeal moieties,' approved June twenty-second, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, be, and the same are hereby, repealed, and hereafter none of the charges imposed by said sections, or any other provisions of existing law, shall be estimated in ascertaining the value of goods to be imported, nor shall the value of the usual and necessary sacks, crates, boxes, or covering, of any kind, be estimated as part of their value in determining the amount of duties for which they are liable: Provided, That if any packages, sacks, crates, boxes, or coverings of any kind, shall be of any material or form designed to evade duties thereon, or designed for use otherwise than in the bona fide transportation of goods to the United States, the same shall be subject to a duty of 100 per centum ad valorem upon the actual value of the same."

By this section 7 of the act of 1883, in the first place, sections 2907 and 2908 of the Revised Statutes, and section 14 of the act of 1874, are repealed. This repeals the provision of section 2907, that, in determining the dutiable value of the merchandise, there shall be added to its appraised market value (to be ascertained under section 2906, which is left unrepealed) the expenses and charges mentioned in section 2907, among which are "the value of the sack, box, or covering, of any kind, in which such merchandise is contained," "and all other actual or usual charges for putting up, preparing, and packing for transportation or shipment." It also repeals the provision of section 2908 for the additional duty of 20 per cent. when the addition for the charges mentioned in section 2907 exceeds by 10 per cent. the entered value. It also repeals the provisions of section 14 of the act of 1874, for the addition of double the charges omitted, among which charges are specified "cost of packages, boxes, or other articles containing such goods, wares, and merchandise, and any other incidental expenses attending the packing, shipping, or exportation thereof from the country or place where purchased or manufactured."

The items thus specified in section 2907 of the Revised Statutes, and in section 14 of the act of 1874, being charges, and being eliminated as part of the dutiable value of goods, and section 2906 remaining for the appraisement of the goods per se, without the addition of any of the charges so abolished, it would seem that the meaning of section 7 of the act of 1883 was plain.

But that section goes on to say: "And hereafter none of the charges imposed by said sections or any other provisions of existing law shall be estimated in ascertaining the value of goods to be imported." Nothing is imposed by section 2907 of the Revised Statutes but the addition to the appraised market value, provided for by section 2906, of the items specified in section 2907, all of which are thus declared by section 7 of the act of 1883 to have been "charges." Those charges are no longer to be added or estimated, as before, in determining the dutiable value of the goods. So, the repealed section 14 of the act of 1867 imposed nothing except in respect of the items it specified, which were items to be added to appraised market value, and are, therefore, declared by section 7 of the act of 1883 to have been "charges."

But that section goes on still further to say: "Nor shall the value of the usual and necessary sacks, crates, boxes, or covering, of any kind, be estimated as part of their value in determining the amount of duties for which they are liable." This means, that not only, as the section had declared, shall none of the charges provided for in the repealed sections be added or estimated in ascertaining dutiable value, but the value of the sacks, crates, boxes, or covering, of any kind, shall not be estimated as part of the value, or included in the value, of the goods, but shall be omitted, leaving the value of the goods to be appraised per se, under section 2906, without estimating or including the value of the sack, crate, box, or covering, of any kind, and, therefore, requiring such latter value to be deducted, if the entry or invoice includes it, either separately, or as part of a price or value affixed to the goods, if it is capable of separation and deduction, unless the effect is to reduce the dutiable value below the invoice or entered value. For, by section 2907 of the Revised Statutes, "the value of the sack, box, or covering, of any kind, in which such merchandise is contained," was required to be added, that is, estimated in determining the dutiable value of merchandise; and the items required by section 14 of the act of 1874 to be added to the market value of goods, for the purposes of duty, cover the "cost of packages, boxes or other articles containing" the goods, and the expenses of packing.

The last clause of section 7 of the act of 1883 adds force to the foregoing views. It is this: "Provided, That if any packages, sacks, crates, boxes, or coverings, of any kind, shall be of any material or form designed to evade duties thereon, or designed for use otherwise than in the bona fide transportation of goods to the United States, the same shall be subject to a duty of one hundred per centum ad valorem upon the actual value of the same." This implies that if the boxes or coverings of any kind are not of a material or form designed to evade duties thereon, and are designed to be used in the bona fide transportation of the goods to the United States, they are not subject to duty. If either of these things occurs they are subject to 100 per cent. duty. There is not, in the present case, any suggestion that the cartons were of a form or material designed to evade duties thereon. They were of the usual kind known to the trade before the law was passed, as customarily used for the same purpose. They were designed to be used in the bona fide transportation of the goods to the United States, not only because they were and had been a customary article in the trade for covering and transporting these goods, but because they were intended to accompany the goods and remain with them in the hands of the retail dealer, until the goods should be sold to the consumer.

The change made by section 8 of the act of 1883 in the oaths required on entry, is in consonance with the above interpretation of the effect of section 7. Section 8 amends section 2841 of the Revised Statutes, as to the forms of the three several oaths, in the following manner, the particular parts referred to of the old forms and the new ones being placed side by side, and the parts in each which differ from the other being in italic :

Oath of consignee, importer, or agent.

Old oath.

"that the invoice now produced by me exhibits the actual cost, (if purchased,) or fair market value, (if otherwise obtained,) at the time or times, and place or places, when or where procured, (as the case may be,) of the said goods, wares, and merchandise, all the charges thereon, and no other or different discount," &c.

New oath.

"that the invoice now produced by me exhibits the actual cost (if purchased,) or fair market value (if otherwise obtained,) at the time or times, and place or places, when or where procured (as the case may be,) of the said goods, wares, and merchandise, including all costs for finishing said goods, wares, and merchandise to their present condition, and no other or different discount," &c.

Oath of owner in cases where merchandise has been actually purchased.

Old oath.

"that the invoice which I now produce contains a just and faithful account of the actual cost of the said goods, wares, and merchandise, of all charges thereon, including charges of purchasing, carriages, bleaching, dyeing, dressing, finishing, putting up, and packing, and no other discount," &c.

New oath.

"that the invoice which I now produce contains a just and faithful account of the actual cost of the said goods, wares, and merchandise, including all cost of finishing said goods, wares, and merchandise to their present condition, and no other discount," &c.

Oath of manufacturer or owner in cases where merchandise has not been actually purchased.

Old oath.

"the invoice which I now produce contains a just and faithful valuation of the same, at their fair market value, including charges of purchasing, carriages, bleaching, dyeing, dressing, finishing, putting up and packing at the time," &c.
"that the said invoice contains also a just and faithful account of all charges actually paid, and no other discount," &c.

New oath.

"the invoice which I now produce contains a just and faithful valuation of the same, at their fair market value, at the time," &c.
"that the said invoice contains also a just and faithful account of all the cost for finishing said goods, wares, and merchandise to their present condition, and no other discount," &c.

It is apparent that these new forms of oath leave out "charges" entirely, because the statute leaves them out as dutiable items. The "cost of finishing the goods to their present condition" is part of the value of the goods abroad outside of the abolished "charges." Goods may be bought abroad unfinished, and then caused to be finished; but in no case can the cost of finishing be left out of their value, however they have been obtained. So, the new oaths embrace only the value of the goods per se, and there is no oath as to any item before called "charges." The item of "finishing" is broad enough to include bleaching, dyeing, and dressing, but does not include any of the other charges specifically named in the old oaths.

The contention on the part of the Government is that section 7 of the act of 1883 repeals only so much of the prior statutes as added to the market value abroad the charges which were incident to the shipment of the goods, after they were put in a condition for the market abroad, as usually sold; that the expense of the cartons was necessary to put them into that condition; that the value of the cartons was part of the market value of the goods abroad; and that, therefore, it must enter into the dutiable value. It is urged that the carton is not incident to the transportation of the goods, but is part of their preparation for sale abroad; that it is an integral part of the value of the whole, carton and goods, as a unit; that, in valuing such unit, nothing more is done than valuing the goods, ready for sale; and that, although, in one sense, the carton is a charge, it is a charge incurred in putting the merchandise into the condition in which it is sold abroad, and it becomes part of the goods, and its value is merged in the value of the filled carton. The sufficient answer to these suggestions is, that they allow no weight to the declaration of the statute that the value of the usual and necessary box or covering, of any kind, shall not be estimated as part of the value of the goods, in determining the amount of duties for which the goods are liable. The carton is a usual box or covering. It is a necessary box or covering, within the meaning of the law, on the facts shown in the bill of exceptions. It was a box or covering in which the goods were contained, and so was a charge specifically imposed by section 2907 of the Revised Statutes; and section 7 of the act of 1883 says that no charge imposed by section 2907 shall be estimated in ascertaining the value of the goods.

The bill of exceptions shows, that, after the enactment of section 14 of the act of 1874, and prior to March 3d, 1883, it was the practice of the custom-house at New York, where there were cartons with the goods, and the cartons were not set forth in the invoice, to treat the value of the cartons as a charge, under that section, and add such value, and 100 per cent. thereon, to make dutiable value. No statute is referred to which ever recognized the value of cartons as other than a charge, and no such practice appears to have obtained before March 3d, 1883.

As the action of the collector in this case appears to have been founded on a circular issued by the Treasury Department on May 15th, 1883, and was sanctioned by the opinion of the Attorney-General, Mr. Brewster, given to the Secretary of the Treasury on January 11th, 1884, and as there have been decisions of circuit courts in accordance with those views (although there have been some to the contrary), the question involved has been carefully considered by this court, and the judges are unanimously of opinion that the true view of the statute in force at the time the goods in this case were entered is that announced in this opinion.

It appears that, after verdict and before judgment, there was a motion made for a new trial in this case, in deciding which (Oberteuffer vs. Robertson, 24 Fed. Rep., 852) the court stated that the verdict for the defendant was directed on the ground that the plaintiff's protest "was insufficient to present the objections relied upon by them to the exaction of the duties in controversy," but that the motion for a new trial was denied on the ground that the duties were not illegally exacted.

It is contended for the Government, that a reappraisement should have been applied for by the plaintiffs, under section 2930 of the Revised Statutes, and that they mistook their remedy. We are of opinion that this is not a sound view. They were not dissatisfied with the appraisement of the value of the goods per se. That value was left at the value stated in the invoice. The addition of the items for cartons and packing was no part of the duty or function of the appraiser, acting under section 2906, to appraise the foreign market value of the goods. Although, in form, the appraiser added the items for cartons and packing, the action of the custom-house was only a decision of the collector, under section 2931, that the cartons and packing were dutiable costs and charges. Those items appeared distinctly, as to two of the invoices, on them and on the entry, as charges for boxes and packing, and, being deducted as such on the face of the entry, were again added as such by the appraiser. As to the third invoice, the value of the cartons and packing, being included in the invoice value, was left in in the entered value, and a sum was added which in fact represented a second time the value of the cartons and packing, as a dutiable charge. We are of opinion that the first, second, and third paragraphs of the protests in this case are sufficient to raise the points relied on by the plaintiffs, and that to protest was the proper way to raise those points.

The exaction of duty on the packing, whether packing the goods in the cartons, or the cartons in the outer case, or lining the outer case, was not warranted by law. These were "charges" under the former statutes and were abolished as charges by the act of 1883.

As to the one case of hosiery, the addition to the entered value, of 30 pfennigs per dozen for the cartons and packing, was unauthorized, and the goods were dutiable at only the entered value of 1,492 marks. As, under section 2900 of the Revised Statutes, duty cannot, as to the goods, "be assessed upon an amount less than the invoice or entered value," whatever is put down in the invoice and entry as the value of the goods per se cannot be diminished, although in fact there may have been included in such value the cost of cartons and packing, unless the invoice or entry shows distinctly what such cost was and that it was included. In fact the cartons and packing were included twice, as to the one case of hosiery, in exacting duties, but only that which the appraiser added for them can be deducted, although their cost would not properly have been part of the dutiable value if the invoice and entry had not stated the value of the goods at a price which in fact included the cost of the cartons and packing.

It results, from these views, that the judgment of the circuit court must be reversed, and the case be remanded to that court, with a direction to grant a new trial.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, October 28, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, transmitting the appeal (4336*m*) of Messrs. C. F. Hovey & Co., from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem on certain cotton chenille portières and table-covers imported into your port on the 19th ultimo, per "Neptune," which the appellants claim to be dutiable at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem.

It is understood that the articles in question consist of portières and table-covers ready and fit for use, which are made from a species of cotton cloth known by the name of "chenille."

These articles being completed manufactures, and not being otherwise specially enumerated, are, in the opinion of the Department, dutiable at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in Schedule I, T. I., new, 324, for "all manufactures of cotton not specially enumerated or provided for," as claimed by the appellants. This view is also taken by the experts of the custom-house at New York, at which port it is the practice to classify completed articles of this character under the last-named paragraph.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entry, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties.

Of course, where cotton chenille cloth is imported in the piece, it is liable to the duty imposed by the countable clauses of Schedule I, for all cotton cloth."

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, Boston, Mass.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 29, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (7600*m*) of A. Weidmann from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called "flitter stickereien" imported, per "India," February 7, 1885, which the appellant claims to be dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem.

It appears, from the report of the appraiser and an inspection of a sample, that the appeal is well taken, the merchandise in question consisting of spangle ornaments which assimilate in character, manufacture, and uses to which they are applied to the articles enumerated in Schedule N, T. I., new, 427, which are dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem.

You will, therefore, reliquidate the entry, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 25.—*Mock Jewelry, Small Glass Balls for—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 8, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 17th ultimo, submitting the appeals (8596 m and 8597 m) of Messrs. Hecht Bros. from your assessment of duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem on certain "compositions of glass or paste, not set" (so called), imported by them, per "Hammonia," August 18, and "Westphalia," August 16, 1884.

The appraiser reports that the goods consist of colored, plain, and faceted glass balls of various sizes, which are used in the manufacture of mock jewelry, and ornamental combs, hair-pins, &c., and that they were classified as manufactures of glass and of glass and metal.

From an inspection of the samples submitted, which are imitations of amber, and the appraiser's report as to the uses to which they are applied, the Department is of opinion that they are "compositions of glass or paste not set," as claimed by the appellants, and dutiable at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem, under T. I., new, 420.

You are therefore authorized to readjust the entries, and to take measures for refunding the excess of duty.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

EXHIBIT 26.—*Stubb's Steel Rods, larger than No. 5, wire-gauge—Duty on.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 15, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt, through the Solicitor of the Treasury, of a letter dated the 21st ultimo, from the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, in which he reports the trial of the case of Peter A. Frasse et al. against Robertson (N. S., 9657), which involved the question as to the classification, under the existing tariff acts, of certain pieces or rods of polished steel, cut into three-foot lengths, and larger than No. 5, wire-gauge. This merchandise was classified by the collector at the time of importation as steel wire not specially provided for by size in the tariff acts, and subjected to a duty of 45 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in Schedule C (T. I., new, 183), as "steel not specially enumerated or provided for in this act," while the plaintiffs claimed that it consisted of bars or rods of steel, polished, which, as it cost over 10 cents per pound, was dutiable at the rate of 3½ cents per pound, under the provision in said schedule, T. I., new, 177, for "steel" in "bars."

The United States attorney reports that the proofs submitted showed that the goods were known and bought and sold in this country as Stubb's steel rods; that they were imported to be made into drill-rods; and that after the charge of the court, which was entirely unexceptional, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff. The United States attorney seems to be of the opinion that the decision was correct. The Solicitor of the Treasury advised an acquiescence therein by the Department.

Upon submitting the case to the United States Attorney-General under the act of March 3, 1875, that officer certifies that no appeal or writ of error will be taken by the United States in the said suit.

The Department, therefore, acquiesces in the said decision, and hereby instructs you to take the necessary steps for the settlement and payment of the judgment as soon as it shall be entered of record in the court.

* * * * *

Department's decision of January 26, 1884 (Synopsis, 6142), is hereby revoked, and you are directed to cause your practice to conform to the decision of the court in this case on all future importations of such merchandise.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 27.—*Paper Filters Manufactures of Paper—Decision 6038 Reversed.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 20, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt, through the Solicitor of the Treasury, of a letter, dated the 22d ultimo, from the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, reporting the trial of the case of Wm. R. Woodward vs. W. H. Robertson, former collector, &c. (N. S., 9441), which resulted in favor of the plaintiff.

The question involved was whether an article commonly known as paper filters was dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in Schedule M, T. I., new, 392, for "all other paper not specially enumerated or provided for," as classified by the collector at the time of importation, or at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the same schedule, T. I., new, 388, for "paper, manufactures of," as claimed by the plaintiff.

The United States attorney reports that the articles consisted of disks of various sizes, cut from filtering-paper of French manufacture, and that the plaintiff adduced evidence to prove that they were known in the trade as "paper filters," being thus distinguished from filtering-paper, from which they were cut.

The court charged the jury that if they should find that the articles were new articles, made from filtering-paper and adapted to a particular use, for which use they were complete when imported, their verdict should be for the plaintiff.

The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff, and the Solicitor of the Treasury recommends that the verdict be acquiesced in by the Department.

The Attorney-General, to whom the case was submitted under the act of March 3, 1875, also advises that no appeal or writ of error will be taken by the United States in said suit, and the Department therefore acquiesces in said decision and directs you, upon due entry of judgment in the case, to take the necessary steps for its settlement and payment.

You will also forward certified statements for the settlement of all similar suits pending at your port where the requirements of law as to protest, appeal, institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with, and cause the practice at your port to conform to such decision on future importations of similar articles.

The Department's decision of November 21, 1883 (Synopsis, 6038), of a contrary tenor, is hereby reversed.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 28.—*Clocks—Glass Shades and Wooden Stands as part of.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 19, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt, through the Solicitor of the Treasury, of a letter dated the 21st ultimo, from the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, reporting the trial of the case of the New Haven Clock Company against Wm. H. Robertson, former collector of customs (N. S., 9735), which resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The question involved in this suit was whether certain glass shades used to cover clocks, and the wooden stands on which the clocks and shades stood, were dutiable at the rates of 40 per cent. and 35 per cent. ad valorem, respectively, as assessed by the defendant at the time of importation, or at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem, as claimed by the plaintiff, the latter being the rate prescribed by Schedule N (T. I., new, 414) for "parts of clocks."

The United States attorney reports that evidence was produced tending to show that the stands and shades in question were imported at the same time and in the same invoice with the clocks which they were intended to cover, and that the clocks so imported were of such a character as to render the stands and shades necessary to protect their works from dirt and dust, and to prevent the early tarnishing thereof, and also that evidence was produced to indicate that the shades and stands were bought from the same parties as the clocks, and that they were sold together—that is to say, a person buying one of the clocks would also buy the stand and shade which belonged to it, and all would be spoken of and sold and paid for as a clock.

The United States attorney expresses the opinion that the verdict in the case was a proper one, and recommends that it be acquiesced in by the Department, with the understanding, however, that cases of similar character should be judged by the particular and peculiar facts in each case—that is to say, if the shades and stands are imported at the same time with the clocks, in equal numbers, and fitted, adapted, and intended for each other, the stands and shades should be fairly considered as parts of clocks, and as liable to the rate of duty prescribed by law therefor.

In this recommendation the Solicitor of the Treasury concurs, and upon submission of the case to the United States Attorney-General, under the act of March 3, 1875, that officer advises that no writ of error or appeal will be taken by the United States.

In view of this recommendation the Department concurs in such decision, and you are therefore authorized, upon due entry of judgment in the case, to take the necessary steps for its payment and settlement.

You are also directed to apply the said decision to all similar suits now pending at your port where the appraiser shall report that the stands and shades are parts of clocks, imported therewith as aforesaid, and where the provisions of law as to protest, appeal, and institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with, and to forward certified statements for the consideration of the Department.

The Department decision of November 13, 1883 (Synopsis, 6014), of a contrary tenor, will be considered as amended in the particular mentioned.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 29.—Tanning, Crude Articles for—Egg-Yolk—Decision 6277 Reversed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 15, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt, through the Solicitor of the Treasury, of a letter dated the 17th ultimo, from the United States attorney for the southern district of New York, in which he reports the trial of the case of Schulze-Berge vs. Robertson (N. S., 9563), which involved the question as to the classification under the tariff acts of an article called "egg-yolk," consisting of yolks mixed with brine.

This article, on importation, was classified by the collector as a non-enumerated manufactured substance, at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, while the plaintiff claimed that it was exempt from duty under the provision in the free list (T. I., new, 689) for articles in a crude state, used in tanning, not specially enumerated or provided for.

The decision of the courts was in favor of the plaintiff, thus sustaining his claim for free entry of said article, he having proved that the substance was generally used by tanners as a softener of leather tanned by the alum process, and that the salt used in preserving the yolk was a necessary element in that process.

Both the United States attorney and the Solicitor of the Treasury advise that the judgment be acquiesced in by the Department, and the United States Attorney-General, to whom the matter was referred under the act of March 3, 1875, certifies that, no appeal or writ of error will be taken by the United States in the said suit.

You are authorized, upon due satisfaction of the judgment on the record of the court, to take the necessary steps for its settlement and payment, also to forward certified statements for the settlement of all similar suits pending at your port, where the requirements of law as to protest, appeal, institution of suit, &c., have been fully complied with. You will also cause your practice to conform to such decision in all future importations of similar merchandise.

The ruling of March 29, 1884 (Synopsis, 6277), is hereby revoked.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 30.—Cutlery—Spatulas or Palette-Knives.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, March 17, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 23d ultimo, reporting further on the appeal (17100) of Messrs. J. M. Maris & Co., from your assessment of duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem, on certain spatulas or palette-knives, imported by them, per "Lord Gough," December 30, 1885, and claimed to be entitled to entry at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in paragraph 197, for "cutlery not specially enumerated or provided for."

Upon investigation it is found that the articles in question, which are knives with flexible blades and dull edges, and are used by druggists in the mixing of medicines, and by artists in mixing colors on their palettes, are manufactured by cutlers, and are commercially known as cutlery.

The Department is, therefore, of opinion that, as they are not otherwise specially provided for, they are properly dutiable as cutlery, and you are hereby authorized to readjust the entry, and to forward a certified statement for a refund of the excess of duty.

Respectfully yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 31.—Asbestos Paper—Duty on.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 18, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 8th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (73 l) of A. Asmann from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called asbestos paper, imported into your port on the 20th of April last (Entry No. 3902), which the appellant claims to be dutiable either at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem or 15 per cent. ad valorem.

Upon inspection of the sample and an examination of the report of the analytical chemist who analyzed the same, it is found that the merchandise in question consists of paper which has been subjected to a process of manufacture by having its exterior surface coated in such a manner as to constitute a species of asbestos paper. The article, therefore, is, in fact, a manufacture in part of paper, and under the principle laid down in Department's decision of July 16, 1884 (Synopsis, 6463), with regard to bristol-board, it is subject to duty at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem, under the provisions of T. I., new, 388, for manufactures of paper, or of which paper is a component material, &c.

You will reliquidate the entry and take the necessary steps for refund of excess of duties exacted.

Very respectfully,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Assistant Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, San Francisco, Cal.

EXHIBIT 32.—Cabinet-woods, Brierwood.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 16, 1886.

SIR: The Department duly received your letter of the 29th ultimo, transmitting the appeals, hereinafter named, of T. W. Robertson from your assessment of duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under the provisions of T. I., new, 234, on certain blocks and pieces of wood and cabinet-wood imported in the vessels named.

It appears from the report of the appraiser in this case, and from an inspection of the samples submitted, that the merchandise in question consists of brierwood blocks, of various sizes and forms, which the appellant claims are extensively used by cabinet-makers and box-makers for the manufacture of various kinds of ornaments used in cabinet furniture, fancy boxes, &c., and should be classified accordingly as "cabinet-wood," free of duty, under T. I., new, 818.

The appraiser, however, is of the opinion that the merchandise in question is imported by, and sold to, manufacturers of pipes and pipe-bowls, cigar-holders, &c.; that it has been roughly cut or sawed into forms and sizes specially intended for the purposes last mentioned, and is of the character of that subject of Department's decision of November 13, 1877 (Synopsis, 3411), wherein it was held that the merchandise therein described was entitled to entry under the provisions for "wood, unmanufactured, not otherwise provided for."

By reference to the Department's decision last mentioned, it will be seen that the question as to whether the woods therein considered were cabinet-woods was not raised, the Department having merely awarded to the appellant the reduction in rate which he claimed, and to which he was fairly entitled.

From evidence submitted by the appellant, it would appear that cabinet-woods possess and are known in the trade by certain qualities or characteristics, such as hardness, fine grain, color, adaptability to the purposes of ornamentation, &c., and that brierwood is extensively used in the arts and in the construction of the finest cabinet-work, on account of its variegated appearance and its hardness and capacity for being carved and highly polished.

Samples of ornamental work made from this wood have been submitted, and the Department is of the opinion that it is a cabinet-wood within the meaning of paragraph 818 of the free-list, as claimed by the appellant, and that even if the convenience of trade or other reason had restricted its use almost exclusively to the manufacture of smokers' articles mentioned by the appraiser, such use would not operate to change the character of the wood.

In the opinion of the Department, the wood in question is fairly entitled to be classified as cabinet-wood, and, being unmanufactured, should be admitted to free entry, under paragraph 818 of the free-list.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entry free of duty, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Respectfully, yours,

W. E. SMITH,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 33.—Dog-Biscuit—Duty on.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 7, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 5th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (8056 m) of H. C. Squires from your assessment of duty at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem on certain so called dog-biscuits imported, per "Crona," May 18, 1885, and returned by the appraiser as a proprietary preparation, dutiable under T. I., new, 99.

From the report of the appraiser filed in this case, it appears that the merchandise in question is a preparation of flour made in the form of a square biscuit, presenting neither the appearance of a drug nor evidence of any medicative office whatever; that it is patented, and in that sense only it is proprietary; but that, as it is not a medicine, it cannot be considered as properly dutiable under T. I., new, 99, the article being merely dog-food, and not a specific for any disease.

This view is in accordance with Department's decision of May 20, 1885, (Synopsis, 6926.)

The appraiser further reports that the article, not being enumerated in the tariff, is properly dutiable under the provision in section 2513, act of March 3, 1883, as an unenumerated manufactured article, at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem.

You are therefore authorized to reliquidate the entry in accordance with the foregoing, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

EXHIBIT 34.—Free Entry—Shells cut into pieces for making Knife-handles.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, March 5, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of January 30 last, transmitting the appeal (7702 k) of Messrs. Davies, Turner & Co. from your assessment of duty at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called "knife-handles" imported, per "City of Berlin," June 20, 1884, and returned by the appraiser at your port as manufactured mother-of-pearl, under T. I., new, 486.

From the report of the appraiser filed in this case, it appears that the articles are not manufactured, as returned by the examiner, but consist of unmanufactured shells, or pieces of the same, cut out without any further process of polishing, finishing, or manipulation.

They are, therefore, entitled to free entry, in accordance with the principles laid down in Department's decision of October 27, 1884, (Synopsis, 6616.)

The Department decides that the appeal is well taken, and authorizes you to reliquidate the entry free of duty, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

Very respectfully,

H. F. FRENCH,
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 35.—*Soap, Medicinal—Decisions 6921 and 7035 Modified.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 20, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 7th ultimo, transmitting the appeals hereinafter described of W. H. Schieffelin & Co. from your assessment of duty * * * at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem on certain so-called medicinal soaps.

Concerning the medicinal soaps covered by these appeals, the appraiser reports that they are identical in character with those covered by Department's decisions of May 16, 1885, (Synopsis, 6921,) and July 22, 1885, (Synopsis, 7035,) and that duty was accordingly assessed thereon under the provisions of T. I., new, 99.

The appraiser, however, expresses his dissent from the rulings aforesaid, and represents as follows: That the soaps in question are not protected by a patented title; that the formula thereof has been published; that the quantitative presence of the qualifying ingredients is plainly printed, and the methods of incorporation are well understood; that no monopoly or proprietary rights exist anywhere in or about these soaps; that they can be made of exactly the same substances and in the same proportions, advertised under the same name, and sold without the slightest restriction by any one anywhere.

In view of these representations and of the decided opinion of the appraiser, the Department submitted the question of the dutiable character of this merchandise to the Attorney-General, who, in his opinion, dated the 16th instant, states that he concurs with the appraiser in the view that the soaps referred to are not dutiable at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem, as proprietary medicines, and that he deems it advisable that the decisions in question be so modified as to conform to the classification recommended by the appraiser at New York.

You are accordingly authorized to reliquidate the entry at the rate provided in paragraph 8, T. I., new, for soaps not otherwise provided for, and to take the necessary steps for refunding the excess of duty exacted.

You will also apply this decision to the liquidation of future entries of this merchandise at your port.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD.
Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT 36.—*Musical Instruments, Parts of—Music-Box Springs.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 23, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of February 10 last, submitting the appeal (2872 o) of Messrs. L. A. Scherr & Co. from your assessment of duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem on certain music-box springs imported by them, per "Nederland," December 21, 1885.

The appellants claim that the springs in question are known to the trade as music-box springs; are intended to be used solely for the manufacture or repair of music-boxes, and that, being complete indispensable parts of musical instruments, they are entitled to entry at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, as "parts of musical instruments," under the Department's decision of March 13, 1880, (Synopsis, 4453.)

The appraiser reports that the springs may be used in a music-box, a clock, or in any mechanical toy or machine which requires a strong spring, and are not used exclusively in music-boxes, and that they were therefore classified as "manufactures of steel not otherwise provided for."

Upon investigation it is ascertained that music-box springs are specially made for the manufacture or repair of music-boxes, and can be readily distinguished by any person familiar with them from clock-springs or springs for mechanical toys or other machines, being shorter and stronger than such springs.

The Department, therefore, decides that they are entitled to entry at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, under the decision cited by the appellants, as parts of musical instruments, and you are hereby authorized to readjust the entry and to forward to the Department a certified statement for the refund of the excess of duty.

The decision of the Department as to steel wire for zither-strings, steel tubes for bicycles, and bushing-wire for repairing clocks, cited by the appraiser, do not relate to completed parts of the articles, and are not applicable to this case.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

EXHIBIT 37.—*Carpet-Wool.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 6, 1885.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 21st ultimo, transmitting the appeals (8678 l and 8679 l) of James Lees & Sons from your decision assessing duty at the rate of 5 cents per pound on certain carpet-wool imported by them, per "British Princess," August 31, 1884, and "Pennsylvania," September 8, 1884, which the appellants claim to be dutiable at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents per pound.

It appears that the wool in question is third-class carpet-wool, and that it costs under 12 cents per pound, without adding to the price thereof the cost of the bags in which it was contained. The cost of the bags, however, was added by you to its value, thereby making the apparent value of the wool over 12 cents per pound, and hence you assessed duty at the rate of 5 cents per pound.

Upon due investigation of the matter, it is ascertained that wool of this character is classified at both New York and Boston at a duty of $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents per pound, it not being the practice at those ports to add to its value the cost of the bags.

The practice thus prevailing at those ports, of excluding the cost of bags, is, in the opinion of the Department, correct and proper under the statute, and therefore it is held that, as the wool is valued at less than 12 cents per pound, the appeal is well taken.

You will reliquidate the entries accordingly, and take the necessary steps for refunding the excessive duties.

EXHIBIT 38.—*Lava Tips for Gas-Burners—Synopsis 6502 revoked.*TREASURY DEPARTMENT, March 3, 1886.

SIR: The Department is in receipt, through the Solicitor of the Treasury, of a letter, dated the 15th ultimo, from Mr. Henry C. Platt, assistant United States attorney for the southern district of New York, in which he reports the trial of the case of the E. P. Gleason Manufacturing Company against W. H. Robertson, collector, &c., (N. S., 9422,) which resulted in a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs.

The question involved is whether certain lava-tips for gas-burners, which were imported into your port at various times from July 1, 1883, to April 11, 1884, were dutiable at the rate of 55 per cent. ad valorem, under the provision in Schedule B, T. I., new, 127, for "all other earthen, stone, and crockery ware, white, glazed, or edged, composed of earthy or mineral substances, not specially enumerated or provided for," or at the rate either of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under section 2513 of the Revised Statutes, (as contained in the act of March 3, 1883,) as an unenumerated manufactured article, or 25 per cent. ad valorem, under the further provision in Schedule B, T. I., new, 124, for "brown earthenware, common stoneware, gas-retorts, and stoneware not ornamented," as claimed by the appellants.

The articles in question, it appears, are manufactured from a peculiar Bavarian clay, which, though soft, in the nature of soap-stone, when taken from the earth, grows hard upon exposure to the atmosphere; that the clay immediately after being mined is cut into small blocks, which are then turned in the lathe into the desired shapes, and bored with the requisite holes, whereupon they are left to harden for a time by the action of the air, and then subjected to a simple baking process, whereby they become fitted for use as tips for gas-burners.

The evidence submitted on the trial tended to show that the articles were not commercially known as earthenware, in any proper sense of the term as used in the statute, and upon the charge of the judge to the jury to that effect a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiffs, to the effect that the articles were not enumerated in the tariff acts, and were, therefore dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem, under section 2513, as aforesaid.

The assistant United States attorney and the Solicitor of the Treasury both advise acquiescence by the Department in such verdict, and the United States Attorney-General, to whom the matter was submitted, under the act of March 3, 1875, advises that no writ of error or appeal will be taken in the said suit.

The Department therefore acquiesces in the decision thus rendered, and you are directed, upon due satisfaction of the judgment, to take the necessary steps for its settlement and payment.

You will also, upon due discontinuance of any similar suits now pending at your port, forward certified statements for their settlement in the usual manner, provided it appears that the requirements of law, as to protest, appeal, and institution of suit, &c., have been duly complied with.

You will also conform your practice to such decision in the assessment of duty on future importations of such merchandise.

The Department's decision of July 30, 1884, (Synopsis, 6502,) of a contrary tenor, is hereby revoked.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS, New York.

EXHIBIT 39.—Shell Opera Glasses.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., January 2, 1886.

SIR: Referring to recent correspondence with you in relation to certain suits lately tried at your port, involving the question as to the classification of certain so-called shell opera-glasses, you are informed that the Solicitor of the Treasury, to whom the matter was referred, is of opinion, after due consideration of all the facts and circumstances, that the only question submitted to the court was one of fact, as to whether shell was the component material of chief value of the article, as claimed by the plaintiffs, or glass or metal was the component of chief value, as returned by the appraiser, and that, as such question of fact was decided by the court in favor of the plaintiffs, it would be useless for the Government to take the case to the United States Supreme Court for review.

He, moreover, states that if the cases were taken to the Supreme Court the record would show no error in law, and that for that reason he is of opinion that the judgments should be settled and paid by the Department.

Upon the submission of the matter to the United States Attorney-General, under the act of March 3, 1875, that officer advised, under date of the 29th ultimo, that no appeal or writ of error will be taken from the judgment of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois in the said suits.

You are therefore authorized, upon due entry of the judgments, to forward certified statements for their settlement and payment.

It will be distinctly understood, however, that the Department does not acquiesce in the decision of the court in these cases, so as to make it a rule of practice in other importations, and that it is the intention to try another case involving the question as to the proper classification of such goods at as early a day as practicable.

Should such a case be ready for trial at your port, you will request the United States attorney to consult with the appraiser at your port as to the best means of defending the same, and also to notify the Department of the time when a trial of the case is expected to occur.

The suits to which this letter relates are those (2) of Louis Manasse vs. Spaulding (Nos. 18915 and 19523), and (1) Otto Young et al. vs. Same, (No. 18913.)

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. FAIRCHILD,
Acting Secretary.

EAST WING INTERIOR DEPARTMENT BUILDING—RECONSTRUCTION.

FROM

TRANSMITTING

Detailed estimate and plan of the proposed reconstruction of the east wing of Interior Department building.

DECEMBER 7, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 6, 1886.

SIR: In connection with the estimate on page 164 of the Book of Estimates for the fiscal year 1888 for reconstructing the east wing of the Interior Department building, I have the honor to transmit herewith the details of said estimate and the plan of the proposed work for consideration therewith.

Respectfully yours,

D. MANNING,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
Washington, April 26, 1886.

SIR: Your communication of the 7th instant, in relation to the proposition "to submit an estimate to the Congress for the completion of the reconstruction of this building by fire-proofing the east wing," was received by me in due time.

Immediately after receiving such communication I referred it to a committee of three of the employés of this office for careful examination, consideration, and report. Such report from such committee was received in due time, and I herewith transmit the same. I can only add that their recommendation seems to me to be reasonable and desirable, and I concur therewith.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

M. V. MONTGOMERY,
Commissioner.

The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., April 12, 1886.

Hon. M. V. MONTGOMERY,
Commissioner of Patents:

SIR: The undersigned, to whom you orally referred the letter of the 7th instant, from Hon. H. L. Muldrow, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, requesting your opinion as to the manner in which the east hall of the model room should be reconstructed, have the honor to report that they have given the subject careful consideration, taking into consultation the architect of the reconstructed wings, the librarian, and the superintendent of the model room.

To indicate the principal reason for the opinion which they herein submit, they desire to call attention to the fact that in the restoration of the west and north wings after the fire of 1877 it was the desire of Commissioner Paine to make special provision for the scientific library adequate to its wants for many years to come. Why this was not done none of us can say, but the fact remains that these two wings, and also the south wing, have been completely rebuilt, and no provision of the character named has been made.

The recent change by which the library has been located in a part of the south hall has neither added to its convenience or usefulness, nor given the additional room it absolutely required; and there is no one interested in it but looks upon the present arrangement as necessarily temporary. This need of a suitable and ample room for the library is one of the pressing needs of the office, and some step to satisfy it should not be deferred.

Your committee believe that the reconstruction of the east hall offers again an opportunity to supply this need. They cannot overlook the fact that it is the last opportunity to supply it adequately; and they are of one mind in the conviction that to rebuild this hall without making the provision indicated would not only be ill-judged, but it would be a misfortune practically without remedy.

To adapt the present hall or any large portion of it to library purposes is, in their opinion, not expedient. Its architecture, in many respects admirable, makes it impracticable to get light from the roof, which for the use of a large library is most important; and while they would witness with regret its demolition, no such sentiment can stand in the way of the practical use to which the space must be put. Even for its present purpose this hall is ill adapted for the same reason, imperfect light.

We therefore earnestly advise that in the reconstruction of the east hall a plan be adopted perhaps in general resembling that of the south hall, with such modifications as shall adapt a sufficient portion of it for library purposes, and that so much of the space be so adapted as shall suffice for the wants of the library for many years to come. Another portion should be devoted to the Assignment Division, now in quarters never intended and ill-contrived for clerical work. We have consulted with the architect, and have blocked out the outlines of a plan which we respectfully submit herewith, remarking only in connection with it that details of structure must be the subject of after consideration. The plan is designed to utilize the hall to the best advantage, with due reference to light, ventilation, economy of space, and the convenience of business.

It is not within any instructions we have received, but the conditions seem to make it proper for us to observe that all the available space for models is now occupied. More room is required. The plan proposed will release the space now occupied by the library and the Assignment Division as soon as the new hall is completed.

The present library rooms are not adapted for models, and probably will not under any circumstances be used for them. The part of the west hall which the assignment division now uses would be an important addition to the space for models. It would not, however, entirely compensate for what would be lost by turning so large a portion of the east hall into rooms for the library and Assignment Division.

It seems to your committee that no time ought to be lost in making such arrangements as shall devote the entire west hall to the purposes for which it was intended and for which alone it is adapted. It is difficult indeed to see what provision can be made for the model cases now in the east hall, during the work of reconstruction, unless the west hall can be relieved of the Land Office force now in it, and whose location in it has never been regarded as other than temporary.

The instructions your committee have received call upon them only for suggestions upon which your answer to the Assistant Secretary's letter may be based. We have thought best to give the reason for our conviction that neither of the schemes suggested will answer the purposes of the Patent Office, but that the east wing should be rebuilt upon a plan distinct from either, which will provide suitably for the library and furnish healthful accommodations for the large clerical force in the Assignment Division.

Respectfully submitted.

Examiner.
SCHUYLER DURYEE,
Chief Clerk.
H. C. HUNTEMANN,
Assistant Examiner.

APPROPRIATIONS, ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

FROM

TRANSMITTING

A statement of the condition of appropriations December 4, 1886, under control of the Attorney-General.

DECEMBER 8, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, December 7, 1886.

SIR: Inclosed herewith is a statement of the condition of the appropriations under the control of the Attorney-General, taken from the books of the Department, ending December 4, 1886, that the same may be referred to the Committee on Appropriations for their information in appropriating moneys for the expenses of United States courts for the fiscal year 1888.

The Committee on Appropriations will notice a difference between the statement of amount now available for fees of attorneys for 1886 and that made to the committee by a clerk of the Department last week—a difference owing to a misunderstanding of the figures as presented by the bookkeeper of the Department.

The matter is brought to the attention of the committee that the appropriation for fees of attorneys for the fiscal year 1888 may be as liberal as the corresponding appropriation for the year 1887.

Very respectfully,

A. H. GARLAND,
Attorney-General.

Hon. JOHN G. CARLISLE,
Speaker, House of Representatives.

SUBSIDIARY SILVER COIN.

FROM

TRANSMITTING

A letter from the Director of the Mint inclosing a draft of and recommending the passage of a joint resolution for the issue of subsidiary silver coin.

DECEMBER 8, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 6, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to present a communication from the Director of the Mint, dated 2d instant, pointing out the need of new legislation in the matter of the statutory limit of subsidiary silver coin outstanding in circulation, commending the same to the consideration of Congress. With the object in view of simultaneous action in both houses of Congress, I have addressed a similar communication to the United States Senate.

Respectfully, yours,

D. MANNING,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF THE MINT,
Washington, D. C., December 2, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to invite your attention to the prevailing statutes relating to the quantity of subsidiary coin in circulation, and the effect of the same in restricting the issue of new coin to supply the public demand. The practice of the Treasury Department seems to have been based upon the theory that it is its duty to supply subsidiary coin up to the full requirements of this demand. Yet this practice seems to be not in accord with the joint resolution of 1876—limiting the amount of subsidiary coin outstanding to $50,000,000.

Believing that the action of the Department in meeting this demand, as well as the theory upon which this practice is obviously based, will be sustained by special enactment if the attention of Congress be invited to the necessity of specific legislation upon this important matter, I submit the following memorandum of the state of the case as viewed by me, accompanied by a draft of what might be proposed in the form of a joint resolution for the issue of subsidiary silver coin, should this coincide with your judgment and meet with your wishes.

Very respectfully,

JAMES P. KIMBALL,
Director of the Mint.

MEMORANDUM.

The act of February 21, 1853, by which act the silver coins of the United States of less denominations than one dollar were made subsidiary, provided (section 3):

"That in order to procure bullion for the requisite coinage of the subdivisions of the dollar authorized by this act, the Treasurer of the Mint, shall with the approval of the Director, purchase such bullion with the bullion fund."

Section 4 provided, however—

"That the amount coined into quarter-dollars, dimes, and half-dimes shall be regulated by the Secretary of the Treasury."

This was the first act which provided for the coinage of subsidiary silver, and by it the amount to be issued, as well as the manner of procuring the bullion for its coinage, was placed by law under the control of the Director of the Mint and the Secretary of the Treasury.

The act of February 12, 1873, known as the coinage act of 1873, which revises all the laws on the subject of coinage, provides (section 27, now section 3526, R. S.):

"In order to procure bullion for the silver coinage authorized by this title, the superintendents, with the approval of the Director of the Mint, as to price, terms, and quantity, shall purchase such bullion with the bullion fund."

There is no limitation contained in the act as to the amount of subsidiary silver coin which should be issued; so that the act of 1873 left the matter of the subsidiary coinage exactly as it was by the original act of 1853.

The act to provide for the resumption of specie payments, approved January 1 1875, provided—

"That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and required, as rapidly as practicable, to cause to be coined, at the mints of the United States, silver coins of the denominations of ten, twenty-five and fifty cents of standard value, and to issue them in redemption of an equal number and amount of fractional currency of similar denominations, or, at his discretion, he may issue such silver coins through the mints, sub-treasuries, public depositories and post-offices of the United States; and, upon such issue, he is hereby authorized and required to redeem an equal amount of fractional currency, until the whole amount of such fractional currency outstanding shall be redeemed."

The joint resolution of July 22, 1876, for the issue of silver coins, provided (section 1):

"That the Secretary of the Treasury may issue the silver coin at any time in the Treasury to an amount not exceeding ten million dollars in exchange for an equal amount of legal-tender notes," &c.

"SEC. 3. That in addition to the amount of subsidiary silver coin authorized by law to be issued in redemption of the fractional currency, it shall be lawful to manufacture at the several mints, and issue through the Treasury and its several offices, such coin to an amount that, including the amount of subsidiary silver coin and of fractional currency outstanding, shall in the aggregate, not exceed, at any time, fifty million dollars."

"SEC. 4. That the silver bullion required for the purposes of this resolution shall be purchased from time to time at market rate, by the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That the amount of money at any one time invested in such silver bullion, exclusive of such resulting coin, shall not exceed two hundred thousand dollars."

This joint resolution, while it contained no repealing clause, not only limited the amount of subsidiary silver coin outstanding at any one time to $50,000,000, but prescribed a different mode for the purchase of the bullion for such coinage, and, moreover, enacted that the amount of money at any one time invested in such bullion should not exceed $200,000.

It has always been a question whether this joint resolution repealed the existing statutes (sections 3526 and 3527, R. S.). It appears to have been passed for the purpose of authorizing the substitution of subsidiary silver coin for the fractional currency outstanding, but its limitation of $50,000,000 as the amount of subsidiary silver which should be outstanding at any one time is not in harmony with the provisions of the coinage act of 1873 (sections 3526 and 3527, R. S.), and the two laws cannot be construed so that each shall stand.

The total coinage of subsidiary silver from 1853 to 1875, the date of the first resolution mentioned, was $64,825,896; from February 1, 1875, to July 31, 1876, under the provisions of the resumption act of 1875, there were coined $15,962,880, and from August 1, 1876, to June 30, 1886, $28,707,294. Total since 1853, $109,496,070.

The amount of subsidiary silver supposed to be in circulation at the present time is about seventy-five million dollars, notwithstanding the provisions in the joint resolution of July 22, 1876, that the amount outstanding at any time should not exceed fifty million dollars. There is, moreover, at the present time, a demand for certain denominations of subsidiary silver coin, and the mint is engaged in executing such coinage.

The purpose of this joint resolution is to remove the impracticable limitation in the amount of subsidiary coin outstanding, and to provide necessary legislation for such practice of the Government as has prevailed for a number of years.

PROPOSED JOINT RESOLUTION FOR THE ISSUE OF SUBSIDIARY SILVER COIN.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That so much of the joint resolution for the issue of subsidiary silver coin approved July 22, 1876 (section 3, page 254, Volume I, Supplement to the Revised Statutes), as limits the amount of subsidiary silver coin outstanding at any time to fifty million dollars, is hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. That in order to procure bullion for the subsidiary silver coinage authorized by law, the Director of the Mint, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury as to price, terms, and quantity, shall purchase such bullion with the bullion fund: Provided, however, That the amount coined into half-dollars, quarter-dollars, and dimes shall be regulated by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States of America.

FROM

TRANSMITTING

Detailed statements in explanation of estimates for improvement of streets, school buildings, and teachers.

DECEMBER 8, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 8, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for the consideration of Congress, certain detailed statements furnished by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in explanation of their estimates for improvements of streets and avenues, erection of school buildings, and teachers to be employed in the public schools during the ensuing fiscal year, which, so far as the items for streets and avenues and school buildings are concerned, seem to comply with the requirements of the act of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat., 104).

The explanation of the estimate for school teachers, however, is not in such detail as in the opinion of this Department is contemplated by the terms of the act requiring such information to be furnished, and I would suggest that a classification of teachers be made and the number and pay of each class be fixed by law, as is now done in several of the principal cities of the country.

Respectfully, yours,

D. MANNING,
Secretary.

The SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

TRANSMITTING

A letter from the Secretary of State, accompanied by the correspondence relating to the rights of American fishermen in British North American waters.

DECEMBER 8, 1886.—Referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States :

I transmit herewith a letter from the Secretary of State, which is accompanied by the correspondence in relation to the rights of American fishermen in the British North American waters, and commend to your favorable consideration the suggestion that a commission be authorized by law to take perpetuating proofs of the losses sustained during the past year by American fishermen, owing to their unfriendly and unwarranted treatment by the local authorities of the maritime provinces of the Dominion of Canada.

I may have occasion hereafter to make further recommendations during the present session for such remedial legislation as may become necessary for the protection of the rights of our citizens engaged in the open-sea fisheries of the North Atlantic waters.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, December 8, 1886.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, December 8, 1886.

To the PRESIDENT :

The Secretary of State has the honor to submit to the President, with a view to its communication to Congress, the correspondence relative to the fisheries in the waters adjacent to British North America, which has taken place during the present year,

It will disclose the action of this Department, and of our minister to Great Britain, in relation to the disputed construction of the convention of 1818, and what has been done to procure such an interpretation of its provisions as will be acceptable to both parties to that instrument, and consistent with their mutual interest and honor.

From time to time since the conclusion of the treaty of 1818, differences have arisen between the two Governments as to the extent of the renunciation by the United States of their former fishing rights in common in the littoral waters of British North America, and the true definition of the rights and privileges retained by, and expressly guaranteed to, the United States in the first article of that convention.

The history of this question during the period from 1818 to the present time has been one of unsuccessful attempts to adjust the respective claims, and occasionally the difficulties have been bridged over by temporary arrangements, notably by the treaty of Washington of June 5, 1854, and by the treaty of Washington of May 8, 1871, the fishery articles of the latter having been abrogated by the United States on June 30, 1885.

It is deeply to be regretted that the efforts of this Department, as shown by the correspondence now submitted, to arrive at such an agreement as would permit instructions of like tenor to be issued by the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, to guide the citizens of the respective nationalities in the unmolested exercise of their rights of fishing in the waters in question, and defining the limits of lawful action therein, have not as yet reached a final and satisfactory result.

Although propositions are now pending for consideration, which it is hoped may prove the basis of a just and permanent settlement, yet as supplementary to the published history of this long-standing subject, and as illustrating the obvious necessity in the interest of amity and good neighborhood of having a clear and well-defined understanding of the relative rights of the two Governments and their respective citizens, it is considered expedient that Congress should have full knowledge of the action of the Executive in the premises to assist them in their deliberations upon this important subject.

It will be observed in the course of this correspondence that notification has not failed to be duly given to the Government of Great Britain, that compensation is expected for the loss and damage caused to American fishermen by the unwarrantable action of the local authorities of the Dominion of Canada, not merely by the summary seizure of their vessels and the exaction of heavy fines in advance of hearing or judgment, but for the curtailment of privileges to which they were justly entitled under commercial regulations as well as treaty stipulations, and the consequent interference with their legitimate voyages, whereby the natural profits of their industry were seriously diminished, and in many cases wholly destroyed.

It would seem proper that steps in perpetuam rei memoriam should be taken by Congress to allow proofs to be made and placed upon record of these losses and injuries to our citizens, to enable them to be properly presented to Her Majesty's Government for settlement; and that for this purpose a commission should be authorized by Congress to take the necessary proofs of the respective claimants.

Respectfully submitted,

T. F. BAYARD,

IV.—EXTENSION OF CERTAIN FISHING RIGHTS UNDER THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON.

- 110.—Senate Document No. 32, first session Forty-ninth Congress.

I.—CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND THE BRITISH LEGATION IN WASHINGTON.

No. 1.

Sir L. West to Mr. Bayard.

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1886. [Received March 20.]

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that the Earl of Rosebery has requested me to ascertain whether it is intended to give notice to the United States fishermen that they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters, as Her Majesty's Government are considering the expediency of issuing a reciprocal notice with regard to British fishermen in American waters.

I have, &c.,

L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

No. 2.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

Washington, March 23, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 19th instant, whereby you inform me that you have been requested by the Earl of Rosebery to ascertain "whether it is intended to give notice to the United States fishermen that they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters," and to inform you, in reply, that as full and formal public notification in the premises has already been given by the President's proclamation of 31st January, 1885, it is not now deemed necessary to repeat it.

The temporary arrangement made between us on the 22d of June, 1885, whereby certain fishing operations on the respective coasts were not to be interfered with during the fishing season of 1885, notwithstanding the abrogation of the fishery articles of the treaty of Washington, came to an end under its own expressed limitation on the 31st of December last, and the fisheries question is now understood to rest on existing treaties, precisely as though no fishery articles had been incorporated in the treaty of Washington.

In view of the enduring nature and important extent of the rights secured to American fishermen in British North American territorial waters under the provisions of the treaty of 1818, to take fish within the three-mile limit on certain defined parts of the British North American coasts, and to dry and cure fish there under certain conditions, this Government has not found it necessary to give to United States fishermen any notification that "they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters."

I have, &c.,

BRITISH LEGATION,
Washington, March 24, 1886. [Received March 25.]

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 23d instant, in reply to mine of the 19th, informing me that, as full and formal public notification in the premises has already been given by the President's proclamation of the 31st January, 1885, it has not been found necessary to give to United States fishermen any further notification that they are now precluded from fishing in British North American territorial waters. I have duly informed Her Majesty's Government and the Government of the Dominion of this decision.

No. 4.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 10, 1886.

SIR: On the 6th instant I received from the consul-general of the United States at Halifax a statement of the seizure of an American schooner, the Joseph Story, of Gloucester, Mass., by the authorities at Baddeck, Cape Breton, and her discharge after a detention of twenty-four hours.

On Saturday, the 8th instant, I received a telegram from the same official announcing the seizure of the American schooner David J. Adams, of Gloucester, Mass., in the Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, and that the vessel had been placed in the custody of an officer of the Canadian steamer Lansdowne and sent to St. John, New Brunswick, for trial.

As both of these seizures took place in closely landlocked harbors, no invasion of the territorial waters of the British Provinces, with the view of fishing there, could well be imagined; and yet the arrests appear to have been based upon the act or intent of fishing within waters as to which, under the provision of the treaty of 1818 between Great Britain and the United States of America, the liberty of the inhabitants of the United States to fish has been renounced.

It would be superfluous for me to dwell upon the desire which, I am sure, controls those respectively charged with the administration of the Governments of Great Britain and of the United States to prevent occurrences tending to create exasperation, or unneighborly feeling, or collision between the inhabitants of the two countries; but, animated with this sentiment, the time seems opportune for me to submit some views for your consideration, which I confidently hope will lead to such administration of the laws regulating the commercial interests and the mercantile marine of the two countries as may promote good feeling and mutual advantage, and prevent hostility to commerce under the guise of protection to inshore fisheries.

The treaty of 1818 is between two nations, the United States of America and Great Britain, who, as the contracting parties, can alone apply authoritative interpretation thereto, or enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation.

The discussion prior to the conclusion of the treaty of Washington in 1871 was productive of a substantial agreement between the two countries as to the existence and limit of the three marine miles within the line of which, upon the regions defined in the treaty of 1818, it should not be lawful for American fishermen to take, dry, or cure fish. There is no hesitancy upon the part of the Government of the United States to proclaim such inhibition and warn their citizens against the infraction of the treaty in that regard, so that such inshore fishing cannot lawfully be enjoyed by an American vessel being within three marine miles of the land.

But since the date of the treaty of 1818, a series of laws and regulations importantly affecting the trade between the North American Provinces of Great Britain and the United States have been, respectively, adopted by the two countries, and have led to amicable and mutually beneficial relations between their respective inhabitants.

This independent and yet concurrent action by the two Governments has effected a gradual extension, from time to time, of the provisions of Article I of the convention of July 3, 1815, providing for reciprocal liberty of commerce between the United States and the territories of Great Britain in Europe, so as gradually to include the colonial possessions of Great Britain in North America and the West Indies within the results of that treaty.

President Jackson's proclamation of October 5, 1830, created a reciprocal commercial intercourse, on terms of perfect equality of flag, between this country and the British American dependencies, by repealing the navigation acts of April 18, 1818, May 15, 1820, and March 1, 1823, and admitting British vessels and their cargoes "to an entry in the ports of the United States from the islands, provinces, and colonies of Great Britain on or near the American continent, and north or east of the United States." These commercial privileges have since received a large extension in the interests of propinquity, and in some cases favors have been granted by the United States without equivalent concession. Of the latter class is the exemption granted by the shipping act of June 26, 1884, amounting to one-half of the regular tonnage-dues on all vessels from the British North American and West Indian possessions entering ports of the United States. Of the reciprocal class are the arrangements for transit of goods, and the remission, by proclamation, as to certain British ports and places of the remainder of the tonnage-tax, on evidence of equal treatment being shown to our vessels.

On the other side, British and colonial legislation, as notably in the case of the imperial shipping and navigation act of June 26, 1849, has contributed its share toward building up an intimate intercourse and beneficial traffic between the two countries founded on mutual interest and convenience.

These arrangements, so far as the United States are concerned, depend upon municipal statute and upon the discretionary powers of the Executive thereunder.

The seizure of the vessels I have mentioned, and certain published "warnings" purporting to have been issued by the colonial authorities, would appear to have been made under a supposed delegation of jurisdiction by the Imperial Government of Great Britain, and to be intended to include authority to interpret and enforce the provisions of the treaty of 1818, to which, as I have remarked, the United States and Great Britain are the contracting parties, who can alone deal responsibly with questions arising thereunder.

The effect of this colonial legislation and Executive interpretation, if executed according to the letter, would be not only to expand the restrictions and renunciations of the treaty of 1818, which related solely to inshore fishery within the three-mile limit, so as to affect the deep-sea fisheries, the right to which remained unquestioned and unimpaired for the enjoyment of the citizens of the United States, but further to diminish and practically to destroy the privileges expressly secured to American fishing vessels to visit those inshore waters for the objects of shelter, repair of damages, and purchasing wood, and obtaining water.

Since 1818, certain important changes have taken place in fishing in the regions in question, which have materially modified the conditions under which the business of inshore fishing is conducted and which must have great weight in any present administration of the treaty.

Drying and curing fish, for which a use of the adjacent shores was at one time requisite, is now no longer followed, and modern invention of processes of artificial freezing, and the employment of vessels of a larger size, permit the catch and direct transportation of fish to the markets of the United States without recourse to the shores contiguous to the fishing grounds.

The mode of taking fish inshore has also been wholly changed, and from the highest authority on such subjects I learn that bait is no longer needed for such fishing, that purse-seines have been substituted for the other methods of taking mackerel, and that by their employment these fish are now readily caught in deeper waters entirely exterior to the three-mile line.

As it is admitted that the deep-sea fishing was not under consideration in the negotiation of the treaty of 1818, nor was affected thereby, and as the use of bait for inshore fishing has passed wholly into disuse, the reasons which may have formerly existed for refusing to permit American fishermen to catch or procure bait within the line of a marine league from the shore lest they should also use it in the same inhibited waters for the purpose of catching other fish, no longer exist.

For it will, I believe, be conceded as a fact that bait is no longer needed to catch herring or mackerel, which are the objects of inshore fishing, but is used, and only used, in deep-sea fishing, and, therefore, to prevent the purchase of bait or any other supply needed in deep-sea fishing, under color of executing the provisions of the treaty of 1818, would be to expand that convention to objects wholly beyond its purview, scope, and intent, and give to it an effect never contemplated by either party, and accompanied by results unjust and injurious to the citizens of the United States.

As, therefore, there is no longer any inducement for American fishermen to "dry and cure" fish on the interdicted coasts of the Canadian Provinces, and as bait is no longer used or needed by them [for the prosecution of inshore fishing] in order to "take" fish in the inshore waters to which the treaty of 1818 alone relates, I ask you to consider the results of excluding American vessels, duly possessed of permits from their own Government to touch and trade at Canadian ports as well as to engage in deep sea-fishing, from exercising freely the same customary and reasonable rights and privileges of trade in the ports of the British colonies as are freely allowed to British vessels in all the ports of the United States under the laws and regulations to which I have adverted.

Among these customary rights and privileges may be enumerated the purchase of ship-supplies of every nature, making repairs, the shipment of crews in whole or part, and the purchase of ice and bait for use in deep-sea fishing.

Concurrently, these usual rational and convenient privileges are freely extended to and are fully enjoyed by the Canadian merchant marine of all occupations, including fishermen in the ports of the United States.

The question therefore arises whether such a construction is admissible as would convert the treaty of 1818 from being an instrumentality for the protection of the inshore fisheries along the described parts of the British American coast into a pretext or means of obstructing the business of deep-sea fishing by citizens of the United States, and of interrupting and destroying the commercial intercourse that since the treaty of 1818, and independent of any treaty whatever, has grown up and now exists under the concurrent and friendly laws and mercantile regulations of the respective countries.

I may recall to your attention the fact that a proposition to exclude the vessels of the United States engaged in fishing from carrying also merchandise was made by the British negotiators of the treaty of 1818, but being resisted by the American negotiators was abandoned. This fact would seem clearly to indicate that the business of fishing did not then, and does not now, disqualify a vessel from also trading in the regular ports of entry.

I have been led to offer these considerations by the recent seizures of American vessels to which I have adverted and by indications of a local spirit of interpretation in the Provinces, affecting friendly intercourse, which is, I firmly believe, not warranted by the terms of the stipulations on which it professes to rest. It is not my purpose to prejudge the facts of the cases, nor have I any desire to shield any American vessel from the consequences of violation of international obligation. The views I advance may prove not to be applicable in every feature to those particular cases, and I should be glad if no case whatever were to arise calling in question the good understanding of the two countries in this regard in order to be free from the grave apprehensions which otherwise I am unable to dismiss.

It would be most unfortunate, and, I cannot refrain from saying, most unworthy, if the two nations who contracted the treaty of 1818 should permit any questions of mutual right and duty under that convention to become obscured by partisan advocacy or distorted by the heat of local interests. It cannot but be the common aim to conduct all discussion in this regard with dignity and in a self-respecting spirit, that will show itself intent upon securing equal justice rather than unequal advantage. Comity, courtesy, and justice cannot, I am sure, fail to be the ruling motives and objects of discussion.

I shall be most happy to come to a distinct and friendly understanding with you, as the representative of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, which will result in such a definition of the rights of American fishing-vessels under the treaty of 1818 as shall effectually prevent any encroachment by them upon the territorial waters of the British Provinces for the purpose of fishing within those waters, or trespassing in any way upon the littoral or marine rights of the inhabitants, and, at the same time, prevent that convention from being improperly expanded into an instrument of discord by affecting interests and accomplishing results wholly outside of and contrary to its object and intent, by allowing it to become an agency to interfere with and perhaps destroy those reciprocal commercial privileges and facilities between neighboring communities which contribute so importantly to their peace and happiness. It is obviously essential that the administration of the laws regulating the Canadian inshore fishing should not be conducted in a punitive and hostile spirit, which can only tend to induce acts of a retaliatory nature.

Everything will be done by the United States to cause their citizens engaged in fishing to conform to the obligations of the treaty, and prevent an infraction of the fishing laws of the British Provinces; but it is equally necessary that ordinary commercial intercourse should not be interrupted by harsh measures and unfriendly administration.

I have the honor, therefore, to invite a frank expression of your views upon the subject, believing that, should any differences of opinion or disagreement as to facts exist, they will be found to be so minimized that an accord can be established for the full protection of the inshore fishing of the British Provinces, without obstructing the open-sea fishing operations of the citizens of the United States or disturbing the trade regulations now subsisting between the countries.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 20, 1886.

SIR: Although without reply to the note I had the honor to address to you on the 10th instant, in relation to the Canadian fisheries and the interpretation of the treaty of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain as to the rights and duties of the American citizens engaged in maritime trade and intercourse with the Provinces of British North America, in view of the unrestrained, and, as it appears to me, unwarranted, irregular, and severe action of Canadian officials toward American vessels in those waters, yet I feel it to be my duty to bring impressively to your attention information more recently received by me from the United States consul-general at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in relation to the seizure and continued detention of the American schooner David J. Adams, already referred to in my previous note, and the apparent disposition of the local officials to use the most extreme and technical reasons for interference with vessels not engaged in or intended for inshore fishing on that coast.

The report received by me yesterday evening alleges such action in relation to the vessel mentioned as renders it difficult to imagine it to be that orderly proceeding and "due process of law" so well known and customarily exercised in Great Britain and the United States, and which dignifies the two Governments, and gives to private rights of property and the liberty of the individual their essential safeguards.

By the information thus derived it would appear that after four several and distinct visitations by boats' crews from the Lansdowne, in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, the David J. Adams was summarily taken into custody by the Canadian steamer Lansdowne and carried out of the Province of Nova Scotia, across the Bay of Fundy, and into the port of St. John, New Brunswick, and without explanation or hearing, on the following Monday, May 10, taken back again by an armed crew to Digby, in Nova Scotia. That in Digby the paper alleged to be the legal precept for the capture and detention of the vessel was nailed to her mast in such manner as to prevent its contents being read, and the request of the captain of the David J. Adams and of the United States consul-general to be allowed to detach the writ from the mast for the purpose of learning its contents was positively refused by the provincial official in charge. Nor was the United States consul-general able to learn from the commander of the Lansdowne the nature of the complaint against the vessel, and his respectful application to that effect was fruitless.

In so extraordinary, confused, and irresponsible a condition of affairs, it is not possible to ascertain with that accuracy which is needful in matters of such grave importance the precise grounds for this harsh and peremptory arrest and detention of a vessel the property of citizens of a nation with whom relations of peace and amity were supposed to exist.

From the best information, however, which the United States consul-general was enabled to obtain after application to the prosecuting officials, he reports that the David J. Adams was seized and is now held (1) for alleged violation of the treaty of 1818; (2) for alleged violation of the act 59 Geo. III; (3) for alleged violation of the colonial act of Nova Scotia of 1868; and (4) for alleged violation of the act of 1870 and also that of 1883, both Canadian statutes.

Of these allegations there is but one which at present I press upon your immediate consideration, and that is the alleged infraction of the treaty of 1818.

I beg to recall to your attention the correspondence and action of those respectively charged with the administration and government of Great Britain and the United States in the year 1870, when the same international questions were under consideration and the status of law was not essentially different from what it is at present.

This correspondence discloses the intention of the Canadian authorities of that day to prevent encroachment upon their inshore fishing grounds, and their preparations in the way of a marine police force, very much as we now witness. The statutes of Great Britain and of her Canadian Provinces, which are now supposed to be invoked as authority for the action against the schooner David J. Adams, were then reported as the basis of their proceedings.

In his note of May 26, 1870, Mr. (afterwards Sir Edward) Thornton, the British minister at this capital, conveyed to Mr. Fish, then Secretary of State, copies of the orders of the royal Admiralty to Vice-Admiral Wellesley, in command of the naval forces "employed in maintaining order at the fisheries in the neighborhood of the coasts of Canada."

All of these orders directed the protection of Canadian fishermen and cordial co-operation and concert with the United States force sent on the same service with respect to American fishermen in those waters. Great caution in the arrest of American vessels charged with violation of the Canadian fishing laws was scrupulously enjoined upon the British authorities, and the extreme importance of the commanding officers of ships selected to protect the fisheries exercising the utmost discretion in paying especial attention to Lord Granville's observation, that no vessel should be seized unless it were evident, and could be clearly proved, that the offense of fishing had been committed, and the vessel captured within three miles of land.

This caution was still more explicitly announced when Mr. Thornton, on the 11th of June, 1870, wrote to Mr. Fish:

You are, however, quite right in not doubting that Admiral Wellesley, on the receipt of the later instructions addressed to him on the 5th ultimo, will have modified the directions to the officers under his command so that they may be in conformity with the views of the Admiralty. In confirmation of this I have since received a letter from Vice-Admiral Wellesley dated the 30th ultimo, informing me that he had received instructions to the effect that officers of Her Majesty's ships employed in the protection of the fisheries should not seize any vessel unless it were evident, and could be clearly proved, that the offense of fishing had been committed and the vessel itself captured within three miles of land.

This understanding between the two Governments wisely and efficiently guarded against the manifest danger of intrusting the execution of powers so important and involving so high and delicate a discretion to any but wise and responsible officials, whose prudence and care should be commensurate with the magnitude and national importance of the interests involved. And I should fail in my duty if I did not endeavor to impress you with my sense of the absolute and instant necessity that now exists for a restriction of the seizure of American vessels charged with violations of the treaty of 1818 to the conditions announced by Sir Edward Thornton to this Government in June, 1870.

The charges of violating the local laws and commercial regulations of the ports of the British Provinces (to which I am desirous that due and full observance should be paid by citizens of the United States), I do not consider in this note, and I will only take this occasion to ask you to give me full information of the official action of the Canadian authorities in this regard, and what laws and regulations having the force of law, in relation to the protection of their inshore fisheries and preventing encroachments thereon, are now held by them to be in force.

But I trust you will join with me in realizing the urgent and essential importance of restricting all arrests of American fishing vessels for supposed or alleged violations of the convention of 1818 within the limitations and conditions laid down by the authorities of Great Britain in 1870, to wit: That no vessel shall be seized unless it is evident and can be clearly proved that the offense of fishing has been committed and the vessel itself captured within three miles of land.

In regard to the necessity for the instant imposition of such restrictions upon the arrest of vessels, you will, I believe, agree with me, and I will therefore ask you to procure such steps to be taken as shall cause such orders to be forthwith put in force under the authority of Her Majesty's Government.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 22, 1886.

MY DEAR SIR LIONEL: I have telegraphed to-day to Mr. Phelps, urging the advantage and need of my coming to some immediate understanding with you expressive of the views of the two parties to the treaty.

My conviction strengthens as to the importance of having a stop put at once to vexatious interpretations and action by local authorities, which can only hinder an amicable accord, and I have asked that these seizures be suspended without prejudice to the legal results pending an authoritative treatment of the main question.

It surely cannot be the purpose of the provincial authorities to embarrass the two Governments, by whom alone the issues are cognizable. A frank and friendly spirit has been exhibited by both Governments in abstaining from any demonstration of naval force in the provincial waters, and it is desirable that this should be continued, as it will add to the moral impressiveness of any settlement we may arrive at.

Very faithfully yours,

T. F. BAYARD.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 29, 1886.

SIR: I have just received an official imprint of House of Commons bill No. 136, now pending in the Canadian Parliament, entitled "An act further to amend the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," and am informed that it has passed the house and is now pending in the senate.

This bill proposes the forcible search, seizure, and forfeiture of any foreign vessel within any harbor in Canada, or hovering within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, where such vessel has entered such waters for any purpose not permitted by the laws of nations, or by treaty or convention, or by any law of the United Kingdom or of Canada now in force.

I hasten to draw your attention to the wholly unwarranted proposition of the Canadian authorities, through their local agents, arbitrarily to enforce according to their own construction the provisions of any convention between the United States and Great Britain, and, by the interpolation of language not found in any such treaty, and, by interpretation not claimed or conceded by either party to such treaty, to invade and destroy the commercial rights and privileges of citizens of the United States under and by virtue of treaty stipulation with Great Britain and statutes in that behalf made and provided.

I have also been furnished with a copy of circular No. 371, purporting to be from the customs department at Ottawa, dated May 7, 1886, and to be signed by J. Johnson, commissioner of customs, assuming to execute the provisions of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded October 20, 1818, and printed copies of a warning, purporting to be issued by George E. Foster, minister of marine and fisheries, dated at Ottawa, March 5, 1886, of a similar tenor, although capable of unequal results in its execution.

Such proceedings I conceive to be flagrantly violative of the reciprocal commercial privileges to which citizens of the United States are lawfully entitled under statutes of Great Britain and the well-defined and publicly proclaimed authority of both countries, besides being in respect of the existing conventions between the two countries an assumption of jurisdiction entirely unwarranted and which is wholly denied by the United States.

In the interest of the maintenance of peaceful and friendly relations, I give you my earliest information on this subject, adding that I have telegraphed Mr. Phelps, our minister at London, to make earnest protest to Her Majesty's Government against such arbitrary, unlawful, unwarranted and unfriendly action on the part of the Canadian Government and its officials, and have instructed Mr. Phelps to give notice that the Government of Great Britain will be held liable for all losses and injuries to citizens of the United States and their property caused by the unauthorized and unfriendly action of the Canadian officials to which I have referred.

WASHINGTON, June 2, 1886.

MY DEAR SIR LIONEL: A telegram from Eastport, in Maine, to the member of Congress from that district, announces a threat by Dominion collectors of customs to seize American boats if they buy herring for canning in the Dominion weirs.

This additional threatened inhibition of trade relates to the sardine industry, which consists in canning in the United States very small and young herring, which, I am informed, are caught very closely inshore in weirs, in Canadian waters, by the inhabitants and sold to citizens of the United States.

The occupation is carried on solely by Canadian fishermen, along the coasts of their own country, so that the interference suggested is with their freedom of contract to dispose of property lawfully the result of their own labors, because the sale is to citizens of the United States.

It is important that the facts should be made known plainly.

Yours very sincerely,

T. F. BAYARD.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 7, 1886.

SIR: I regret exceedingly to communicate that report is to-day made to me, accompanied by affidavit, of the refusal of the collector of customs at the port of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, to allow the master of the American schooner Annie M. Jordan, of Gloucester, Mass., to enter the said vessel at that port, although properly documented as a fishing vessel with permission to touch and trade at any foreign port or place during her voyage.

The object of such entry was explained by the master to be the purchase and exportation of "certain merchandise" (possibly fresh fish for food, or bait for deep-sea fishing).

The vessel was threatened with seizure by the Canadian authorities, and her owners allege that they have sustained damage from this refusal of commercial rights.

I earnestly protest against this unwarranted withholding of lawful commercial privileges from an American vessel and her owners, and for the loss and damage consequent thereon the Government of Great Britain will be held liable.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 14, 1886.

SIR: The consul-general of the United States at Halifax communicated to me the information derived by him from the collector of customs at that port to the effect that American fishing vessels will not be permitted to land fish at that port of entry for transportation in bond across the province.

I have also to inform you that the masters of the four American fishing vessels of Gloucester, Mass., Martha A. Bradley, Rattler, Eliza Boynton, and Pioneer, have severally reported to the consul-general at Halifax that the subcollector of customs at Canso had warned them to keep outside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside Canso Head to a point three miles outside St. Esprit, on the Cape Breton coast, a distance of 40 miles. This line for nearly its entire continuance is distant 12 to 25 miles from the coast.

The same masters also report that they were warned against going inside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside North Cape, on Prince Edward Island, to a point three miles outside of East Point, on the same island, a distance of over 100 miles, and that this last-named line was for nearly that entire distance about 30 miles from the shore.

The same authority informed the masters of the vessels referred to that they would not be permitted to enter Bay Chaleur.

Such warnings are, as you must be well aware, wholly unwarranted pretensions of extraterritorial authority and usurpations of jurisdiction by the provincial officials.

It becomes my duty, in bringing this information to your notice, to request that if any such orders for interference with the unquestionable rights of the American fishermen to pursue their business without molestation at any point not within three marine miles of the shores, and within the defined limits as to which renunciation of the liberty to fish was expressed in the treaty of 1818, may have been issued, the same may at once be revoked as violative of the rights of citizens of the United States under convention with Great Britain.

I will ask you to bring this subject to the immediate attention of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, to the end that proper remedial orders may be forthwith issued.

It seems most unfortunate and regrettable that questions which have been long since settled between the United States and Great Britain should now be sought to be revived.

BRITISH LEGATION,
Washington, June 18, 1886. [Received June 19.]

Sir Lionel West presents his compliments to Mr. Bayard, and has the honor to transmit to him herewith the accompanying acts, which have been forwarded to him, at the request of Sir John McDonald, by the deputy minister of marine and fisheries, for his information.

CAP. XIV.

AN ACT relating to the fisheries, and for the prevention of illicit trade in Prince Edward's Island, and the coasts and harbors thereof.

Whereas by the convention made between his late Majesty King George the Third and the United States of America, signed at London, on the twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighteen, and the statute made and passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, all foreign ships, vessels, or boats, or any ship, vessel, or boat, other than such as shall be navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, within certain distances of any coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors whatever, in any part of His Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the limits specified in the first article of the said convention, are liable to seizure; and whereas the United States did, by the said convention, renounce forever any liberty enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the above-mentioned limits: Provided, however, That the American fishermen should be admitted to enter such bays or harbors for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purposes whatever, but under such restrictions as might be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges thereby reserved to them; and whereas no rules or regulations have been made for such purpose, and the interests of the inhabitants of this island are materially impaired; and whereas the said act does not designate the persons who are to make such seizure as aforesaid, and it frequently happens that persons found within the distances of the coasts aforesaid, infringing the articles of the convention aforesaid, and the enactments of the statute aforesaid, on being taken possession of profess to have come within said limits for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, or to purchase wood and obtain water, by which the law is evaded, and the vessels and cargoes escape confiscation, although the cargoes may be evidently intended to be smuggled into this island, and the fishery carried on contrary to the said convention and statute:

I. Be it therefore enacted by the lieutenant-governor, council, and assembly, That from and after the passing of this act, it shall be lawful for the officers of Her Majesty's customs, the officers of imposts and excise, the sheriffs and magistrates throughout this island, and any person holding a commission for that purpose from his excellency the lieutenant-governor, for the time being, to go on board any ship, vessel, or boat within any port, bay, creek, or harbor in this island, and also to go on board any ship, vessel, or boat hovering within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors thereof, and in either case freely to stay on board such ship, vessel or boat, as long as she shall remain within such port or distance, and if any such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue so hovering for the space of twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, it shall be lawful for any of the above enumerated officers or persons to bring such ship, vessel, or boat into port, and to search and examine her cargo and to examine the master upon oath, touching the cargo and voyage, and if there be any goods on board prohibited to be imported into this island, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the cargo laden on board thereof, shall be forfeited; and if the said ship, vessel, or boat shall be foreign, and not navigated according to the law of Great Britain and Ireland, and shall have been found fishing or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing, within such distance of such coasts, bays, creek, or harbors of this island, such ship, vessel, or boat, and their respective cargoes shall be forfeited, and if the master or person in command thereof shall not truly answer the questions which shall be demanded of him in such examination, he shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds.

II. And be it further enacted, That all goods, ships, vessels, and boats liable to forfeiture under this act shall, and may be, seized and secured by any such officer of Her Majesty's customs, officer of imposts and excise, sheriffs, magistrates, or other person holding such commission as aforesaid; and every person who shall in any way oppose, molest, or obstruct any officer of the customs, officer of impost and excise, sheriff, magistrate, or other person so commissioned and employed as aforesaid, in the exercise of his office, or shall in any way oppose, molest, or obstruct any person acting in aid or assistance of such officer of customs, officer of imposts and excise, sheriff, magistrate, or other person so commissioned and employed as aforesaid, shall, for every such offense, forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds.

III. And be it further enacted, That all goods, ships, vessels, and boats which shall be seized as being liable to forfeiture under this act shall be taken forthwith and delivered into the custody of the collector of customs at the custom-house next to the place where the same was seized, who shall secure and keep the same in such manner as other vessels and goods seized are directed to be secured by the commissioners of Her Majesty's customs.

IV. And be it further enacted, That all goods, ships, vessels, boats, or other things which shall have been condemned as forfeited under this act shall, under the direction of the principal officer of the customs or excise, where such seizure shall have been secured, be sold by public auction to the best bidder, and the produce of such sale to be applied as follows, that is to say, the amount chargeable for the custody of said goods, ship, vessel, boat, or any other thing so seized as aforesaid, shall be first deducted and paid, and the residue divided into two equal moieties, one of which shall be paid to the officer or other person or persons legally seizing the same without deduction, and the other moiety to the Government, and paid into the treasury of this island, all costs incurred having been first deducted therefrom: Provided always, That it shall be lawful for the lieutenant-governor, in council, to direct that any of such things shall be destroyed, or reserved for the public service.

V. And be it further enacted, That all penalties and forfeitures, which may be hereafter incurred under this act, shall and may be prosecuted, sued for, and recovered, in the court of vice-admiralty having jurisdiction in this island.

VI. And be it further enacted, That if any goods, or any ship, vessel or boat shall be seized as forfeited under this act, it shall be lawful for the judge or judges of any court having jurisdiction to try and determine such seizures, with the consent of the person seizing the same, to order the delivery thereof, on security, by bond, with two sufficient sureties, to be first approved by such seizing officer or person, to answer double the value of the same in case of condemnation, and such bond shall be taken to the use of Her Majesty, in the name of the collector of the customs, in whose custody the goods, or ship, vessel, or boat may be lodged, and such bond shall be delivered and kept in the custody of such collector; and in case the goods, or ship, vessel, or boat shall be condemned, the value thereof shall be paid into the hands of such collector, who shall cancel such bond, and distribute the money paid in such manner as is above directed.

VII. And be it further enacted, That no suit shall be commenced for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture under this act, except in the name of Her Majesty, and shall be prosecuted by Her Majesty's advocate or attorney general, or in his absence, by the solicitor-general for this island; and if any question shall arise, whether any person is an officer of the customs, excise, sheriff, magistrate, or other person authorized to seize as aforesaid, viva voce evidence may be given of such fact, and it shall be deemed legal and sufficient evidence.

VIII. And be it further enacted, That if any goods, ship, vessel, or boat shall be seized for any cause or forfeiture under this act, and any dispute shall arise whether the same have been lawfully seized, the proof touching the illegality thereof shall be on the owner or claimant of such goods, ship, vessel, or boat, and not on the officer or person who shall seize and stop the same.

IX. And be it further enacted, That no claim to anything seized under this act, and returned into Her Majesty's court of vice-admiralty for adjudication, shall be admitted, unless such claim be entered in the name of the owner, with his residence and occupation; nor unless oath to the property in such thing be made by the owner, or by his attorney or agent, by whom such claim shall be entered, to the best of his knowledge and belief; and every person making a false oath thereto shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to the pains and penalties to which persons are liable for a misdemeanor.

X. And be it further enacted, That no person shall be admitted to enter a claim to anything seized in pursuance of this act and prosecuted in this island until sufficient security shall have been given in the court where such seizure is prosecuted, in a penalty not exceeding sixty pounds, to answer and pay the costs occasioned by such claim, and in default of giving such security, such things shall be adjudged to be forfeited, and shall be condemned.

XI. And be it further enacted, That no writ shall be sued out against nor a copy of any process served upon any officer of the customs, excise, sheriff, magistrate, or other person authorized to seize as aforesaid, for anything done in the exercise of this office until one calendar month after notice, in writing, shall have been delivered to him or left at his usual place of abode by the attorney or agent of the party who intends to sue out such writ or process, in which notice shall be clearly and explicitly contained the cause of action, and the name and place of abode of the person who is to bring such action, and the name and place of abode of the attorney or agent, and no evidence of the cause of such action shall be produced, except of such as shall be contained in such notice, and no verdict shall be given for the plaintiff unless he shall prove on the trial that such notice was given, and, in default of such proof, the defendant shall receive in such action a verdict and costs, or judgment of non-suit shall be awarded against the plaintiff, as the court shall direct.

XII. And be it further enacted, That every such action shall be brought within three calendar months after the cause thereof, and shall be laid and tried in Her Majesty's supreme court of judicature for this island, and the defendant may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff shall become non-suited, or shall discontinue the action, or, if, upon a verdict of demurrer, judgment shall be given against the plaintiff, the defendant shall receive treble costs, and have such remedy for the same as any defendant can have in other cases where costs are given by law.

XIII. And be it further enacted, That in case any information or suit shall be brought to trial, on account of any seizure made under this act, and a verdict shall be found for the claimant thereof, and the judge or court before whom the cause shall have been tried shall certify on the record that there was probable cause of seizure the claimant shall not be entitled to any costs of suit, nor shall the person who made such seizure be liable to any action, indictment, or other suit or prosecution on account of any such seizure; and if any such action, indictment, or other suit or prosecution shall be brought to trial against any person on account of such seizure, wherein a verdict shall be given against the defendant, the plaintiff, besides the thing seized or the value thereof, shall be entitled to no more than twopence damages, nor to any costs of suit, nor shall the defendant in such prosecution be fined more than one shilling.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any such officer of the customs, excise, or sheriff, or magistrate, or other person authorized to seize as aforesaid, within one calendar month after such notice, to tender amends to the party complaining, or his agent, and to plead such tender in bar to any action, together with other pleas, and if the jury shall find the amends sufficient they shall give a verdict for the defendant, and in such case, or in case the plaintiff shall become non-suit, or shall discontinue his action, or judgment shall be given for the defendant upon demurrer, then such defendant shall be entitled to the like costs as he would have been entitled to in case he had pleaded the general issue only, provided, always, that it shall be lawful for such defendant, by leave of the court where such action shall be brought, at any time before or after issue joined, to pay money into court, as in other actions.

XV. And be it further enacted, That in any such action if the judge or court before whom such action shall be tried shall certify upon the record that the defendant or defendants in such action acted upon probable cause, then the plaintiff in such action shall not be entitled to more than two pence damages nor to any costs of suit.

XVI. And be it further enacted, That all actions or suits for the recovery of any of the penalties or forfeitures imposed by this act may be commenced or prosecuted at any time within three years after the offence was committed, by reason whereof such penalties or forfeitures shall be incurred, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

XVII. And be it further enacted, That no appeal shall be prosecuted from any decree or sentence of any of Her Majesty's courts in this island touching any penalty or forfeiture imposed by this act unless the inhibition shall be applied for and decreed within twelve months from the time when such decree or sentence was pronounced.

XVIII. And be it further enacted, That this act shall not go into force or be of any effect until Her Majesty's assent shall be signified thereto and an order made by Her Majesty in council that the clauses and provisions in this act shall be rules, regulations, and restrictions respecting the fisheries on the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of the island of Prince Edward.

* * This act received the royal allowance on the 3d of September, 1844, and an order was on the same day made by Her Majesty in council declaring that its clauses and provisions should be the rules, regulations, and restrictions respecting the fisheries on the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of the island of Prince Edward; and notification of said royal assent and of the said order was published in the Royal Gazette, a newspaper of this island, on the 8th day of October, 1884.

31 VICTORIA, CHAP. 61.

AN ACT respecting fishing by foreign vessels. Assented to 22d May, 1868.

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. The governor may, from time to time, grant to any foreign ship, vessel, or boat, or to any ship, vessel, or boat not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom, or of Canada, at such rate, and for such period not exceeding one year, as he may deem expedient, a license to fish for or take, dry or cure any fish of any kind whatever, in British waters, within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors whatever, of Canada, not included within the limits specified and described in the first article of the convention between his late Majesty King George the Third and the United States of America, made and signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818.

2. Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's navy cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, fishery officer, or stipendiary magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries, or any officer of the customs of Canada, sheriff, magistrate, or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel, or boat within any harbor in Canada or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance.

3. If such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbor or so hovering for 24 hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel, or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit $400; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat under the first section of this act, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

4. All goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo liable to forfeiture under this act may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this act; and every person opposing any officer or person in execution of his duty under this act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit $800, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

5. Goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo seized as liable to forfeiture under this act, shall be forthwith delivered into the custody of the collector or other principal officer of the customs at the port nearest to the place where seized, to be secured and kept as other goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo seized are directed by the laws in force in the province in which such port is situate, to be secured and kept, or into such other custody and keeping as the governor in council, or a court of vice-admiralty shall order.

6. All goods, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo, condemned as forfeited under this act, shall, by direction of the collector or other principal officer of the customs at the port where the seizure has been secured, be sold at public auction, and the proceeds of such sale shall be applied as follows: The amount chargeable for the custody of the property seized shall first be deducted and paid over for that service; one-half of the remainder shall be paid without deduction, to the officer or person seizing the same, and the other half, after first deducting therefrom all costs incurred, shall be paid to the receiver-general of Canada, through the department of marine and fisheries; but the governor in council may, nevertheless, direct that any ship, vessel, boat, or goods, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo seized and forfeited, shall be destroyed or be reserved for the public service.

7. Any penalty or forfeiture under this act may be prosecuted and recovered in any court or vice-admiralty within Canada.

8. The judge of the court of vice-admiralty may, with the consent of the person seizing any goods, ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo, as forfeited under this act, order the redelivery thereof, on security by bond to be given by the party, with two sureties, to the use of Her Majesty, and in case any goods, ship, vessel, or boat, or the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo so redelivered is condemned as forfeited, the value thereof shall be paid into court, and distributed as above directed.

9. Her Majesty's attorney-general for Canada may sue for and recover in Her Majesty's name any penalty or forfeiture incurred under this act.

10. In case a dispute arises as to whether any seizure has or has not been legally made, or as to whether the person seizing was or was not authorized to seize under this act, oral evidence may be heard thereupon, and the burden of proving the illegality of the seizure shall be upon the owner or claimant.

11. No claim to anything seized under this act and returned into any court of vice-admiralty for adjudication shall be admitted unless the claim be entered under oath, with the name of the owner, his residence and occupation, and the description of the property claimed, which oath shall be made by the owner, his attorney, or agent, and to the best of his knowledge and belief.

12. No person shall enter a claim to anything seized under this act until security has been given in a penalty not exceeding two hundred and forty dollars to answer and pay costs occasioned by such claim, and in default of security the things seized shall be adjudged forfeited, and shall be condemned.

13. No writ shall be sued out against any officer or other person authorized to seize under this act for anything done under this act, until one month after notice in writing delivered to him or left at his usual place of abode by the person intending to sue out such writ, his attorney or agent; in which notice shall be contained the cause of action, the name and place of abode of the person who is to bring the action, and of his attorney or agent, and no evidence of any cause of action shall be produced except such as shall be contained in such notice.

14. Every such action shall be brought within three months after the cause thereof has arisen.

15. If on any information or suit brought to trial under this act on account of any seizure, judgment shall be given for the claimant, and the judge or court shall certify on the record that there was probable cause of seizure, the claimant shall not recover costs, nor shall the person who made the seizures be liable to any indictment or suit on account thereof; and if any suit or prosecution be brought against any person on account of any seizure under this act, and judgment be given against him, and the court or judge shall certify that there was probable cause for the seizure, then the plaintiff, besides the thing seized or its value, shall not recover more than three and a half cents damages, nor any costs of suit, nor shall the defendant be fined more than twenty cents.

16. Any officer or person who has made a seizure under this act may, within one month after notice of action received, tender amends to the party complaining, or to his attorney or agent, and may plead such tender.

17. All actions for the recovery of penalties or forfeitures imposed by this act must be commenced within three years after the offense committed.

18. No appeal shall be prosecuted from any decree, or sentence of any court touching any penalty or forfeiture imposed by this act, unless the inhibition be applied for and decreed within twelve months from the decree or sentence being pronounced.

19. In cases of seizure under this act, the governor in council may, by order, direct a stay of proceedings; and in cases of condemnation may relieve from the penalty in whole or in part, and on such terms as may be deemed right.

20. The several provisions of this act shall apply to any foreign ship, vessel, or boat in or upon the inland waters of Canada; and the provisions hereinbefore contained in respect to any proceedings in a court of vice-admiralty shall, in the case of any foreign ship, vessel, or boat, in or upon the inland waters of Canada, apply to, and any penalty or forfeiture in respect thereof shall be prosecuted and recovered in one of the superior courts of the province within which such cause of prosecution may arise.

21. Neither the ninety-fourth chapter of the Revised Statutes of Nova Scotia (third series), "Of the coast and deep-sea fisheries," nor the act of the legislature of the Province of Nova Scotia, passed in the twenty-ninth year of Her Majesty's reign, chapter thirty-five amending the same, nor the act of the legislature of the province of New Brunswick passed in the sixteenth year of Her Majesty's reign, chapter sixty-nine, entitled "An act relating to the coast fisheries and for the prevention of illicit trade," shall apply to any case to which this act applies; and so much of the said chapter and of each of the said acts as makes provision for cases provided for by this act, is hereby declared to be inapplicable to such cases.

33 VICTORIA, CHAP. 15.

AN ACT to amend the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels. Assented to 12th May, 1870.

Whereas it is expedient, for the more effectual protection of the in-shore fisheries of Canada against intrusion by foreigners, to amend the act entitled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," passed in the thirty-first year of Her Majesty's reign: Therefore, Her Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. The third section of the above cited act shall be, and is hereby repealed, and the following section is enacted in its stead:

3. "Any one of such officers or persons as are above-mentioned may bring any ship, vessel, or boat being within any harbor in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, into port, and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master, or person in command, shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit $400; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom, or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat, under the first section of this act, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited."

2. This act shall be construed as one with the said act "respecting fishing by foreign vessels."

34 VICTORIA, CHAP. 23.

AN ACT further to amend the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels. Assented to April 14, 1871.

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. The fifth section of the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels, passed in the thirty-first year of Her Majesty's reign, chapter sixty-one, is hereby repealed, and the following section is hereby enacted in its stead:

"5. Goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo seized as liable to forfeiture under this act shall be forthwith delivered into the custody of such fishery officer, or customs officer, or other person as the minister of marine and fisheries may from time to time direct, or retained by the officer making the seizure in his own custody, if so directed by the minister, in either case to be secured and kept as other goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo seized are directed by the laws in force in the province in which the seizure is made, to be secured and kept."

2. The sixth section of the said act is hereby repealed, and the following section is hereby enacted in its stead:

"6. All goods, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo condemned as forfeited under this act, shall be sold by public auction, by direction of the officer having the custody thereof, under the provisions of the next preceding section of this act, and under regulations to be from time to time made by the governor in council; and the proceeds of every such sale shall be subject to the control of the minister of marine and fisheries, who shall first pay therefrom all necessary costs and expenses of custody and sale, and the governor in council may from time to time apportion three-fourths or less of the net remainder among the officers and crew of any Queen's ship or Canadian Government vessel, from on board of which the seizure was made, as he may think right, reserving for the Government and paying over to the receiver-general at least one-fourth of such net remainder to form part of the consolidated revenue fund of Canada; but the governor in council may, nevertheless, direct that any goods, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo, seized and forfeited, shall be destroyed, or be reserved for the public service."

3. This act shall be construed as one with the act hereby amended; and the sixth section of the said act, as contained in the second section of this act, shall apply to all goods, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo, condemned under the said act before the passing of this act, and to the proceeds of the sale thereof, remaining to be applied and paid at the time of the passing of this act.

46 VICTORIA, CHAP. 27.

AN ACT to extend to British Columbia the act relating to fishing by foreign vessels. Assented to 25th May, 1883.

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. The act thirty-first Victoria, chapter sixty-one, intituled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," is hereby extended to the Province of British Columbia.

No. 16.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 2, 1886.

SIR: It is my unpleasant duty promptly to communicate to you the telegraphic report to me by the United States consul-general at Halifax, that the schooner City Point, of Portland, Me., arrived at the port of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, landed two men, obtained water, and is detained by the authorities until further instructions are received from Ottawa.

The case as thus reported is an infringement on the ordinary rights of international hospitality, and constitutes a violation of treaty stipulations and commercial privileges, evincing such unfriendliness to the citizens of the United States as is greatly to be deplored, and which I hold it to be the responsible duty of the Government of Great Britain promptly to correct.

SIR: With reference to your note of the 29th of May, I have the honor to inform you that I am instructed by the Earl of Rosebery to state that the matters therein referred to will receive the careful attention of Her Majesty's Government after the necessary communication with the Dominion Government.

No. 19.*Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.*DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 10, 1886.

SIR: On the 2d of June last I had the honor to inform you that dispatches from Eastport in Maine had been received, reporting threats by the customs officials of the Dominion to seize American boats coming into those waters to purchase herring from the Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning the same as sardines, which would be a manifest infraction of the right of purchase and sale of herring caught and sold by Canadians in their own waters—in the pursuance of legitimate trade.

To this note I have not had the honor of a reply.

To-day Mr. C. A. Boutelle, M. C. from Maine, informs me that American boats visiting St. Andrews, New Brunswick, for the purpose of there purchasing herring from the Canadian weirs, for canning, had been driven away by the Dominion cruiser Middleton.

Such inhibition of usual and legitimate commercial contracts and intercourse is assuredly without warrant of law, and I draw your attention to it in order that the commercial rights of citizens of the United States may not be thus invaded and subjected to unfriendly discrimination.

I have, &c.,

No. 20.*Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.*DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 10, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I am in receipt of a report from the consul-general of the United States at Halifax, accompanied by sworn testimony stating that the Novelty, a duly registered merchant steam-vessel of the United States, has been denied the right to take in steam-coal, or purchase ice, or transship fish in bond to the United States, at Pictou, Nova Scotia.

It appears that, having reached that port on the 1st instant and finding the customs office closed on account of a holiday, the master of the Novelty telegraphed to the minister of marine and fisheries at Ottawa, asking if he would be permitted to do any of the three things mentioned above; that he received, in reply, a telegram reciting with certain inaccurate and extended application the language of Article I of the treaty of 1818, the limitations upon the significance of which are in pending discussion between the Government of the United States and that of Her Britannic Majesty; that on entering and clearing the Novelty on the following day at the custom-house, the collector stated that his instructions were contained in the telegram the master had received; and that, the privilege of coaling being denied, the Novelty was compelled to leave Pictou without being allowed to obtain fuel necessary for her lawful voyage on a dangerous coast.

Against this treatment I make instant and formal protest as an unwarranted interpretation and application of the treaty by the officers of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Nova Scotia, as an infraction of the laws of commercial and maritime intercourse existing between the two countries, and as a violation of hospitality, and for any loss or injury resulting therefrom the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will be held liable.

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Hardinge.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 16, 1886.

SIR: I have just received through the honorable C. A. Boutelle, M. C., the affidavit of Stephen R. Balkam, alleging his expulsion from the harbor of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, by Captain Kent, of the Dominion cruiser Middleton, and the refusal to permit him to purchase fish caught and sold by Canadians, for the purpose of canning as sardines.

The action of Captain Kent seems to be a gross violation of ordinary commercial privileges against an American citizen proposing to transact his customary and lawful trade and not prepared or intending in any way to fish or violate any local law or regulation or treaty stipulation.

I trust instant instructions to prevent the recurrence of such unfriendly and unlawful treatment of American citizens may be given to the offending officials at St. Andrews, and reparation be made to Mr. Balkam.

No. 25.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 30, 1886.

SIR: It is my duty to draw your attention to an infraction of the stipulations of the treaty between the United States of America and Great Britain, concluded October 20, 1818.

By the provisions of Article I of that convention the liberty to take fish of every kind, forever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty is secured to the inhabitants of the United States "on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland, which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands," and on the other coasts and shores in the said article set forth.

Notwithstanding these plain provisions, I regret to be obliged to inform you that by the affidavit of the master of the American fishing vessel Thomas F. Bayard, that being at Bonne Bay, which is on the western coast of Newfoundland within the limits specified in Article I of the convention referred to, the master of the said vessel was formally notified by one N. N. Taylor, the officer of customs at that point, that his vessel would be seized if he attempted to obtain a supply of fish for bait or for any other transaction in connection with fishing operations within three marine miles of that coast.

To avoid the seizure of his vessel the master broke up his voyage and returned home.

I am also in possession of the affidavit of Alexander T. Eachern, master of the American fishing schooner Mascot, who entered Port Amherst, Magdalen Islands, and was there threatened by the customs official with seizure of his vessel if he attempted to obtain bait for fishing or to take a pilot.

These are flagrant violations of treaty rights of their citizens for which the United States expect prompt remedial action by Her Majesty's Government; and I have to ask that such instructions may be issued forthwith to the provincial officials of Newfoundland and of the Magdalen Islands as will cause the treaty rights of citizens of the United States to be duly respected.

For the losses occasioned in the two cases I have mentioned, compensation will hereafter be expected from Her Majesty's Government when the amount shall have been accurately ascertained.

SIR: With reference to the several communications received by Her Majesty's legation referring to the action of the Canadian authorities in connection with the present position of the North American fisheries question, I have the honor to forward to you herewith, in compliance with instructions which I have received from the Earl of Rosebery, printed copies of three dispatches and their inclosures addressed by his lordship to Her Majesty's minister on the 23d ultimo, stating the views of Her Majesty's Government, in reply to your notes to Sir L. West of the 10th, 20th, 29th May, and 14th June.

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

FOREIGN OFFICE, July 23, 1886.

SIR: I have received your dispatch No. 28 (treaty), of the 11th of May last, inclosing a copy of a note addressed to you by Mr. Bayard, in which, whilst expressly referring to the seizure by the Canadian authorities of the American fishing vessels Joseph Story and David J. Adams, he discusses at length the present position of the North American fisheries question.

I have also received a communication upon the same subject from the United States minister at this court, dated the 2d June last, which, although advancing arguments of a somewhat different character, is substantially addressed to the consideration of the same question.

I think it therefore desirable to reply to these two communications together in the present dispatch, of which I shall hand a copy to Mr. Phelps.

The matter is one involving the gravest interests of Canada; and, upon receipt of the communications above mentioned, I lost no time in requesting the secretary of state for the colonies to obtain from the Government of the Dominion an expression of their views thereon. I now inclose a copy of an approved report of the Canadian privy council, in which the case of Canada is so fully set forth that I think it would be desirable, as a preliminary step to the further discussion of the questions involved in this controversy, to communicate a copy of it to Mr. Bayard, as representing the views of the Dominion Government; and I have to request that, in so doing, you will state that Her Majesty's Government will be glad to be favored with any observations which Mr. Bayard may desire to make thereon.

In regard to those portions of Mr. Phelps's note of the 2d June, in which he calls in question the competence of the Canadian authorities under existing statutes, whether imperial or colonial, to effect seizures of United States fishing vessels under circumstances such as those which appear to have led to the capture of the David J. Adams, I have to observe that Her Majesty's Government do not feel themselves at present in a position to discuss that question, which is now occupying the attention of the courts of law in the Dominion, and which may possibly form the subject of an appeal to the judicial committee of Her Majesty's privy council in England.

It is believed that the courts in Canada will deliver judgment in the above cases very shortly; and until the legal proceedings now pending have been brought to a conclusion, Her Majesty's Government do not feel justified in expressing an opinion upon them, either as to the facts or the legality of the action taken by the colonial authorities.

I do not, therefore, conceive it to be at present necessary to make any specific reply to Mr. Bayard's further notes of the 11th and 12th May and 1st, 2d, and 7th June last. But with regard to his note of the 20th May, relative to the seizure of the United States fishing vessel Jennie and Julia, I inclose for communication to Mr. Bayard a copy of a report from the Canadian minister of marine and fisheries dealing with this case.

I cannot, however, close this dispatch without adding that Her Majesty's Government entirely concur in that passage of the report of the Canadian privy council, in which it is observed that "if the provisions of the convention of 1818 have become inconvenient to either contracting party, the utmost that good-will and fair dealing can suggest is that the terms shall be reconsidered."

It is assuredly from no fault on the part of Her Majesty's Government that the question has now been relegated to the terms of the convention of 1818. They have not ceased to express their anxiety to commence negotiations, and they are now prepared to enter upon a frank and friendly consideration of the whole question with the most earnest desire to arrive at a settlement consonant alike with the rights and interests of Canada and of the United States.

Where, as in the present case, conflicting interests are brought into antagonism by treaty stipulations the strict interpretation of which has scarcely been called in question, the matter appears to Her Majesty's Government to be pre-eminently one for friendly negotiation.

I am, &c.

Report of a committee of the honorable the privy council for Canada, approved by his excellency the governor-general on the 14th June, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had under consideration a report from the minister of marine and fisheries upon the communications dated 10th and 20th May last from the Hon. Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State of the United States, to Her Majesty's minister at Washington, in reference to the seizure of the American fishing-vessel David J. Adams.

The committee concur in the annexed report, and they advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof to the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All of which is respectfully submitted for your excellency's approval.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council, Canada.

The undersigned having had his attention called by your excellency to a communication from Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State of the United States, dated the 10th May, and addressed to Her Majesty's minister at Washington, and to a further communication from Mr. Bayard, dated the 20th May instant, in reference to the seizure of the American fishing vessel David J. Adams, begs leave to submit the following observations thereon:

Your excellency's Government fully appreciates and reciprocates Mr. Bayard's desire that the administration of the laws regulating the commercial interests and the mercantile marine of the two countries might be such as to promote good feeling and mutual advantage.

Canada has given many indisputable proofs of an earnest desire to cultivate and extend her commercial relations with the United States, and it may not be without advantage to recapitulate some of those proofs.

For many years before 1854 the maritime provinces of British North America had complained to Her Majesty's Government of the continuous invasion of their inshore fisheries (sometimes accompanied, it was alleged, with violence) by American fishermen and fishing vessels.

Much irritation naturally ensued, and it was felt to be expedient by both Governments to put an end to this unseemly state of things by treaty, and at the same time to arrange for enlarged trade relations between the United States and the British North American colonies. The reciprocity treaty of 1854 was the result, by which were not only our inshore fisheries opened to the Americans, but provision was made for the free interchange of the principal natural products of both countries, including those of the sea. Peace was preserved on our waters, and the volume of international trade steadily increased during the existence of this treaty, and until it was terminated in 1866, not by Great Britain, but by the United States.

In the following year Canada (then become a dominion and united to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick) was thrown back on the convention of 1818, and obliged to fit out a marine police to enforce the laws and defend her rights, still desiring, however, to cultivate friendly relations with her great neighbor, and not too suddenly to deprive the American fishermen of their accustomed fishing grounds and means of livelihood. She readily acquiesced in the proposal of Her Majesty's Government for the temporary issue of annual licenses to fish on payment of a moderate fee. Your excellency is aware of the failure of that scheme. A few licenses were issued at first, but the applications for them soon ceased, and the American fishermen persisted in forcing themselves into our waters "without leave or license."

Then came the recurrence, in an aggravated form, of all the troubles which had occurred anterior to the reciprocity treaty. There were invasions of our waters, personal conflicts between our fishermen and American crews, the destruction of nets, the seizure and condemnation of vessels, and intense consequent irritation on both sides.

This was happily put an end to by the Washington treaty of 1871. In the interval between the termination of the first treaty and the ratification of that by which it was eventually replaced, Canada on several occasions pressed, without success, through the British minister at Washington, for a renewal of the reciprocity treaty or for the negotiation of another on a still wider basis.

When in 1874 Sir Edward Thornton, then British minister at Washington, and the late Hon. George Brown, of Toronto, were appointed joint plenipotentiaries for the purpose of negotiating and concluding a treaty relating to fisheries, commerce, and navigation, a provisional treaty was arranged by them with the United States Government, but the Senate decided that it was not expedient to ratify it, and the negotiation fell to the ground.

The treaty of Washington, while it failed to restore the provisions of the treaty of 1854, for reciprocal free trade (except in fish), at least kept the peace, and there was tranquillity along our shores until July, 1885, when it was terminated again by the United States Government and not by Great Britain.

With a desire to show that she wished to be a good neighbor, and in order to prevent loss and disappointment on the part of the United States fishermen by their sudden exclusion from her waters in the middle of the fishing season, Canada continued to allow them, for six months, all the advantages which the rescinded fishery clauses had previously given them, although her people received from the United States none of the corresponding advantages which the treaty of 1871 had declared to be an equivalent for the benefits secured thereby to the American fishermen.

The President, in return for this courtesy, promised to recommend to Congress the appointment of a joint commission of the two Governments of the United Kingdom and the United States to consider the fishery question, with permission also to consider the whole state of trade relations between the United States and Canada.

This promise was fulfilled by the President, but the Senate rejected his recommendation and refused to sanction the commission.

Under these circumstances Canada, having exhausted every effort to procure an amicable arrangement, has been driven again to fall back upon the convention of 1818, the provisions of which she is now enforcing and will enforce, in no punitive or hostile spirit as Mr. Bayard supposes, but solely in protection of her fisheries, and in vindication of the right secured to her by treaty.

Mr. Bayard suggests that "the treaty of 1818 was between two nations—the United States of America and Great Britain—who, as the contracting parties, can alone apply authoritative interpretation thereto, and enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation."

As it may be inferred from this statement that the right of the Parliament of Canada to make enactments for the protection of the fisheries of the Dominion, and the power of the Canadian officers to protect those fisheries, are questioned, it may be well to state at the outset the grounds upon which it is conceived by the undersigned that the jurisdiction in question is clear beyond a doubt.

1. In the first place the undersigned would ask it to be remembered that the extent of the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada is not limited (nor was that of the Provinces before the union) to the sea-coast, but extends for three marine miles from the shore as to all matters over which any legislative authority can in any country be exercised within that space. The legislation which has been adopted on this subject by the Parliament of Canada (and previously to confederation by the Provinces) does not reach beyond that limit. It may be assumed that, in the absence of any treaty stipulation to the contrary, this right is so well recognized and established by both British and American law, that the grounds on which it is supported need not be stated here at large. The undersigned will merely add, therefore, to this statement of the position, that so far from the right being limited by the convention of 1818 that convention expressly recognizes it.

After renouncing the liberty to "take, cure, or dry fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of His Majesty's dominions in America," there is a stipulation that while American fishing vessels shall be admitted to enter such bays, &c., "for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, curing, or drying fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges reserved to them."

2. Appropriate legislation on this subject was, in the first instance, adopted by the Parliament of the United Kingdom. The imperial statute 59 Geo. III, cap. 38, was enacted in the year following the convention, in order to give that convention force and effect. That statute declared that, except for the purposes before specified, it should "not be lawful for any person or persons, not being a natural-born subject of His Majesty, in any foreign ship, vessel, or boat, nor for any person in any ship, vessel, or boat, other than such as shall be navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to fish for, or to take, dry, or cure any fish of any kind whatever within three marine miles of any coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors whatever, in any part of His Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the limits specified and described in the first article of the said convention, and that if such foreign ship, vessel, or boat, or any person or persons on board thereof shall be found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish within such distance of such coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors within such parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, out of the said limits as aforesaid, all such ships, vessels, and boats, together with their cargoes, and all guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel, furniture, and stores, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized, taken, sued for, prosecuted, recovered, and condemned by such and the like ways, means, and methods, and in the same courts as ships, vessels, or boats may be forfeited, seized, prosecuted, and condemned for any offense against any laws relating to the revenue of customs, or the laws of trade and navigation, under any act or acts of the Parliament of Great Britain or the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, provided that nothing contained in this act shall apply or be construed to apply to the ships or subjects of any prince, power, or state in amity with His Majesty who are entitled by treaty with His Majesty to any privileges of taking, drying, or curing fish on the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors or within the limits in this act described. Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for any fishermen of the said United States to enter into any such bays or harbors of His Britannic Majesty's dominions in America as are last mentioned, for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever, subject nevertheless to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent such fishermen of the said United States from taking, drying, or curing fish in the said bays or harbors, or in any other manner whatever, abusing the said privileges by the said treaty and this act reserved to them, and as shall, for that purpose, be imposed by any order or orders to be from time to time made by His Majesty in council under the authority of this act, and by any regulations which shall be issued by the governor or person exercising the office of governor in any such parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, under or in pursuance of any such order in council as aforesaid. And that if any person or persons upon requisition made by the governor of Newfoundland, or the person exercising the office of governor, or by any governor in person exercising the office of governor in any other parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, as aforesaid, or by any officer or officers acting under such governor or person exercising the office of governor, in the execution of any orders or instructions from His Majesty in council, shall refuse to depart from such bays or harbors, or if any person or persons shall refuse, or neglect, to conform to any regulations or directions which shall be made or given for the execution of any of the purposes of this act, every such person so refusing or otherwise offending against this act shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds, to be recovered in the superior court of judicature of the island of Newfoundland, or in the superior court of judicature of the colony or settlement within or near to which such offense shall be committed, or by bill, plaint, or information in any of His Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, one moiety of such penalty to belong to His Majesty, his heirs, and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall sue or prosecute for the same."

The acts passed by the Provinces now forming Canada, and also by the Parliament of Canada (now noted in the margin)* are to the same effect, and may be said to be merely declaratory of the law as established by the imperial statute.

3. The authority of the legislatures of the Provinces, and, after confederation, the authority of the Parliament of Canada, to make enactments to enforce the provisions of the convention, as well as the authority of Canadian officers to enforce those acts, rests on well-known constitutional principles.

Those legislatures existed, and the Parliament of Canada now exists, by the authority of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, which is one of the nations referred to by Mr. Bayard as the "contracting parties." The colonial statutes have received the sanction of the British sovereign, who, and not the nation, is actually the party with whom the United States made the convention. The officers who are engaged in enforcing the acts of Canada or the laws of the Empire, are Her Majesty's officers, whether their authority emanates directly from the * Dominion acts, 31 Vict., cap. 6; 33 Vict., cap. 16; now incorporated in Revised Statutes of 1886 cap. 90. Nova Scotia acts, Revised Statutes, 3d series, cap. 94, 29 Vict (1866), cap. 35. New Brunswick acts, 16 Vict. (1853), cap. 69. Prince Edward Island acts, 6 Vict. (1843), cap. 14.

Queen, or from her representative, the governor-general. The jurisdiction thus exercised cannot, therefore, be properly described in the language used by Mr. Bayard as a supposed and therefore questionable delegation of jurisdiction by the Imperial Government of Great Britain. Her Majesty governs in Canada as well as in Great Britain; the officers of Canada are her officers; the statutes of Canada are her statutes, passed on the advice of her Parliament sitting in Canada.

It is, therefore, an error to conceive that because the United States and Great Britain were, in the first instance, the contracting parties to the treaty of 1818, no question arising under that treaty can be "responsibly dealt with," either by the Parliament or by the authorities of the Dominion.

The raising of this objection now is the more remarkable, as the Government of the United States has long been aware of the necessity of reference to the colonial legislatures in matters affecting their interests.

The treaties of 1854 and 1871 expressly provide that, so far as they concerned the fisheries or trade relations with the provinces, they should be subject to ratification by their several legislatures; and seizures of American vessels and goods, followed by condemnation for breach of the provincial customs laws, have been made for forty years without protest or objection on the part of the United States Government.

The undersigned, with regard to this contention of Mr. Bayard, has further to observe that in the proceedings which have recently been taken for the protection of the fisheries, no attempt has been made to put any special or novel interpretation on the convention of 1818. The seizures of the fishing vessels have been made in order to enforce the explicit provisions of that treaty, the clear and long established provisions of the imperial statute and of the statutes of Canada expressed in almost the same language.

The proceedings which have been taken to carry out the law of the Empire in the present case are the same as those which have been taken from time to time during the period in which the convention has been in force, and the seizures of vessels have been made under process of the imperial court of vice-admiralty established in the provinces of Canada.

Mr. Bayard further observes that since the treaty of 1818, "a series of laws and regulations affecting the trade between the North American provinces and the United States have been respectively adopted by the two countries, and have led to amicable and mutually beneficial relations between their respective inhabitants," and that "the independent and yet concurrent action of the two Governments has effected a gradual extension from time to time of the provisions of article 1 of the convention of the 3d of July, 1815, providing for reciprocal liberty of commerce between the United States and the territories of Great Britain in Europe, so as gradually to include the colonial possessions of Great Britain in North America and the West Indies within the limits of that treaty."

The undersigned has not been able to discover, in the instances given by Mr. Bayard, any evidence that the laws and regulations affecting the trade between the British North American Provinces and the United States, or that "the independent and yet concurrent action of the two Governments" have either extended or restricted the terms of the convention of 1818, or affected in any way the right to enforce its provisions according to the plain meaning of the articles of the treaty; on the contrary, a reference to the eighteenth article of the Washington treaty will show that the contracting parties made the convention the basis of the further privileges granted by the treaty, and it does not allege that its provisions are in any way extended or affected by subsequent legislation or acts of administration.

Mr. Bayard has referred to the proclamation of President Jackson in 1830, creating "reciprocal commercial intercourse on terms of perfect equality of flag" between the United States and the British American dependencies, and has suggested that these "commercial privileges have since received a large extension, and that in some cases 'favors' have been granted by the United States without equivalent 'concession,' such as the exemption granted by the shipping act of the 26th June, 1884, amounting to one-half of the regular tonnage dues on all vessels from British North America and West Indies entering ports of the United States."

He has also mentioned under this head "the arrangement for the transit of goods, and the remission by proclamation as to certain British ports and places of the remainder of the tonnage tax on evidence of equal treatment being shown" to United States vessels.

The proclamation of President Jackson in 1830 had no relation to the subject of the fisheries, and merely had the effect of opening United States ports to British vessels on terms similar to those which had already been granted in British ports to vessels of the United States. The object of these "laws and regulations" mentioned by Mr. Bayard was purely of a commercial character, while the sole purpose of the convention of 1818 was to establish and define the rights of the citizens of the two countries in relation to the fisheries on the British North American coast.

Bearing this distinction in mind, however, it may be conceded that substantial assistance has been given to the development of commercial intercourse between the two countries.

But legislation in that direction has not been confined to the Government of the United States, as indeed Mr. Bayard has admitted in referring to the case of the imperial shipping and navigation act of 1849.

For upwards of forty years, as has already been stated, Canada has continued to evince her desire for a free exchange of the chief products of the two countries. She has repeatedly urged the desirability of the fuller reciprocity of trade which was established during the period in which the treaty of 1854 was in force.

The laws of Canada with regard to the registry of vessels, tonnage dues, and shipping generally, are more liberal than those of the United States. The ports of Canada in inland waters are free to vessels of the United States, which are admitted to the use of her canals on equal terms with Canadian vessels.

Canada allows free registry to ships built in the United States and purchased by British citizens, charges no tonnage or light dues on United States shipping, and extends a standing invitation for a large measure of reciprocity in trade by her tariff legislation.

Whatever relevancy, therefore, the argument may have to the subject under consideration, the undersigned submits that the concessions which Mr. Bayard refers to as "favours" granted by United States can hardly be said not to have been met by equivalent concessions on the part of the Dominion, and inasmuch as the disposition of Canada continues to be the same, as was evinced in the friendly legislation just referred to, it would seem that Mr. Bayard's charges of showing "hostility to commerce under the guise of protection to inshore fisheries," or of interrupting ordinary commercial intercourse by harsh measures and unfriendly administration, is hardly justified.

The questions which were in controversy between Great Britain and the United States prior to 1818 related not to shipping and commerce, but to the claims of United States fishermen to fish in waters adjacent to the British North American Provinces.

Those questions were definitely settled by the convention of that year, and although the terms of that convention have since been twice suspended, first by the treaty of 1854, and subsequently by that of 1871, after the lapse of each of these two treaties the provisions made in 1818 came again into operation, and were carried out by the Imperial and colonial authorities without the slightest doubt being raised as to their being in full force and vigor.

Mr. Bayard's contention that the effect of the legislation which has taken place under the convention of 1818, and of executive action thereunder, would be "to expand the restrictions and renunciations of that treaty which related solely to the inshore fishing within the three-mile limit, so as to affect the deep-sea fisheries," and "to diminish and practically destroy the privileges expressly secured to American fishing vessels to visit these inshore waters for the objects of shelter and repair of damages, and purchasing wood and obtaining water," appears to the undersigned to be unfounded. The legislation referred to in no way affects those privileges, nor has the Government of Canada taken any action towards their restriction. In the cases of the recent seizures, which are the immediate subject of Mr. Bayard's letter, the vessels seized had not resorted to Canadian waters for any one of the purposes specified in the convention of 1818 as lawful. They were United States fishing vessels, and, against the plain terms of the convention, had entered Canadian harbors. In doing so the David J. Adams was not even possessed of a permit "to touch and trade," even if such a document could be supposed to divest her of the character of a fishing vessel.

The undersigned is of opinion that while, for the reasons which he has advanced, there is no evidence to show that the Government of Canada has sought to expand the scope of the convention of 1818 or to increase the extent of its restrictions, it would not be difficult to prove that the construction which the United States seeks to place on that convention would have the effect of extending very largely the privileges which their citizens enjoy under its terms. The contention that the changes which may from time to time occur in the habits of the fish taken off our coasts, or in the methods of taking them, should be regarded as justifying a periodical revision of the terms of the treaty, or a new interpretation of its provisions, cannot be acceded to. Such changes may from time to time render the conditions of the contract inconvenient to one party or the other, but the validity of the agreement can hardly be said to depend on the convenience or inconvenience which it imposes from time to time on one or other of the contracting parties. When the operation of its provisions can be shown to have become manifestly inequitable, the utmost that good-will and fair dealing can suggest is that the terms should be reconsidered and a new arrangement entered into; but this the Government of the United States does not appear to have considered desirable.

It is not, however, the case that the convention of 1818 affected only the inshore fisheries of the British Provinces; it was framed with the object of affording a complete and exclusive definition of the rights and liberties which the fishermen of the United States were thenceforward to enjoy in following their vocation, so far as those rights could be affected by facilities for access to the shores or waters of the British Provinces, or for intercourse with their people. It is therefore no undue expansion of the scope of that convention to interpret strictly those of its provisions by which such access is denied, except to vessels requiring it for the purposes specifically described.

Such an undue expansion would, upon the other hand, certainly take place if, under cover of its provisions, or of any agreements relating to general commercial intercourse which may have since been made, permission were accorded to United States fishermen to resort habitually to the harbors of the Dominion, not for the sake of seeking safety for their vessels or of avoiding risk to human life, but in order to use those harbors as a general base of operations from which to prosecute and organize with greater advantage to themselves the industry in which they are engaged.

It was in order to guard against such an abuse of the provisions of the treaty that amongst them was included the stipulation that not only should the inshore fisheries be reserved to British fishermen, but that the United States should renounce the right of their fishermen to enter the bays or harbors excepting for the four specified purposes, which do not include the purchase of bait or other appliances, whether intended for the deep-sea fisheries or not.

The undersigned, therefore, cannot concur in Mr. Bayard's contention that "to prevent the purchase of bait, or any other supply needed for deep-sea fishing, would be to expand the convention to objects wholly beyond the purview, scope, and intent of the treaty, and to give to it an effect never contemplated."

Mr. Bayard suggests that the possession by a fishing vessel of a permit to "touch and trade" should give her a right to enter Canadian ports for other than the purposes named in the treaty, or, in other words, should give her perfect immunity from its provisions. This would amount to a practical repeal of the treaty, because it would enable a United States collector of customs, by issuing a license, originally only intended for purposes of domestic customs regulation, to give exemption from the treaty to every United States fishing vessel. The observation that similar vessels under the British flag have the right to enter the ports of the United States for the purchase of supplies loses its force when it is remembered that the convention of 1818 contained no restriction on British vessels, and no renunciation of any privileges in regard to them.

Mr. Bayard states that in the proceedings prior to the treaty of 1818 the British commissioners proposed that United States fishing vessels should be excluded "from carrying also merchandise," but that this proposition "being resisted by the American negotiators, was abandoned," and goes on to say, "this fact would seem clearly to indicate that the business of fishing did not then, and does not now, disqualify vessels from also trading in the regular ports of entry." A reference to the proceedings alluded to will show that the proposition mentioned related only to United States vessels visiting those portions of the coast of Labrador and Newfoundland on which the United States fishermen had been granted the right to fish, and to land for drying and curing fish, and the rejection of the proposal can, at the utmost, be supposed only to indicate that the liberty to carry merchandise might exist without objection in relation to those coasts, and is no ground for supposing that the right extends to the regular ports of entry, against the express words of the treaty.

The proposition of the British negotiators was to append to Article I the following words: "It is, therefore, well understood that the liberty of taking, drying, and curing fish, granted in the preceding part of this article, shall not be construed to extend to any privilege of carrying on trade with any of his Britannic Majesty's subjects residing within the limits hereinbefore assigned for the use of the fishermen of the United States."

It was also proposed to limit them to having on board such goods as might "be necessary for the prosecution of the fishery or the support of the fishermen while engaged therein, or in the prosecution of their voyages to and from the fishing grounds."

To this the American negotiators objected, on the ground that the search for contraband goods, and the liability to seizure for having them in possession, would expose the fishermen to endless vexation, and, in consequence, the proposal was abandoned. It is apparent, therefore, that this proviso in no way referred to the bays or harbors outside of the limits assigned to the American fishermen, from which bays and harbors it was agreed, both before and after this proposition was discussed, that United States fishing vessels were to be excluded for all purposes other than for shelter and repairs, and purchasing wood and obtaining water.

If, however, weight is to be given to Mr. Bayard's argument that the rejection of a proposition advanced by either side during the course of the negotiations should be held to necessitate an interpretation adverse to the tenor of such proposition, that argument may certainly be used to prove that American fishing vessels were not intended to have the right to enter Canadian waters for bait to be used even in the prosecution of the deep-sea fisheries. The United States negotiators in 1818 made the proposition that the words "and bait" be added to the enumeration of the objects for which these fishermen might be allowed to enter, and the proviso as first submitted had read "provided, however, that American fishermen shall be permitted to enter such bays and harbors for the purpose only of obtaining shelter, wood, water, and bait." The addition of the two last words was, however, resisted by the British plenipotentiaries, and their omission acquiesced in by their American colleagues. It is, moreover, to be observed that this proposition could only have had reference to the deep-sea fishing, because the inshore fisheries had already been specifically renounced by the representatives of the United States.

In addition to this evidence, it must be remembered that the United States Government admitted, in the case submitted by them before the Halifax commission in 1877, that neither the convention of 1818 nor the treaty of Washington conferred any right or privilege of trading on American fishermen. The British case claimed compensation for the privilege which had been given since the ratification of the latter treaty to United States fishing vessels "to transfer cargoes, to outfit vessels, by supplies, obtain ice, engage sailors, procure bait, and traffic generally in British ports and harbors."

This claim was, however, successfully resisted, and in the United States case it is maintained "that the various incidental and reciprocal advantages of the treaty, such as the privileges of traffic, purchasing bait and other supplies, are not the subject of compensation, because the treaty of Washington confers no such rights on the inhabitants of the United States, who now enjoy them merely by sufferance, and who can at any time be deprived of them by the enforcement of existing laws or the re-enactment of former oppressive statutes. Moreover, the treaty does not provide for any possible compensation for such privileges."

Now, the existing laws referred to in this extract are the various statutes passed by the imperial and colonial legislatures to give effect to the treaty of 1818, which, it is admitted in the said case, could at any time have been enforced (even during the existence of the Washington treaty), if the Canadian authorities had chosen to do so.

Mr. Bayard on more than one occasion intimates that the interpretation of the treaty and its enforcement are dictated by local and hostile feelings, and that the main question is being "obscured by partisan advocacy and distorted by the heat of local interests," and, in conclusion, expresses a hope that "ordinary commercial intercourse shall not be interrupted by harsh measures and unfriendly administrations."

The undersigned desires emphatically to state that it is not the wish of the Government or the people of Canada to interrupt for a moment the most friendly and free commercial intercourse with the neighboring Republic.

The mercantile vessels and the commerce of the United States have at present exactly the same freedom that they have for years passed enjoyed in Canada, and the disposition of the Canadian Government is to extend reciprocal trade with the United States beyond its present limits, nor can it be admitted that the charge of local prejudice or hostile feeling is justified by the calm enforcement, through the legal tribunals of the country, of the plain terms of a treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and of the statutes which have been in operation for nearly seventy years, excepting in intervals during which (until put an end to by the United States Government) special and more liberal provisions existed in relation to the commerce and fisheries of the two countries.

The undersigned has further to call attention to the letter of Mr. Bayard of the 20th May, relating also to the seizure of the David J. Adams in the port of Digby, Nova Scotia.

That vessel was seized, as has been explained on a previous occasion, by the commander of the Canadian steamer Lansdowne, under the following circumstances:

She was a United States fishing vessel, and entered the harbor of Digby for purposes other than those for which entry is permitted by the treaty and by the imperial and Canadian statutes.

As soon as practicable, legal process was obtained from the vice-admiralty court at Halifax, and the vessel was delivered to the officer of that court. The paper referred to in Mr. Bayard's letter as having been nailed to her mast was doubtless a copy of the warrant which commanded the marshal or his deputy to make the arrest.

The undersigned is informed that there was no intention whatever of so adjusting the paper that its contents could not be read, but it is doubtless correct that the officer of the court in charge declined to allow the document to be removed. Both the United States consul-general and the captain of the David J. Adams were made acquainted with the reasons for the seizure, and the only ground for the statement that a respectful application to ascertain the nature of the complaint was fruitless, was that the commander of the Lansdowne, after the nature of the complaint had been stated to those concerned and was published, and had become notorious to the people of both countries, declined to give the United States consul-general a specific and precise statement of the charges upon which the vessel would be proceeded against, but referred him to his superior.

Such conduct on the part of the officer of the Lansdowne can hardly be said to have been extraordinary under the present circumstances.

The legal proceedings had at that time been commenced in the court of vice-admiralty at Halifax, where the United States consul-general resides, and the officer at Digby could not have stated with precision, as he was called upon to do, the grounds on which the intervention of the court had been claimed in the proceedings therein.

There was not, in this instance, the slightest difficulty in the United States consul-general and those interested in the vessel obtaining the fullest information, and no information which could have been given by those to whom they applied was withheld.

Apart from the general knowledge of the offenses which it was claimed the master had committed, and which was furnished at the time of the seizure, the most technical and precise details were readily obtainable at the registry of the court, and from the solicitors of the crown, and would have been furnished immediately on application to the authority to whom the commander of the Lansdowne requested the United States consul-general to apply. No such information could have been obtained from the paper attached to the vessel's mast.

Instructions have, however, been given to the commander of the Lansdowne and other officers of the marine police, that, in the event of any further seizure, a statement in writing shall be given to the master of the seized vessel of the offenses for which the vessel may be detained, and that a copy thereof shall be sent to the United States consul-general at Halifax, and to the nearest United States consular agent, and there can be no objection to the solicitor for the crown being instructed likewise to furnish the consul-general with a copy of the legal process in each case, if it can be supposed that any fuller information will thereby be given.

Mr. Bayard is correct in his statement of the reasons for which the David J. Adams was seized, and is now held. It is claimed that the vessel violated the treaty of 1818, and consequently the statutes which exist for the enforcement of the treaty, and it is also claimed that she violated the customs laws of Canada of 1883.

The undersigned recommends that copies of those statutes be furnished for the information of Mr. Bayard.

Mr. Bayard has, in the same dispatch, recalled the attention of Her Majesty's minister to the correspondence and action which took place in the year 1870, when the fishery question was under consideration, and especially to the instructions from the lords of the admiralty to Vice-Admiral Wellesley, in which that officer was directed to observe great caution in the arrest of American fishermen, and to confine his action to one class of offenses against the treaty. Mr. Bayard, however, appears to have attached unwarranted importance to the correspondence and instructions of 1870, when he refers to them as implying "an understanding between the two Governments," an understanding, which should, in his opinion, at other times, and under other circumstances, govern the conduct of the authorities, whether imperial or colonial, to whom under the laws of the Empire is committed the duty of enforcing the treaty in question.

When, therefore, Mr. Bayard points out the "absolute and instant necessity that now exists for a restriction of the seizure of American vessels charged with violations of the treaty of 1818" to the conditions specified under those instructions, it is necessary to recall the fact that in the year 1870 the principal cause of complaint on the part of Canadian fishermen was that the American vessels were trespassing on the inshore fishing grounds and interfering with the catch of mackerel in Canadian waters, the purchase of bait being then a matter of secondary importance.

It is probable, too, that the action of the imperial Government was influenced very largely by the prospect which then existed of an arrangement such as was accomplished in the following year by the treaty of Washington, and that it may be inferred, in view of this disposition made apparent on both sides to arrive at such an understanding, that the imperial authorities, without any surrender of imperial or colonial rights, and without acquiescing in any limited construction of the treaty, instructed the vice-admiral to confine his seizures to the more open and injurious class of offenses which were especially likely to be brought within the cognizance of the naval officers of the imperial service.

The Canadian Government, as has been already stated, for six months left its fishing grounds open to American fishermen, without any corresponding advantage in return, in order to prevent loss to those fishermen, and to afford time for the action of Congress, on the President's recommendation that a joint commission should be appointed to consider the whole question relating to the fisheries.

That recommendation has been rejected by Congress. Canadian fish is by prohibitory duties excluded from the United States market. The American fishermen clamor against the removal of those duties, and, in order to maintain a monopoly of the trade, continue against all law to force themselves into our waters and harbors, and make our shores their base for supplies, especially for bait, which is necessary to the successful prosecution of their business.

They hope by this course to supply the demand for their home market, and thus to make Canada indirectly the means of injuring her own trade.

It is surely, therefore, not unreasonable that Canada should insist on the rights secured to her by treaty. She is simply acting on the defensive, and no trouble can arise between the two countries if American fishermen will only recognize the provisions of the convention of 1818 as obligatory upon them, and until a new arrangement is made, abstain both from fishing in her waters and from visiting her bays and harbors for any purpose save those specified in the treaty.

In conclusion, the undersigned would express the hope that the discussion which has arisen on this question may lead to renewed negotiations between Great Britain and the United States, and may have the result of establishing extended trade relations between the Republic and Canada, and of removing all sources of irritation between the two countries.

GEORGE E. FOSTER,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Report.

With reference to a dispatch from the British minister at Washington, to his excellency the governor-general, dated the 21st May last, and inclosing a letter from Mr. Secretary Bayard, regarding the refusal of the collector of customs at Digby, Nova Scotia, to allow the United States schooner Jennie and Julia the right of exercising commercial privileges at the said port, the undersigned has the honor to make the following observations:

It appears the Jennie and Julia is a vessel of about 14 tons register, that she was to all intents and purposes a fishing-vessel, and, at the time of her entry into the port of Digby, had fishing gear and apparatus on board, and that the collector fully satisfied himself of these facts. According to the master's declaration, she was there to purchase fresh herring only, and wished to get them direct from the weir fishermen. The collector acted upon his conviction that she was a fishing vessel, and, as such, debarred by the treaty of 1818 from entering Canadian ports for the purposes of trade. He, therefore, in the exercise of his plain duty, warned her off.

The treaty of 1818 is explicit in its terms, and by it United States fishing vessels are allowed to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood, and water, and "for no other purpose whatever."

The undersigned is of the opinion that it cannot be successfully contended that a bona fide fishing vessel can, by simply declaring her intention of purchasing fresh fish for other than baiting purposes, evade the provisions of the treaty of 1818 and obtain privileges not contemplated thereby. If that were admitted, the provision of the treaty which excludes United States fishing vessels for all purposes but the four above mentioned, would be rendered null and void, and the whole United States fishing fleet be at once lifted out of the category of fishing vessels, and allowed the free use of Canadian ports for baiting, obtaining supplies, and trans-shipping cargoes.

It appears to the undersigned that the question as to whether a vessel is a fishing vessel or a legitimate trader or merchant vessel, is one of fact and to be decided by the character of the vessel and the nature of her outfit, and that the class to which she belongs is not to be determined by the simple declaration of her master that he is not at any given time acting in the character of a fisherman.

At the same time the undersigned begs again to observe that Canada has no desire to interrupt the long-established and legitimate commercial intercourse with the United States, but rather to encourage and maintain it, and that Canadian ports are at present open to the whole merchant navy of the United States on the same liberal conditions as heretofore accorded.

The whole respectfully submitted.

GEORGE E. FOSTER,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

[Inclosure No. 2, with Mr. Hardinge's note of August 2, 1886.]

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

FOREIGN OFFICE, July 23, 1886.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your dispatch No. 46 (treaty), of the 30th May last, inclosing a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard, in which he protests against the provisions of a bill recently introduced into the Canadian Parliament for the purpose of regulating fishing operations by foreign vessels in Canadian waters.

In reply I inclose an extract of a dispatch from the governor-general of Canada, containing observations on the subject.

I have to add that Her Majesty's Government entirely concur in the views expressed by the Marquis of Lansdowne in this extract, of which you will communicate a copy to Mr. Bayard, together with a copy of the present dispatch.

With regard to Mr. Bayard's observations in the same note respecting a customs circular and a warning issued by the Canadian authorities, and dated respectively the 7th May and the 5th March last, I have to acquaint you that these documents have now been amended so as to bring them into exact accordance with treaty stipulations; and I inclose, for communication to the United States Government, printed copies of these documents as amended.

I am, &c.

[Inclosure 1 in No. 2.]

The Marquis of Lansdowne to Earl Granville.

[Extract.]

CITADEL, QUEBEC, June 7, 1886.

Her Majesty's minister at Washington has been good enough to communicate to me, for my information, copy of a note received by him from the Secretary of State of the United States, in which the bill is criticised, not so much on account of its policy, or because its introduction is regarded as inopportune and inconvenient, as upon the ground that any legislation by the Parliament of the Dominion for the purpose of interpreting and giving effect to a contract entered into by the imperial Government is beyond the competence of that Parliament, and "an assumption of jurisdiction entirely unwarranted," and therefore "wholly denied by the United States."

Your lordship is no doubt aware that legislation of this kind has been frequently resorted to by the Parliament of the Dominion, for the purpose of enforcing treaties or conventions entered into by the imperial Government. In the present case the legislation proposed was introduced, not with the object of making a change in the terms of the convention of 1818, nor with the intention of representing as breaches of the convention any acts which are not now punishable as breaches of it. What the framers of the bill sought was merely to amend the procedure by which the convention is enforced, and to do this by attaching a particular penalty to a particular breach of the convention after that breach had been proved before a competent tribunal. It must be remembered that the convention itself is silent as to the procedure to be taken in enforcing it, and that effect has accordingly been given to its provisions at different times both through the means of acts passed, on the one side, by Congress, and, on the other, by the imperial Parliament, as well as by the legislatures of the British North American Provinces previous to confederation, and since confederation by the Parliament of the Dominion. The right of the Dominion Parliament to legislate for these purposes, and the validity of such legislation as against the citizens of a foreign country has, as far as I am aware, not been seriously called in question. Such legislation, unless it is disallowed by the imperial Government, becomes part of the law of the Empire.

The Government of the United States has long been aware of the necessity of reference to the Dominion Parliament in matters affecting Canadian interests, and has, I believe, never raised any objection to such reference. The treaties of 1854 and 1871, so far as they related to the fisheries or to the commercial relations of the Dominion, were made subject to ratification by her legislature. In the same way the treaty under which fugitive criminals from the United States into Canada are surrendered, is carried into effect by means of a Canadian statute. If a foreigner commits a murder in Canada he is tried, convicted, and executed by virtue of a Canadian and not of an imperial act of Parliament. Seizures of goods and vessels for breaches of the local customs law have in like manner been made for many years past without any protest on the ground that such laws involved an usurpation of power by the colony.

Mr. Bayard's statement that the Dominion Government is seeking by its action in this matter to "invade and destroy the commercial rights and privileges secured to citizens of the United States under and by virtue of treaty stipulations with Great Britain" is not warranted by the facts of the case. No attempt has been made either by the authorities intrusted with the enforcement of the existing law or by the Parliament of the Dominion to interfere with vessels engaged in bona fide commercial transactions upon the coast of the Dominion. The two vessels which have been seized are both of them beyond all question fishing vessels and not traders, and therefore liable, subject to the finding of the courts, to any penalties imposed by law for the enforcement of the convention of 1818 on parties violating the terms of that convention.

When, therefore, Mr. Bayard protests against all such proceedings as being "flagrantly violative of reciprocal commercial privileges to which citizens of the United States are lawfully entitled under statutes of Great Britain and the well-defined and publicly-proclaimed authority of both countries," and when he denies the competence of the fishery department to issue, under the convention of 1818, such a paper as the "warning," dated the 5th March, 1886, of which a copy has been supplied to your lordship, he is in effect denying to the Dominion the right of taking any steps for the protection of its own rights secured under the convention referred to.

Warning.

To all to whom it may concern :

The Government of the United States having by notice terminated Articles XVIII to XXV, both inclusive, and Article XXX, known as the fishery articles of the Washington Treaty, attention is called to the following provision of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London on the 20th October, 1818:

"ARTICLE I. Whereas differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States, for the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry, and cure fish, on certain coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have forever, in common with the subjects of his Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company; and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty forever to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbors, and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland hereabove described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same or any portion thereof, shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled, without previous agreement, for such purpose, with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground.

"And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof, to take, dry, or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America not included within the above-mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbors for the purpose of shelter, and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them."

Attention is called to the following provisions of the act of Parliament of Canada, cap. 61, of the acts of 1868, entitled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels":

"2. Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, serving on board of any vessels of Her Majesty's navy cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, fishery officer, or stipendiary magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada, and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries, or any officer of the customs of Canada, sheriff, magistrate, or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel, or boat within any harbor in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance.

"3. If such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbor, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel, or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination he shall forfeit $400; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom, or of Canada, and have been found fishing or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat under the first section of this act, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

"4. All goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores and cargo liable to forfeiture under this act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit $800, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

Of all of which you will take notice and govern yourself accordingly.

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the act of the Parliament of Canada, cap. 61, of the acts of 1868, entitled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels":

"2. Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's navy cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, fishery officer, or stipendiary magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada, and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries, or any officer of the customs of Canada, sheriff, magistrate, or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel, or boat within any harbor in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, and stay on board so long as she may remain within such place or distance.

"3. If such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbor, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel, or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination, he shall forfeit 400 dollars; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of Canada, not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat under the 1st section of this act, such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

"4. All goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo liable to forfeiture under this act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the 2d section of this act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this act, or aiding or abetting any other person in any opposition, shall forfeit 800 dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

Having reference to the above, you are requested to furnish any foreign vessels, boats, or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore, within your district, with a printed copy of the warning inclosed herewith.

If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, or if hovering within the three-mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, you will please place an officer on board of such vessel, and at once telegraph the facts to the Fisheries Department at Ottawa, and await instructions.

The Earl of Rosebery to Sir L. West.

SIR: I have received your dispatch No. 55, Treaty, of the 15th ultimo, in which you inclose a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard, protesting against a warning alleged to have been given to United States fishing vessels by a Canadian customs official, with the view to prevent them from fishing within lines drawn from headland to headland from Cape Canso to St. Esprit, and from North Cape to East Point of Prince Edward Island.

In reply, I have to request you to acquaint Mr. Bayard that Her Majesty's Government have ascertained that no instructions to this effect have been issued by the Canadian Government, but that a further report is expected upon the subject.

It appears that the collector at Canso, in conversation with the master of a fishing vessel, expressed the opinion that the headland line ran from Cranberry Island to St. Esprit, but this was wholly unauthorized.

Washington, August 9, 1886.

SIR: I regret that it has become my duty to draw the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the unwarrantable and unfriendly treatment, reported to me this day by the United States consul general at Halifax, experienced by the American fishing schooner Rattler, of Gloucester, Mass., on the 3d instant, upon the occasion of her being driven by stress of weather to find shelter in the harbor of Shelburne, Nova Scotia.

She was deeply laden and was off the harbor of Shelburne when she sought shelter in a storm and cast anchor just inside the harbor's entrance.

She was at once boarded by an officer of the Canadian cutter Terror, who placed two men on board.

When the storm ceased the Rattler weighed anchor to proceed on her way home, when the two men placed on board by the Terror discharged their pistols as a signal, and an officer from the Terror again boarded the Rattler and threatened to seize the vessel unless the captain reported at the custom-house.

The vessel was then detained until the captain reported at the custom-house, after which she was permitted to sail.

The hospitality which all civilized nations prescribe has thus been violated and the stipulations of a treaty grossly infracted.

A fishing vessel, denied all the usual commercial privileges in a port, has been compelled strictly to perform commercial obligations.

In the interests of amity, I ask that this misconduct may be properly rebuked by the Government of Her Majesty.

SIR: An affidavit has been filed in this Department by Reuben Cameron, master of the American schooner Golden Hind, of Gloucester, Mass., setting forth that, on or about the 23d of July ultimo, being out of water, he attempted to put into Port Daniel, Bay of Chaleurs, to obtain a fresh supply; that at the entrance of the bay, about four or five miles from land, the Golden Hind was boarded by an officer from the Canadian schooner E. F. Conrad, and by him ordered not to enter the Bay of Chaleurs; that said officer furnished Captain Cameron with a printed warning with this indorsement written thereon: "Don't enter the Bay of Chaleurs, M. S.;" and that in consequence of said act of the Canadian officer the Golden Hind was obliged to go across to Tignish, Prince Edward Island, to obtain water, whereby his fishing venture was interfered with, and loss and injury caused to the vessel and her owners.

I have the honor to protest against this act of officers of Her Britannic Majesty as not only distinctly unfriendly and contrary to the humane usages of civilized nations, but as in direct violation of so much of Article I of the convention of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain as secures forever to American fishermen upon the British North American coast admission to the bays or harbors thereof for the purpose of obtaining water. And for all loss or injury which may be shown to have accrued by reason of the act in question the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will be held justly liable.

I have further the honor to ask with all earnestness that the Government of Her Britannic Majesty will cause steps to be forthwith taken to prevent and rebuke acts so violative of treaty and of the common rites of hospitality.

SIR: Grave cause of complaint is alleged by the masters of several American fishing vessels, among which can be named the schooners Shiloh and Julia Ellen, against the hostile and outrageous misbehavior of Captain Quigley, of the Canadian cruiser Terror, who, upon the entrance of these vessels into the harbor of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, fired a gun across their bows to hasten their coming to, and placed a guard of two armed men on board each vessel, who remained on board until the vessels left the harbor.

In my note to your legation of the 9th instant I made earnest remonstrance against another unfriendly act of Captain Quigley, against the schooner Rattler, of Gloucester, Mass., which, being fully laden and on her homeward voyage, sought shelter from stress of weather in Shelburne Harbor, Nova Scotia, and was then compelled to report at the custom-house, and have a guard of armed men kept on board.

Such conduct cannot be defended on any just ground, and I draw your attention to it in order that Her Britannic Majesty's Government may reprimand Captain Quigley for his unwarranted and rude act.

It was simply impossible for this officer to suppose that any invasion of the fishing privileges of Canada was intended by these vessels under the circumstances.

The firing of a gun across their bows was a most unusual and wholly uncalled for exhibition of hostility, and equally so was the placing of armed men on board the peaceful and lawful craft of a friendly nation.

SIR: It is my duty to ask you to bring to the attention of Her Britannic Majesty's Government the treatment lately experienced by an American fishing vessel, the Mollie Adams, of Gloucester, Mass., at the hands of the collector of customs at Port Mulgrave, in the Strait of Canso, Nova Scotia.

By the sworn statement of Solomon Jacobs, master of the schooner Mollie Adams, it appears that on the 31st ultimo, whilst on his homeward voyage laden with fish from the fishing banks, he was compelled to put into Port Mulgrave to obtain water, and duly made report and entry at the custom house. The water-tank of the vessel having been burst in his voyage by heavy weather and thus rendered useless, he asked permission of the collector to purchase two or three barrels to hold a supply of water for his crew on their homeward voyage of about 500 miles.

This application was refused and his vessel threatened with seizure if barrels were so purchased. In consequence the vessel was compelled to put to sea with an insufficient supply of water, and in trying to make some other port wherein to obtain water a severe gale was encountered which swept away his deck-load of fish and destroyed two seine boats.

This inhospitable, indeed inhuman, conduct on the part of the customs officer in question should be severely reprimanded, and for the infraction of treaty rights and commercial privileges compensation equivalent to the injuries sustained will be claimed from Her Majesty's Government.

SIR: With reference to your note of the 30th of July last, calling attention to alleged infractions of the convention of 1818 by the authorities at Bonne Bay, Newfoundland, and at Port Amherst, Magdalen Islands, I have now received instructions from Her Majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs to inform you of the steps which have been taken in the matter in consequence of the protest of the United States Government.

On the arrival of your note in London, Her Majesty's secretary of state for the colonies telegraphed to the officers administering the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland calling attention to the cases, and explaining that under the treaty of 1818 United States fishermen have the right to fish off the coasts of the Magdalen Islands and off certain coasts of Newfoundland, and stating that it was presumed that the customs officials in those places had not been instructed in the same way as on other parts of the coast.

On the 25th ultimo the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland were further instructed by dispatches from the colonial office to make full reports on the subject of the complaints in question, and it was recommended that special instructions should be issued to the authorities at those places where the inshore fishery has been granted by the convention of 1818 to the United States fishermen, calling their attention to the provisions of that convention, and warning them that no action contrary thereto may be taken in regard to United States fishing vessels.

I may add that information has been received that the warning notices referred to by you were discontinued in the beginning of August.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, September 23, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to bring to your attention an instance which has been brought to my knowledge of an alleged denial of one of the rights guaranteed by the convention of 1818, in the case of an American vessel.

Capt. Joseph E. Graham, of the fishing schooner A. R. Crittenden, of Gloucester, Mass., states under oath that on or about the 21st of July last, on a return trip from the open-sea fishing grounds to his home port, and while passing through the Strait of Canso, he stopped at Steep Creek for water. The customs officer at that place told him that if he took in water his vessel would be seized; whereupon he sailed without obtaining the needed supply, and was obliged to put his men on short allowance of water during the passage homeward.

I have the honor to ask that Her Britannic Majesty's Government cause investigation to be made of the reported action of the customs officer at Steep Creek, and if the facts be as stated, that he be promptly rebuked for his unlawful and inhumane conduct in denying to a vessel of a friendly nation a general privilege, which is not only held sacred under the maritime law of nations, but which is expressly confirmed to the fishermen of the United States throughout the Atlantic coasts of British North America by the first article of the convention of 1818.

It does not appear that the A. R. Crittenden suffered other damage by this alleged inhospitable treatment, but reserving that point the incident affords an illustration of the vexatious spirit in which the officers of the Dominion of Canada appear to seek to penalize and oppress those fishing vessels of the United States, lawfully engaged in fishing, which from any cause are brought within their reach.

SIR: With reference to your note of the 14th June relative to certain warnings alleged to have been given to United States fishing vessels by the subcollector of customs at Canso, I have the honor to inclose to you herewith by instruction from the Earl of Iddesleigh an extract from an approved report of the Canadian privy council dealing with this question.

I have, &c.,

L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

[Inclosure.]

Extract from a certified copy of a report of a committee of the honorable the privy council approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government in council on the 16th August, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had under consideration a dispatch dated 15 July, 1886, from the secretary of state for the colonies in which he asks for a report from the Canadian Government on the subject of an inclosed note from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British minister at Washington relating to certain warnings alleged to have been given to United States fishing vessels by the subcollector of customs at Canso.

Mr. Bayard states:

First. That the masters of the four American fishing vessels of Gloucester, Mass., Martha C. Bradley, Rattler, Eliza Boynton, and Pioneer, have severally reported to the consul-general at Halifax, that the subcollector of customs at Canso had warned them to keep outside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside Canso head to a point three miles outside St. Esprit on the Cape Breton coast.

Second. That the same masters also report that they were warned against going inside an imaginary line drawn from a point three miles outside North Cape, in Prince Edward Island, to a point three miles outside East Point on the same island.

Third. That the same authority informed the masters of the vessels referred to that they would not be permitted to enter Bay Chaleur.

The minister of marine and fisheries, to whom the dispatch and inclosures were referred, observes that the instructions issued to collectors of customs authorized them in certain cases to furnish United States fishing vessels with a copy of the circular hereto attached, and which constitutes the only official "warning" collectors of customs are empowered to give. It was to be presumed that the subcollector of customs at Canso, as all other collectors, would carefully follow out the instructions as received, and that therefore no case such as that alleged by Mr. Secretary Bayard would be likely to arise.

The minister states, however, so soon as the dispatch above referred to was received he sent to the subcollector at Canso a copy of the allegations, and requested an immediate reply thereto.

The subcollector, in answer, emphatically denies that he has ordered any American vessel out of any harbor in his district or elsewhere, or that he did anything in the way of warning, except to deliver copies of the official circular above alluded to, and states that he boarded no United States vessel other than the Annie Jordan and the Hereward, and that neither the Martha C. Bradley, Rattler, or Pioneer, of Gloucester, have, during this season, reported at his port of entry. He, with equal clearness, denies that he has warned any United States fishing vessels to keep outside the line drawn from Cape North to East Point, alluded to by Mr. Secretary Bayard, or that they would not be permitted to enter Bay des Chaleurs.

The minister has every reason to believe the statements made by the subcollector at Canso, and, taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, is of the opinion that the information which has reached the Secretary of State does not rest upon a trustworthy basis.

With reference to the concluding portion of Mr. Bayard's note, the minister observes that the occasion of the present dispatch, which has to deal mainly with questions of fact, does not render it necessary for him to enter upon any lengthened discussion of the question of headland limits.

SIR: With reference to your notes of the 10th of July last protesting against the action of the Canadian authorities with regard to the United States vessel Novelty, and the action of the Canadian cruiser Middleton, in preventing United States boats from visiting St. Andrews, New Brunswick, for the purpose of there purchasing herring for canning, I have the honor to inclose to you herewith by instruction from the Earl of Iddesleigh a copy of a certified report of the Canadian privy council dealing with both questions.

Certified copy of a report of a committee of the honorable, the privy council for Canada, approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government on the 20th August, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had under consideration the dispatch dated 29th July last, from Her Majesty's secretary of state for the colonies, inclosing two notes from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British minister at Washington, and asking that Her Majesty's Government be furnished with a report upon the cases therein referred to.

The committee respectfully submit the annexed report from the minister of marine and fisheries, to whom the said dispatch and its inclosures were submitted, and they advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy thereof, if approved, to Her Majesty's principal secretary of state for the colonies.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council for Canada.

[Inclosure No. 2.]

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES,
Ottawa, August 14, 1886.

The undersigned has the honor to submit the following in answer to a dispatch from Lord Granville to the governor-general under date 29th July last inclosing two notes from Mr. Secretary Bayard to the British minister at Washington, and asking that Her Majesty's Government be furnished with a report upon the cases therein referred to.

In his first communication, dated July 10, Mr. Bayard says:

"I have the honor to inform you that I am in receipt of a report from the consul-general of the United States at Halifax, accompanied by sworn testimony stating that the Novelty, a duly-registered merchant steam vessel of the United States, has been denied the right to take in steam coal, or purchase ice, or trans-ship fish in bond to the United States, at Pictou, Nova Scotia.

"It appears that having reached that port on the 1st instant, and finding the customs office closed on account of a holiday, the master of the Novelty telegraphed to the minister of marine and fisheries at Ottawa, asking if he would be permitted to do any of the three things mentioned above. That he received in reply a telegram reciting, with certain inaccurate and extended application, the language of Article I of the treaty of 1818, the limitations upon the significance of which are impending discussion between the Government of the United States and that of Her Britannic Majesty. That on entering and clearing the Novelty on the following day at the custom-house, the collector stated that his instructions were contained in the telegram the master had received, and that the privilege of coaling being denied, the Novelty was compelled to leave Pictou without being allowed to obtain fuel necessary for her lawful voyage on a dangerous coast.

"Against this treatment I make instant and formal protest as an unwarranted interpretation and application of the treaty by the officers of the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Nova Scotia, as an infraction of the laws of commercial and maritime intercourse existing between the two countries, and as a violation of hospitality, and for any loss or injury resulting therefrom the Government of Her Britannic Majesty would be held liable."

With reference to this the undersigned begs to observe that Mr. Bayard's statement appears to need modification in several important particulars.

In the first place, the Novelty was not a vessel regularly trading between certain ports in the United States and Canada, but was a fishing vessel whose purpose was to carry on the mackerel-seining business in the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, around the coasts of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia; that she had on board a full equipment of seines and fishing apparatus and men; that she was a steam vessel and needed coal, not for the purposes of cooking or warming, but to produce motive power for the vessel, and that she wished to pursue her business of fishing in the above-named waters and to send her fares home over Canadian territory, to the end that she might the more uninterruptedly and profitably carry on her business of fishing. That she was a fishing vessel and not a merchant vessel was proved not only by the facts above mentioned, but also from a telegram over the signature of H. B. Joyce, the captain of the vessel, a copy of which is appended. In his telegram Captain Joyce indicates the character of his vessel by using the words "American fishing steamer," and he signs himself "H. B. Joyce, master fishing steamer Novelty."

There seems no doubt, therefore, that the Novelty was in character and in purpose a fishing vessel, and as such comes under the provisions of the treaty of 1818, which allows United States fishing vessels to enter Canadian ports "for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, and of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever."

The object of the captain was to obtain supplies for the prosecution of his fishing and to trans-ship his cargoes of fish at a Canadian port, both of which are contrary to the letter and spirit of the convention of 1818.

To Mr. Bayard's statement that, in reply to Captain Joyce's inquiry of the minister of marine and fisheries, "he received in reply a telegram reciting, with certain inaccurate and extended application, the language of Article I of the treaty of 1818," the undersigned considers it a sufficient answer to adduce the telegrams themselves.

1.—Inquiry by the captain of the Novelty.

"PICTOU, N. S., July 1, 1886.

"Hon. GEORGE E. FOSTER,

"Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa:

"Will the American fishing steamer now at Pictou be permitted to purchase coal or ice or to trans-ship fresh fish in bond to United States markets?

"Please answer.

"H. B. JOYCE,
"Master of Fishing Steamer Novelty."

"OTTAWA, July 1, 1886.

"To H. B. JOYCE,

"Master American Fishing Steamer Novelty, Pictou, N. S. :

"By terms of treaty, 1818, United States fishing vessels are permitted to enter Canadian ports for shelter, repairs, wood, and water, and for no other purpose whatever. That treaty is now in force.

"GEORGE E. FOSTER,
"Minister of Marine and Fisheries."

The undersigned fails to observe wherein any "inaccurate or extended application" of the language of the treaty can be found in the above answer, inasmuch as it consists of a de facto citation from the treaty itself, with the added statement, for the information of the captain, that said treaty was at that time in force.

As to the "unwarranted interpretation and application of the treaty," of which Mr. Bayard speaks, the undersigned has already discussed that phase of the question in his memorandum of June 14, which was adopted by council and has been forwarded to Her Majesty's Government.

Mr. Bayard's second note is as follows:

"On the 2nd of June last I had the honor to inform you that dispatches from Eastport, in Maine, had been received reporting threats by the customs officials of the Dominion to seize American boats coming into those waters to purchase herring from the Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning the same as sardines, which would be a manifest infraction of the right of purchase and sale of herring caught and sold by Canadians in their own waters in the pursuance of legitimate trade.

"To this note I have not had the honor of a reply.

"To-day Mr. C. A. Boutelle, M. C., from Maine, informs me that American boats visiting St. Andrews, N. B., for the purpose of there purchasing herring from the Canadian weirs for canning had been driven away by the Dominion cruiser Middleton.

"Such inhibition of usual and legitimate commercial contracts and intercourse is assuredly without warrant of law, and I draw your attention to it in order that the commercial rights of the citizens of the United States may not be thus invaded and subjected to unfriendly discrimination."

With reference to the above, the undersigned observes that so far as his information goes no collector of customs or captains of cruisers have threatened to "seize American boats coming into Canadian waters to purchase herring from Canadian weirs for the purpose of canning them as sardines."

Collectors of customs have, however, in pursuance of their duties under the customs law of Canada, compelled American vessels coming to purchase herring to enter and clear in conformity to customs law.

With reference to the action of the Dominion cruiser Middleton, the undersigned cannot do better than quote from the official report of the captain of that vessel as to the facts of the case referred to.

In his report of date 9th July, 1886, Captain McLean, of the General Middleton, says:

"At 9 a. m. made sail and drifted with the tide towards the bay. Seeing a large number of boats of various sizes hovering around the fishing weirs, I ordered the boat in waiting and sent Officer Kent in charge, giving him instructions to row down among the boats and see if there were any Americans purchasing fish. On the return of the boat Chief Officer Kent reported the boats mentioned were Americans, there for the purpose of getting herring. I immediately directed the chief officer to return and order the American boats to at once report themselves to the collector of the port and get permits to load fish or leave without further delay. One of the boatmen complied with the request, and obtained a permit to load fish for Eastport. The others were very much disturbed on receiving the above instructions, and sailed away toward the American side of the river and commenced blowing their fog-horns, showing their contempt. Other boats, at a greater distance, seeing our boat approaching, did not wait her arrival, but up sail and left for the American shore."

The above extract from the report of the chief officer of the General Middleton, goes to show that it was not his object to prevent American boats from trading in sardines, but rather to prevent them from trading without having first conformed to the customs law of Canada.

The whole respectfully submitted,

GEORGE E. FOSTER,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

No. 44.

*Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.*DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, October 19, 1886.

SIR: The Everett Steele, a fishing vessel of Gloucester, Mass., in the United States, of which Charles E. Forbes, an American citizen, was master, was about to enter, on the 10th of September, 1886, the harbor of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, to procure water and for shelter during repairs. She was hailed, when entering the harbor, by the Canadian cutter Terror, by whose captain, Quigley, her papers were taken and retained. Captain Forbes, on arriving off the town, anchored and went with Captain Quigley to the custom-house, who asked him whether he reported whenever he had come in. Captain Forbes answered that he had reported always, with the exception of a visit on the 25th of March, when he was driven into the lower harbor for shelter by a storm and where he remained only eight hours. The collector did not consider that this made the vessel liable, but Captain Quigley refused to discharge her; said he would keep her until he heard from Ottawa, put her in charge of policemen, and detained her until the next day, when at noon she was discharged by the collector; but a calm having come on she could not get to sea, and by the delay her bait was spoiled and the expected profits of her trip lost.

It is scarcely necessary for me to remind you, in presenting this case to the consideration of your government, that when the northeastern coast of America was wrested from France in a large measure by the valor and enterprise of New England fishermen, they enjoyed, in common with other British subjects, the control of the fisheries with which that coast was enriched, and that by the treaty of peace of 1783, which, as was said by an eminent English judge when treating an analogous question, was a treaty of "separation," this right was expressly affirmed.

It is true that by the treaty of 1818, the United States renounced a portion of its rights in these fisheries, retaining, however, the old prerogatives of visiting the bays and harbors of the British northeastern possessions for the purpose of obtaining wood, water, and shelter, and for objects incidental to those other rights of territoriality so retained and confirmed. What is the nature of these incidental prerogatives, it is not, in considering this case, necessary to discuss. It is enough to say that Captain Forbes entered the harbor of Shelburne to obtain shelter and water, and that he had as much right to be there under the treaty of 1818, confirming in this respect the ancient privileges of American fishermen on those coasts, as he would have had on the high seas, carrying on, under shelter of the flag of the United States, legitimate commerce. The Government which you so honorably represent has, with its usual candor and magnanimity, conceded that when a merchant vessel of the United States is stopped in time of peace by a British cruiser on the groundless suspicion of being a slave trader, damages are to be paid to this Government not merely to redress the injury suffered, but as an apology for the insult offered to the flag of the United States. But the case now presented to you is a much stronger one than that of a seizure on the high seas of a ship unjustly suspected of being a slaver. When a vessel is seized on the high seas on such a suspicion, its seizure is not on waters where its rights, based on prior and continuous ownership, are guaranteed by the sovereign making the seizure. If in such case the property of the owners is injured, it is, however wrongful the act, a case of rare occurrence, on seas comparatively unfrequented, with consequences not very far reaching; and if a blow is struck at a system of which such vessel is unjustly supposed to be a part, such system is one which the civilized world execrates. But seizures of the character of that which I now present to you have no such features. They are made in waters not only conquered and owned by American fishermen, but for the very purpose for which they were being used by Captain Forbes, guaranteed to them by two successive treaties between the United States and Great Britain.

These fishermen also, I may be permitted to remind you, were engaged in no nefarious trade. They pursue one of the most useful and meritorious of industries. They gather from the seas, without detriment to others, a food which is nutritious and cheap, for the use of an immense population. They belong to a stock of men which contributed before the Revolution most essentially to British victories on the North-eastern Atlantic, and it may not be out of place to say they have shown since that Revolution, when serving in the Navy of the United States, that they have lost none of their ancient valor, hardihood, and devotion to their flag.

The indemnity which the United States has claimed, and which Great Britain has conceded, for the visitation and search of isolated merchantmen seized on remote African seas on unfounded suspicion of being slavers, it cannot do otherwise now than claim, with a gravity which the importance of the issue demands, for its fishermen seized on waters in which they have as much right to traverse for shelter as have the vessels by which they are molested. This shelter, it is important to observe, they will as a class be debarred from if annoyances such as I now submit to you are permitted to be inflicted on them by minor officials of the British Provinces.

Fishermen, as you are aware, have been considered, from the usefulness of their occupation, from their simplicity, from the perils to which they are exposed, and from the small quantity of provisions and protective implements they are able to carry with them, the wards of civilized nations; and it is one of the peculiar glories of Great Britain that she has taken the position—a position now generally accepted—that even in time of war they are not to be the subjects of capture by hostile cruisers. Yet, in defiance of this immunity thus generously awarded by humanity and the laws of nations, the very shelter which they own in these seas, and which is ratified to them by two successive treaties, is to be denied to them, not, I am confident, by the act of the wise, humane, and magnanimous Government you represent, but by deputies of deputies permitted to pursue, not uninfluenced by local rivalry, these methods of annoyance in fishing waters which our fishermen have as much right to visit on lawful errands as those officials have themselves. For let it be remembered that by annoyances and expulsions such as these the door of shelter is shut to American fishermen as a class.

If a single refusal of that shelter, such as the present, is sustained, it is a refusal of shelter to all fishermen pursuing their tasks on those inhospitable coasts. Fishermen have not funds enough nor outfit enough, nor, I may add, recklessness enough to put into harbors where, perfect as is their title, they meet with such treatment as that suffered by Captain Forbes.

To sanction such treatment, therefore, is to sanction the refusal to the United States fishermen as a body of that shelter to which they are entitled by ancient right, by the law of nations, and by solemn treaty. Nor is this all. That treaty is a part of a system of mutual concessions. As was stated by a most eminent English judge in the case of Sutton v. Sutton (1 Myl. & R., 675), which I have already noticed, it was the principle of the treaty of peace, and of the treaties which followed between Great Britain and the United States, that the "subjects of the two parts of the divided Empire should, notwithstanding the separation, be protected in the mutual enjoyment" of the rights those treaties affirmed. If, as I cannot permit myself to believe, Great Britain should refuse to citizens of the United States the enjoyment of the plainest and most undeniable of these rights, the consequences would be so serious that they cannot be contemplated by this Government but with the gravest concern.

I have, &c.,

No. 45.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, October 20, 1886.

SIR: Permit me to ask you to draw the attention of your Government to the case set forth in the inclosed affidavit of Murdock Kemp, master of the American fishing vessel Pearl Nelson, of Provincetown, Mass., which has been subjected to treatment, by the customs officials at Arichat, Nova Scotia, inconsistent with the international law of ordinary amity and hospitality, and also plainly violative of treaty rights under the convention of 1818 between Great Britain and the United States.

The vessel in question was compelled by stress of weather to seek shelter in the harbor of Arichat, Nova Scotia, and arrived late at night, when the custom-house was closed.

Before the custom-house was opened the next day the captain went there, and after waiting over an hour the collector arrived, and the usual inward report was made and permission asked to land the clothing of a sailor lost overboard, whose family resided in that vicinity.

He was then informed that his vessel was seized for allowing his crew to go ashore the night before before reporting at the custom-house.

The cruel irony of this was apparent when the collector knew such report was impossible, and that the landing of the crew was usual and customary, and that no charge of smuggling had been suggested or was possible under the circumstances.

To compel the payment of a fine, or "a deposit" of $200, which is practically the same in its results, was harsh and unwarranted, and was adding a price and a penalty to the privilege of shelter guaranteed to American fishermen by treaty.

This vessel was a fishing vessel, and, although seeking to exercise no commercial privileges, was compelled to pay commercial fees, such as are applicable to trading vessels, but at the same time was not allowed commercial privileges.

I beg you will lose no time in representing the wrong inflicted upon an unoffending citizen of the United States, and procure the adoption of such orders as will restore the money so compelled to be deposited.

I am, sir, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

[Inclosure.]

Schooner Pearl Nelson.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
District of Massachusetts :

I, Murdock Kemp, of Provincetown, in Massachusetts, a citizen of the United States, on my oath do say that I was master and part owner of the schooner Pearl Nelson, a vessel of the United States duly licensed ———, 1886, for the fisheries, and holding a permit to touch and trade during the existence of said license.

I further say that the crew of said vessel were shipped on wages at Provincetown and Boston for a fishing voyage to the Grand Banks and return to Provincetown for discharge. Said schooner, with license and permit as aforesaid, sailed May 29, 1886, from Provincetown, and on her passage home touched at Arichat, Cape Breton, driven in there by stress of weather. Sailed by the wind from Bank Quero, and blowing fresh, a heavy sea running, and foggy, made Point Michaux, 9 miles from Arichat. The vessel was deep; her dorys floated on deck in her lee waist, wind being about west. I concluded to make a harbor and wait for better weather and wind. I anchored the vessel in Arichat Harbor at 11 p. m., September 7, 1886. I had lost a man on the Grand Banks, named James Sampson, who belonged to Arichat, and I wanted to land his effects if the customs officers would allow me to. Some of my crew belonged in that neighborhood. William Babins, my cook, and nine others of the crew took boats off the deck and went ashore without asking my permission. I saw them, but had never known there was any objection. I had been in this and other British North American ports frequently and witnessed the landing from my own and other vessels' crews, but never before heard such landing was illegal or improper. These men took nothing from the vessel with them, nor carried away anything but the clothes they wore.

From the time I left Provincetown I had been into no port anywhere. Next morning after my arrival in Arichat, at 8½ o'clock, I went ashore to enter at the custom-house, and found it closed. I called at 9 o'clock and it was not open. I went again at 10 o'clock and found the collector opening the office door. I made the regular inward report to him and requested permission to land the clothes of James Sampson, who had been lost from my vessel on the Grand Banks. He told me he had sent a man for me. After I got there this man came in. The officer was holding my papers and told the man to go back and take charge of the vessel. I asked him why he held my papers; he replied he seized her because I had allowed my men to go ashore before reporting at the custom-house; that all he would tell me was he said he would telegraph to Ottawa and find out what to do with me; and he did telegraph immediately. About 5 o'clock p. m. the collector received an answer, and told me to deposit $200 and the vessel would be released. The collector would not allow me to land this dead man's clothes until after I had paid the $200 fine. I gave the clothes to the shop-keeper to give to Sampson's widow or friends. I came out of Arichat about 11 a. m. on the 8th of September, 1886, having bought there one bushel of potatoes with the collector's permission, and arrived at Provincetown September 14, 1886. I sailed from Arichat with all my crew on board, and had not at any time intended to leave any of my crew at that port. They were hired men, shipped to be discharged on return at Provincetown, and on our arrival there were all paid off and discharged.

Some of the crew that went ashore at Arichat returned aboard as early as 7 o'clock and all were aboard about the time the vessel was seized. I gave them no money there and had none myself. I further say I did not enter Arichat with any intention of violating any law of the Dominion of Canada, nor for any business, but solely because of the stress of weather that had driven me there. It was mere kindness only that prompted me to offer to land Sampson's clothes there where his friends could get them. There was no profit to the vessel, crew, or myself expected in so doing, or attempted to be gained in entering the port of Arichat other than shelter from the stress of weather we had been under from Quero Bank. If any revenue law of Canada was violated by my vessel or by myself, the same was done through ignorance and inadvertence and not with any intention to defraud the revenue or offend the laws.

MURDOCK KEMP.

Personally appeared before me Murdock Kemp, at Provincetown, State of Massachusetts, U. S. A., this 27th day of September, 1886, who subscribed and made oath to the foregoing.

SIR: I inclose copies of two letters received at this Department from George Steele, president of the American Fishery Union at Gloucester, Mass.

The object of these letters is to obtain authentic information of the administration of Canadian laws regulating the sale and exportation of fresh herring from Grand Manan Island and its vicinity, a trade which, the writer avers, has been carried on almost exclusively in American vessels for many years.

By the statements of the letter of Mr. Steele dated October 25, it appears that although the vessels employed in this trade are duly registered in their home port as fishing vessels, yet that so far as the proposed trade is concerned, they are not manned nor equipped, nor in any way prepared for taking fish, but their use is confined to the carriage of fish as merchandise to ports in the United States, a commercial transaction pur et simple.

May I ask the favor of an early response to the inquiries propounded by Mr. Steele?

SIR: With reference to your note of the 16th of July last protesting against the action of Captain Kent of the Canadian cruiser General Middleton in expelling Stephen R. Balkam from the harbor of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, I have the honor to communicate to you herewith, in accordance with the instructions of the Earl of Iddesleigh, and in reply to your above-mentioned note, copy of a certified report of the privy council for Canada upon the subject.

Certified copy of a report of a committee of the honorable the privy council for Canada, approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government in council on the 21st September, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had under their consideration a dispatch dated 5th August, 1886, from the right honorable the secretary of state for the colonies, transmitting a copy of a letter from the foreign office with a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard, and protesting against the action of Captain Kent, of the Dominion cruiser General Middleton, in refusing Stephen A. Balkam permission to buy fish from Canadians.

The minister of marine and fisheries, to whom the dispatch and inclosures were referred, submits the following report from the first officer of the General Middleton:

“ HALIFAX, August 25, 1886.

“I have the honor to state that when boarding several boats in St. Andrews Bay I asked Stephen R. Balkam if the boat he was in was American. He replied that he thought she was. I informed him that if she was American he could not take fish from the weirs on the English side without a permit from the collector of customs at St. Andrews or West Isles.

“He asked permission to take the fish from the weirs in Kelly's Cove without a permit. I declined to accede to his request.

“Mr. Balkam went around the point in his boat, and, after accosting several others, I met him again, evidently trying to evade my instructions. I told him that he must not take the fish without permission from the customs. He left for the American shore and I returned to the Middleton.

“Mr. Stephen R. Balkam I have known for some years. He formerly belonged to St. Andrews, but is now living in Eastport. His business is to carry sardines from the English side to Eastport for canning purposes.”

The minister is of opinion, in view of the above, that in warning Mr. Balkam that if his boat belonged to the United States he could not take herring from the weirs without first having reported at the custom-house, Mr. Kent acted within the scope of the law and his instructions.

The committee respectfully advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute to the right honorable the secretary of state for the colonies, as requested in his dispatch of the 5th August last.

Clerk, Privy Council, Canada.

Mr. Bayard to Sir L. West.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, November 11, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to inclose herewith copies of the statements with affidavits from Capt. Medeo Rose, master of the schooner Laura Sayward, of Gloucester, Mass., and of Capt. Joseph Tupper, master of the schooner Jeannie Seaverns, also of Gloucester, forwarded to me by the collector of the port of Gloucester, under date of 5th instant.

The first impressively describes the inhospitable and inhuman conduct of the collector of the port of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, in refusing to allow Captain Rose to buy sufficient food for himself and crew to take them home, besides unnecessarily retaining his papers, and thus preventing him, with a wholly inadequate supply of provisions, from proceeding on his voyage.

The second complaint is of Captain Quigley, commanding the Canadian cruiser Terror, in not only preventing Captain Tupper from landing to visit his relatives in Liverpool, Nova Scotia, but even forbidding his relatives from coming on board his vessel to see him, and likewise placing a guard on board of her to insure that result.

While I need not comment further than I have already done in previous notes on the unjust and unwarrantable acts of the Dominion officials of late towards our fishermen, of which the instances now presented are but repetitions, I must notice the new phase of Captain Quigley's abuse of authority in actually making Captain Tupper a prisoner on board of his own vessel, and in preventing his relatives, whom he states he had not seen for many years, from meeting him.

Such conduct, apart from all its legal and international aspects, is wholly unworthy of any one intrusted with the execution of a public duty and inconsistent with the national reputation for humanity and courtesy of an officer in Her Majesty's service.

Affidavit of Captain Rose, of the schooner Laura Sayward.

I, Medeo Rose, master of schooner Laura Sayward, of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say: That on Saturday, October 2d, being then on Western Bank on a fishing trip, and being short of provisions, we hove up our anchor and started for home. The wind was blowing almost a gale from the northwest, and being almost dead-ahead we made slow progress on our voyage home. On Tuesday, October 5th, we made Shelburne, Nova Scotia, and arrived in that harbor about 8 p. m. on that day, short of provisions, water, and oil to burn. On Wednesday I sailed for the inner harbor of Shelburne. Arriving at the town about 4 p. m., on going ashore I found the custom-house closed, and hunted up the collector and entered my vessel, and asked permission from him to buy 7 pounds sugar, 3 pounds coffee, one-half to 1 bushel potatoes, and 2 pounds of butter, or lard or pork, and oil enough to last us home, and was refused. I stated to him my situation, short of provisions, and a voyage of 250 miles before me and plead with him for this slight privilege, but it was of no avail. I then visited the American consul and asked his assistance and found him powerless to aid me in this matter. The collector of customs held my papers until the next morning, although I asked for them as soon as I found I could not buy any provisions, say about an hour and a half after I entered, but he refused to give them to me until the next morning. Immediately on receiving my papers on Thursday morning, I started for home, arriving on Sunday. I think the treatment I received harsh and cruel, driving myself and crew to sea with a scant supply of provisions, we having but little flour and water and liable to be buffeted about for days before reaching home.

Affidavit of Captain Tupper, of the schooner Jeannie Seaverns.

I, Joseph Tupper, master of schooner Jeannie Seaverns, of Gloucester, Mass., being duly sworn, do depose and say: That on Thursday, October 28, while on my passage home from a fishing trip, the wind blowing a gale from southeast, and a heavy sea running, I was obliged to enter the harbor of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, for shelter. Immediately on coming to anchor was boarded by Captain Quigley, of Canadian cruiser Terror, who ordered me to go on shore at once and enter at the custom-house, to which I replied that such was my intention. He gave me permission to take two men in the boat with me, but they must remain in the boat and not step on shore. I asked Captain Quigley if I could, after entering, visit some of my relatives who resided in Liverpool, and whom I had not seen for many years. This privilege he denied me. After entering, having returned to my vessel, some of my relatives came off to see me. When Captain Quigley saw their boat alongside of my vessel he sent an officer and boat's crew, who ordered them away, and at sundown he placed an armed guard on board our vessel, who remained on board all night, and was taken off just before we sailed in the morning.

I complied with the Canadian laws, and had no intention or desire to violate them in any way; but to be made a prisoner on board my own vessel, and treated like a suspicious character, grates harshly upon the feelings of an American seaman, and I protest against such treatment, and respectfully ask from my own Government protection from such unjust, unfriendly, and arbitrary treatment.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, December 1. 1886.

SIR: As possessing additional and very disagreeable bearing upon the general subject of the harsh treatment of American fishing vessels during the late season by the local authorities of the maritime provinces of Her Majesty's Dominion of Canada, I have the honor to send you herewith a copy of a letter addressed to me, under date of the 12th ultimo, by Capt. Solomon Jacobs, master of the American fishing schooner Molly Adams, of Gloucester, Mass. You will share, I doubt not, the regret I feel at such churlish and inhospitable treatment of a vessel which had freely, and with great loss and inconvenience, rendered such essential service to the suffering and imperiled crew of a Nova Scotian vessel. But for his generous act Captain Jacobs would have had no occasion to put into Malpeque, or, subsequently, when short of provisions, into Port Medway. As his narrative shows, the local authorities at Malpeque treated him with coldness and rudeness, making no provision to receive the Nova Scotian crew he had saved from such imminent danger, even causing him to incur a pecuniary burden in completion of his humane rescue, and even treating the landing of the property so saved from the wreck of the Nova Scotian vessel, on her own shores, as not lawful for an American fishing vessel "within the three-mile limit."

The treatment of Captain Jacobs at Port Medway is a fitting sequel to that received by him at Malpeque. Having undergone fourteen days detention in the latter port, and having shared his purse and slender stock of provisions with the men he had rescued, he put to sea, when, his supplies falling short by reason of his charitable action, he asked leave to purchase at Port Medway "half a barrel of flour, or enough provisions to take his vessel and crew home." With full knowledge of the cause of Captain Jacobs's dearth of provisions, even this the collector at Port Medway absolutely refused, and threatened Captain Jacobs with the seizure of his vessel "if he bought anything whatever." The urgent need of supplies in which Captain Jacobs stood, is shown by the fact that although the run with favorable weather from Port Medway to his home port, Gloucester, Mass., only occupied three days, his crew were on half rations for two days, and without food for one day of that time. It is painful to conjecture what might have been their distress had the Molly Adams encountered storms or head winds.

I am confident that Her Majesty's Government, than which none has more generously fulfilled the obligations of the unwritten code of seafaring humanity, will hasten to rebuke the treatment of Captain Jacobs at the hands of the local authorities of Nova Scotia, by exhibiting gratitude for his act in saving seventeen of their own people from death, and tendering him compensation for the delays and expenses he has undergone through the breaking up of his legitimate fishing venture.

The closing part of Captain Jacobs's letter may serve to show the irresponsible and different treatment he was subjected to in the several ports he visited, where the only common feature seems to have been a surly hostility. At Port Hood, for instance, Captain Jacobs being sick, his brother landed and reported in his stead, and, after paying the regular fee, was told that his report was a nullity, and that the vessel would be liable to penalty for unauthorized landing of her crew unless her captain reported in person, which, although ill, he was compelled to do, and the fee was thereupon levied a second time. This is a small matter measured by the amount of the fee, but it is surely discreditable and has a tendency which cannot be too much deplored.

In my late correspondence I have treated of the necessary and logical results of permitting so irritating and unfriendly a course of action, and I will not therefore now enlarge on this subject.

I have, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

[Inclosure.]

Captain Jacobs to Mr. Bayard.

GLOUCESTER, November 12, 1886.

THE HON. SECRETARY OF STATE.

SIR: I would most respectfully ask your attention to the following facts as showing the spirit and manner of the application of law on the part of the officials of the Dominion of Canada.

On or about the 26th of September, when off Malpeque, Prince Edward Island, I fell in with the British schooner Neskilita, of Lockeport, Nova Scotia, which had run on Malpeque bar in making the harbor. It was blowing very heavy; sea running high. The crew was taken off by my vessel about 12 o'clock at night. There were seventeen men in all. We took care of them, and fed them for three days. The Neskilita became a total wreck. We saved some of the material.

The cutter Critic, Captain McClennan, one of the Canadian cruisers, was lying in the harbor of Malpeque. The captain boarded my vessel, and I reported to him the facts of the wreck and the condition of the men. They had saved a portion of their clothing. He neither offered to care for the wrecked crew, to feed them, nor to give them or myself any assistance whatever. Having some of the wrecked material on board, I asked the captain of the cutter for permission to land it. He referred me to the local collector. I went to the collector, and he referred me back to the captain of the cutter. As the cutter had gone out, the captain of the Neskilita assumed the responsibility and took the things ashore. The captain of the cutter told me that I could put the saved material on board a Nova Scotia vessel if I went outside of the three-mile limit to do it. I endeavored to get some of the people on shore to take the wrecked crew, but no one would do it unless I would be responsible for their board. Finally, I gave the crew $60, enough to pay their passage home on the cars, and also gave them provisions to last during their journey.

Malpeque is a barred harbor, and it is only in smooth water that it is safe to go out over the bar, and my vessel drawing fourteen feet of water, and there was only fourteen feet of water on the bar, it was impossible for me to go out. By being detained in port in disposing of this wrecked crew I lost over ten days of valuable time before I could get out to fish, and during that time the fleet took large quantities of mackerel. Having to feed so many on my vessel left me short of provisions, and in a short time afterwards I put into Port Medway, and stated the circumstances, and asked permission to buy half a barrel of flour or enough provisions, to take my vessel and crew home. This was absolutely refused, and the collector threatened me that if I bought anything whatever he would seize my vessel. I was obliged to leave without obtaining anything and came home in three days, on short rations, a distance of 300 miles. The wind and weather being favorable, we had a good passage, but yet we were without provisions for one day before we arrived home. I wish to state most emphatically that the officials differ in their construction of our rights. Fees are different in every port, and as there is no standard of right fixed by our own Government, the fishermen are at the mercy of a class of officials hostile to them and their business, and with but little knowledge of law or its application.

For instance, at Souris, Prince Edward Island, 15 cents is charged. For reporting at Port Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, 50 cents is charged. At Port Hood, I being sick, my brother went to the custom-house to report. The official charged him 25 cents, and told him that unless the captain reported in person the report was invalid; that men from the vessel would not be allowed ashore unless the captain reported.

In the afternoon of the same day I was able to go to the office, and was charged 25 cents for my report, making 50 cents. In the matter of anchorage fees, at Port Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, I paid $1.50; at Malpeque, $1; at Sydney, $1.17. At some ports we have to pay anchorage fees every time we go in, as at Halifax; at others twice for the season.

Now, I would most respectfully state that the official service throughout is actuated apparently from a principle of annoyance wherever and whenever it can be so applied; that there is only harmony of action in this regard alone, and that local laws and regulations are enforced against us without regard to any rights we may have under treaty; that the effect of this enforcement is not to promote but to interfere and to limit by unjust pains, fees, and penalties the right of shelter, obtaining wood and water, and making of repairs guaranteed by treaty of 1818; that instead of the restriction contemplated the local laws make a technical obligation that is without their province or power, and enforce penalties that should never be admitted or allowed by our Government.

And I would pray that in the case recited, and many others that can be shown if required, we may be protected from local laws and their enforcement that abridge our rights and have never received the sanction of the two great contracting powers in the construction and agreement of the treaty of 1818.

BRITISH LEGATION,

Washington, December 6, 1886. [Received December 7.]

SIR: With reference to your note of the 27th of October last, I have the honor to inclose herewith a certified copy of a report of a committee of the privy council of Canada, together with copy of the customs laws, which documents contain the information required respecting the sale and exportation of fresh herring from Grand Mandan Island.

I have, &c.,

L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

Certified copy of a report of a committee of the honorable the privy council of Canada, approved by his excellency the governor-general, in council, on the 24th day of November, 1886.

The committee of the privy council having had their attention called by a telegram, dated 18th November instant, from Her Majesty's minister at Washington, to his former dispatch of the 28th October ultimo, inclosing a copy of a note from the honorable Mr. Bayard, and the inclosures, asking for authentic information respecting the Canadian laws regulating the sale and exportation of fresh herring from the Grand Manan Island.

The minister of marine and fisheries, to whom said dispatch was referred for early report, states that any foreign vessel "not manned nor equipped, nor in any way prepared for taking fish," has full liberty of commercial intercourse in Canadian ports upon the same conditions as are applicable to regularly registered foreign merchant vessels; nor is any restriction imposed upon any foreign vessel dealing in fish of any kind different from those imposed upon foreign merchant vessels dealing in other commercial commodities.

That the regulations under which foreign vessels may trade at Canadian ports are contained in the customs laws of Canada (a copy of which is herewith), and which render it necessary, among other things, that upon arrival at any Canadian port a vessel must at once enter inward at the custom-house, and upon the completion of her loading, clear outwards for her port of destination.

The committee recommend that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute, together with a copy of the customs laws, as containing authentic information respecting Canadian laws regulating the sale and exportation of fresh herring, to Her Majesty's minister at Washington, for the information of the honorable Mr. Bayard, Secretary of State for the United States.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

FORTY-SEVEN VICTORIA, CHAP. 29.

AN ACT to amend the customs act, 1883. Assented to April 19, 1884.

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. Section 188 of "the customs act, 1883," is repealed and the following section enacted in lieu thereof:

"188. All penalties and forfeitures incurred under this act or any other law relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, may, in addition to any other remedy provided by this act or by law, be prosecuted, sued for and recovered with full costs of suit, in the exchequer court of Canada, or in any superior court or court of vice-admiralty, having jurisdiction in that province in Canada where the cause of prosecution arises, or wherein the defendant is served with process; and if the amount of any such penalty or forfeiture does not exceed $200, the same may, in the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island, respectively, also be prosecuted, sued for, and recovered in any court having jurisdiction in the place where the cause of prosecution arises, or where the defendant is served with the process."

2. Section 153 of the said act is repealed and the following section enacted in lieu thereof:

"153. If any person, with intent to defraud the revenue of Canada, smuggles or clandestinely introduces into Canada any goods subject to duty, or makes out, or passes, or attempts to pass through the custom-house any false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, or in any way attempts to defraud the revenue by evading the payment of the duty, or of any part of the duty on any goods, such goods shall be seized and forfeited; and every such person, his aiders and abettors, shall, in addition to any other penalty or forfeiture to which he and they may be subject for such offense, be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of not less than $50 and not more than $200, or to imprisonment for a term not less than one month nor more than one year, or to both fine and imprisonment within the said limits; and such conviction may be had in a summary manner, before any two justices of the peace or before any judge or magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace."

3. Section 86 of the said act is hereby repealed.

4. This act shall be construed as part of the act amended by it, but its provisions, so far as they differ from those for which they are substituted, shall apply not only to cases in which the offense has been committed, but also to those in which the prosecution for the penalty or forfeiture thereby incurred is commenced after the passing of this act, although the offense was committed before the passing thereof.

FORTY SIX VICTORIA, CHAP. 12.

AN ACT to amend and consolidate the acts respecting the customs. Assented to 25th May 1883.

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the senate and house of commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

1. This act may be cited as "the customs act, 1883."

2. This act shall be construed as being passed in amendment and consolidation of the act passed in the fortieth year of Her Majesty's reign (A. D. 1877), entitled "An act to amend and consolidate the act respecting the customs," and of any act amending the same.

3. This act shall come into force upon, from, and after the day of the passing thereof, and upon, from, and after the said day the acts and part of acts mentioned in the schedule hereto, and all acts, enactments, or provisions of law inconsistent with this act, or making any provision for any matter provided for by this act, are hereby repealed, and this act is substituted for them; provided always, that all acts or enactments repealed by any of the said acts shall remain repealed, and that all orders in council and regulations made under the acts hereby repealed, or under any former act relating to customs, so far as the same have not been revoked, or are not inconsistent herewith, shall remain in force until revoked or altered by competent authority; and all things lawfully done, and all obligations incurred, bonds given, duties accrued, and rights acquired under the said acts, or any of them, shall remain valid and may be enforced, and all offenses committed, penalties, forfeitures, or liabilities incurred under them, or any of them, may be prosecuted, punished, and enforced, and all proceedings and things lawfully commenced under them, or any of them, may be continued and completed under the said acts, or under corresponding provisions of this act, which shall not be construed as new law, but as a consolidation and continuation of the said repealed acts, subject to the amendments and new provisions hereby made. Anything heretofore done, or any offense committed or liability incurred under any provisions of any of the said repealed acts, which is repeated without material alteration in this act, may be alleged or referred to as having been done, committed, or incurred under the repealed act in which such provision was made, or under this act; and every such provision shall be construed as having had and as having the same effect, and from the same time, as under such repealed act, and any reference in any former act or document to any such provision in any of the said repealed acts, may hereafter be construed as a reference to the corresponding provision of this act.

4. The following terms and expressions whenever used in this act, or in any other laws relating to the customs, shall, unless it be otherwise specially provided, or there be something in the context repugnant to or inconsistent with such construction, be construed and interpreted as follows: The word "port" means a place where vessels or vehicles may discharge or load cargo; the word "collector" means the collector of the customs at the port or place intended in the sentence, or any person lawfully deputed, appointed, or authorized to do the duty of collector thereat; the word "officer" means an officer of the customs; the word "vessel" means any ship, vessel, or boat of any kind whatever, whether propelled by steam or otherwise, and whether used as a sea-going vessel or on inland waters only, unless the context be manifestly such as to distinguish one kind or class of vessel from another, and the word "vessel" includes "vehicle"; the word "vehicle" means any cart, car, wagon, carriage, barrow, sleigh, or other conveyance of what kind soever, whether drawn or propelled by steam, by animals, by hand or other power, and includes the harness or tackle of the animals, and includes also the fittings, furnishings, and appurtenances of the vehicle; the word "master" means the person having or taking charge of any vessel or vehicle; the word "conductor" means the person in charge or having the chief direction of any railway train; the words "owner," "importer," or "exporter," mean the owners, importers, or exporters, if there be more than one in any case, and include persons lawfully acting on their behalf; the word "goods" means goods, wares, and merchandise, or movable effects of any kind, including carriages, horses, cattle, and other animals, except where these latter are manifestly not intended to be included by the said word; the word "warehouse" means any place, whether house, shed, yard, dock, pond, or other place in which goods imported may be lodged, kept, and secured without payment of duty; "customs warehouse" includes sufferance warehouse, bonding warehouse, and examining warehouse; the word "oath" includes declaration and affirmation. The use of the terms "seized and forfeited," "liable to forfeiture," or "subject to forfeiture," or other term which might of itself imply that some act subsequent to the commission of the offense is necessary to work the forfeiture, shall not be construed as rendering any such subsequent act necessary, but the forfeiture shall accrue at the time of and by the commission of the offense, in respect of which the penalty of forfeiture is imposed. All the terms and provisions of this act, or of any such law as aforesaid, shall receive such fair and liberal construction and interpretation as will best insure the protection of the revenue and the attainment of the purpose for which this act or such law was made, according to its true intent, meaning, and spirit.

5. The following provisions of this act shall apply to all duties of customs imposed by any act of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, whether now in force or passed in the present session or in any future session of the said Parliament.

6. On each and every non-enumerated article which bears a similitude, either in material, quality, or the use to which it may be applied, to any enumerated article chargeable with duty, the same rate of duty shall be payable which is charged on the enumerated article which it most resembles in any of the particulars before mentioned.

7. If any non-enumerated article equally resembles two or more enumerated articles on which different rates of duty are chargeable, the duty on such non-enumerated article shall be the same as that on the enumerated article which it resembles, paying the highest duty.

8. On all articles manufactured from two or more materials, the duty shall be that charged on the article (if there be a difference of duty) which is charged with the highest duty.

9. If an article be enumerated in the tariff under two or more names or descriptions, and there be a difference of duty, the highest duty provided shall be charged and collected thereon.

10. Spirits and strong waters, from whatever substance distilled or prepared, having the flavor of any kind of spirits or strong waters, subject to a higher duty than whisky, shall be liable to the duty imposed on spirits or strong waters of which they have the flavor.

11. Inasmuch as disputes may arise as to whether any or what duty is payable on particular goods, therefore when there is no decision in the matter by any competent tribunal, or there are decisions inconsistent with each other, the governor in council may declare the duty payable on the kind of goods in question, or that such goods are exempt from duty; and any order in council containing such declaration and fixing such duty (if any) and published in the Canada Gazette, shall, until otherwise ordered by Parliament, have the same force and effect as if such duty had been fixed and declared by law; and a copy of the said Gazette containing a copy of any such order shall be evidence thereof.

12. All duties, penalties, or forfeitures imposed by any act relating to the customs shall be payable in money, being a legal tender, at such rate as that \$4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$ of such money shall be of equal value with the British sovereign or pound sterling; and all such duties shall be paid and received according to the weights and measures established by statute in that behalf:

(2) All invoices of goods shall be made out in the currency of the country whence the goods are imported, and shall contain a true statement of the value of such goods; and in computing the value for duty of such currency, the rate thereof shall be such as has been ordered and proclaimed from time to time by the governor in council, who is hereby empowered to make such order; and the rate ordered shall be based upon the actual value of the standard coins or currency of such country as compared with the standard dollar of Canada in so far as such comparative values are known; and in all cases wherein the value of a currency has not been proclaimed, or where there is no fixed standard value, or wherein from any cause the value of such currency has become depreciated, then there shall be attached to the invoice of the goods imported the certificate of some consul resident in such place or country, showing the extent of such depreciation, or the true value of the currency in which such invoice is made out, then and there, as compared with the standard dollar of Canada; provided, however, that in cases where the value of a depreciated currency is dependent upon the rate of exchange on London, it shall be optional with the importer, with the consent of collector of customs, to compute the value for duty at the rate of exchange certified by the bank through which drawn, as current at the time and place when and whence the goods were exported to Canada; provided further, that when the currency value is so determined at the time of entry, either by a consul's certificate, or by the certificate of the bank as above provided, such rate or value shall be final and not open to any readjustment by reason of the subsequent production of any certificate not corresponding in rate or value with that adopted.

13. In all cases wherein the duties are imposed according to any specific quantity or to any specific value, the same shall be deemed to apply in the same proportion to any greater or less quantity or value, and to any fractional part of such specific quantity.

14. The duties imposed by any act relating to the customs shall be held to be duties within the meaning of the act of the Parliament of Canada, entitled "An act to provide for the better auditing of the public accounts," and of any act of the said Parliament amending the same, and shall, with all matters and things thereunto relating, be subject to the provision of the said act or acts, and to the regulations and orders of the governor in council, made or to be made under the authority thereof, in so far as the same are not inconsistent with this act; and all moneys arising from such duties, or from any penalties hereby imposed, and belonging to Her Majesty, shall be paid over by the officer receiving the same to the receiver-general, and shall form part of the consolidated revenue fund of Canada.

15. The true amount of customs duties payable to Her Majesty with respect to any goods imported into Canada or exported therefrom, and the additional sum (if any) payable under section 102 of this act, shall, from and after the time when such duties should have been paid or accounted for, constitute a debt due and payable to Her Majesty, jointly and severally, from the owner of the goods at the time of the importation or exportation thereof, and from the importer or exporter thereof, as the case may be; and such debt may at any time be recovered with full costs of suit in the exchequer court of Canada, or in any provincial court having jurisdiction in cases of debt to the amount claimed.

16. No goods shall be unladen from any vessel arriving at any port or place in Canada from any place out of Canada, nor from any vessel having dutiable goods on board brought coastwise, nor shall bulk be broken within 3 leagues of the coast until due entry has been made of such goods, and warrant granted for the unlading of the same; and no goods shall be so unladen (unless for the purpose of lightening the ship or vessel in crossing over a shoal or bar or sand-bank) except between sunrise and sunset, and on some day not being a Sunday or statutory holiday, and at some hour and place at which an officer of the customs is appointed to attend the unlading of goods, or at some place for which a suffrance has been granted by the collector or other proper officer for the unlading of such goods; and if, after the arrival of the vessel within 3 leagues of the coast, any alteration be made in the stowage of the cargo so as to facilitate the unlawful unlading of any part thereof, or if any part thereof be fraudulently staved, destroyed, or thrown overboard, or any package be opened, it shall be deemed a breaking of bulk, and all goods unladen contrary to this act shall be seized and forfeited; and if bulk be broken contrary to this act, the master shall forfeit $200, and the vessel may be detained until the said fine is paid or satisfactory security is given for the payment thereof; and unless payment be made or security be given within thirty days such vessel may, at the expiration thereof, be sold to pay the said penalty.

17. The governor in council may, by regulation from time to time, appoint the ports and places of entry for the purposes of this act, and may in like manner increase or diminish the number, or alter the position or limits thereof.

18. All goods imported into Canada, whether by sea, land, coastwise, or by inland navigation, whether dutiable or not, must be brought in at a port of entry where a custom-house is lawfully established.

19. All goods or merchandise exported by sea, land, or by inland navigation must be reported at the nearest custom-house, or, if exported from any place where no custom-house is established, they must be reported within twenty-four hours of the time of such export at the nearest custom-house, according to such regulations as may be established by the governor in council from time to time.

20. If any goods are imported into Canada at any other place than at some port or place of entry at which a custom-house is then lawfully established, or being brought into such port or place of entry by land or inland navigation, are carried past such custom-house or removed from the place appointed for the examination of such goods by the collector or other officer of the customs at such port or place before the same have been examined by the proper officer and all duties thereon paid and a permit given accordingly, such goods shall be seized and forfeited; and each and every person concerned in such unlawful importation or removal shall be subject to a penalty equal to the value of such goods.

21. If any vessel with dutiable goods on board enters any place other than a port of entry (unless from stress of weather or other unavoidable cause), such goods (except those of an innocent owner) shall be seized and forfeited, together with the vessel in which the same were imported, if such vessel is of less value than $800.

22. If any vessel, worth more than $800, with dutiable goods on board, enters any place other than a port of entry (unless from stress of weather or other unavoidable cause), such goods (except those of an innocent owner) shall be seized and forfeited, and the vessel may be seized and the master or person in charge thereof shall incur a penalty of $800, and the vessel may be detained until such penalty be paid or security given for the payment thereof; and, unless payment be made or satisfactory security be given within thirty days, such vessel may, at the expiration thereof, be sold to pay the said penalty.

23. If any goods are unlawfully imported by land they shall be seized and forfeited, together with the vehicle in or by which such goods are so imported or removed, and the horses or other cattle employed in drawing such vehicle, or in importing or removing such goods.

24. If any goods are unlawfully imported on any railway they shall, in like manner, be seized and forfeited, and the car in which such goods were so imported shall be seized and detached from the train and forfeited; and any conductor, baggage-master, or any officer or servant employed on any railway, and any officer or servant employed by any express company, who is privy to or aids or abets in such unlawful importation, shall, upon summary conviction thereof, be liable to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $200, or to imprisonment for not less than three months nor more than twelve months, or to both fine and imprisonment within the said limits.

25. The master of every vessel coming from any port or place out of the Dominion of Canada, or coastwise, and entering any port in Canada, whether laden or in ballast, shall go without delay, when such vessel is anchored or moored, to the custom-house for the port or place of entry where he arrives, and there make a report in writing to the collector or other proper officer, of the arrival and voyage of such vessel, stating her name, country, and tonnage, the port of registry, the name of the master, the country of the owners, the number and names of the passengers (if any), the number of the crew, and whether she is laden or in ballast, and if laden, the marks and numbers of every package and parcel of goods on board, and where the same was laden, and the particulars of any goods stowed loose, and where and to whom consigned, and where any and what goods, if any, have been laden or unladen, or bulk has been broken, during the voyage, what part of the cargo and the number and names of the passengers which are intended to be landed at that port, and what and whom at any other port in Canada, and what part of the cargo (if any) is intended to be exported in the same vessel, and what surplus stores remain on board—as far as any of such particulars can be known to him.

26. In the case of every vessel bound for any seaport in Canada, from any port out of Canada, the collector or proper officer of such Canadian port may cause such vessel to be boarded by an officer of customs, detailed by him for such service, at any place within 3 marine miles of the anchorage ground, and such officer may demand from the master or purser of such vessel a correct copy of the report inwards, intended by him to be presented at the custom-house on arrival. Such boarding officer may remain on board the vessel until she anchors, and the copy of the report so received by him shall be deposited by him at the custom-house as the vessel's report inwards for comparison with that to be presented by the master in person.

27. The master or person in charge of any vessel, whether laden or in ballast, arriving by inland navigation in any port or place of entry in Canada, from any place beyond the limits of Canada, and having any goods therein (whether any duty be payable on such goods or not) shall go without delay, when such vessel is anchored or moored, directly to the custom-house for such port or place of entry, and make a report in writing (in such form as may be appointed for that purpose by competent authority), to the collector or other proper officer, of the arrival of such vessel, stating in such report the marks and numbers of every package and parcel of goods in such vessel, or in the charge and custody of such person, from what place the same are respectfully brought, and to what place and to whom consigned or belonging, as far as such particulars are known to him; and he shall then and there produce such goods to the collector or other proper officer, and shall declare that no goods have been unladen from such vessel or have been put out of his possession, between the time of his coming within the limits of Canada and of his making his report and affidavit, and shall further answer all such questions concerning such vessel or goods as are demanded of him by such collector or officer.

28. The master shall at the time of making his report, if required by the officer of customs, produce to him the bills of lading of the cargo, or true copies thereof, and shall make and subscribe an affidavit referring to his report and declaring that all the statements made in the report are true; and shall further answer all such questions concerning the vessel and cargo, and the crew, and the voyage, as shall, be demanded of him by such officer, and shall, if required, make the substance of any such answer part of his report.

29. If any goods are unladen from any vessel before such report be made, or if the master fails to make such report, or makes an untrue report, or does not truly answer the questions demanded of him, as provided in the next preceding section, he shall forfeit the sum of $400, and the vessel may be detained until the said fine be paid.

30. Any goods not reported, found on board of any vessel or landed, shall be seized and forfeited, unless it appears that there was no fraudulent intention, in which case the master shall be allowed to amend his report; but the necessary discharging of any goods for the purpose of lightening the vessel in order to pass any shoal, or otherwise for the safety of such vessel, shall not be deemed an unlawful landing or breaking of bulk.

31. If the contents of any package intended for importation into another port, or for exportation, be unknown to the master, the officer may open and examine it, and cause it for that purpose to be landed if he sees fit; and if any prohibited goods be found therein, all the goods in such package shall be seized and forfeited.

32. In order to avoid injurious delay to steamers and other vessels under certain circumstances, the governor in council may make such regulations as may be considered advisable for the appointment of sufferance wharves and warehouses, at which goods arriving by vessels in transit to other ports, or confined to certain days of departure, may be landed and afterward stored before entry, such vessels being duly reported to the custom-house, and having obtained the collector's warrant for the purpose; provided such landing be effected between sunrise and sunset, on a day not being Sunday or a statutory holiday, and provided the goods, on being so landed, are immediately stored in some such approved sufferance warehouse, and such goods shall be thereafter dealt with by the customs as prescribed by law; but nothing in this section shall affect any contract, express or implied, between the master or owner of any such vessel and the owner, shipper, or consignee of any such goods as aforesaid, or the rights or liability of any party under such contract; and provided further, that the governor in council may make similar regulations for the appointment of sufferance warehouses, in which goods arriving by railway may be stored before entry, such goods having been duly reported to the collector or proper officer of customs.

33. The conductor of every railway train carrying freight arriving at any port in Canada from any foreign port shall come directly, and before bulk is broken, to the custom-house at such port, and report all merchandise on board his train, or in any particular car belonging to such train, stating the marks and numbers of every package and parcel of goods on board, and where the same was laden, and where and to whom consigned, and what part thereof, if any, is intended to pass in transitu through Canada to some port or place in the United States, or to be transhipped at some other port in Canada, to be exported to a port or place out of Canada; and if any goods are unladen before such report is made, except by written permission of the collector, or proper officer of customs, or if the conductor fails to make such report, or makes an untrue report, or does not truly answer any questions put to him respecting the same, he shall forfeit the sum of $400.

34. The person in charge of any vehicle, arriving by land in any place in Canada, and containing goods, whether any duty be payable on such goods or not, and the person in charge of any vehicle so arriving, if the vehicle or its fittings, furnishings or appurtenances, or the animals drawing the same or their tackle, is or are liable to duty, and any person whosoever so arriving in Canada from any port or place out of Canada, on foot or otherwise, and having with him or in his charge or custody, any goods, whether such goods be dutiable or not, shall come to the nearest custom-house or to the station of the nearest officer of customs, before unlading or in any manner disposing of the same, and make a report in writing to the collector or proper officer of customs, stating the contents of each and every package and parcel of goods, and the quantities and values of the same; and shall also then answer all questions respecting such goods or packages, and the vehicle, fittings, furnishings and appurtenances, and animals, and the tackle appertaining thereto, as the said collector, or proper officer of customs, may require of him, and shall then and there make due entry of the same, in accordance with the law in that behalf.

35. Fresh fish, coin, or bullion may be landed without entry or warrant, as may also goods in any stranded or wrecked vessel; provided they be duly reported and entered as soon as possible after being safely deposited on shore, and that the landing be in presence of an officer of the customs or receiver of wreck, or other person authorized to do the acts of such receiver under "the wreck and salvage act, 1873," or any act amending the same.

36. If a vessel having live stock or perishable articles on board arrives after business hours, the collector or any officer at the port may permit the master to unlade the same before report; but report shall in such case be made as soon as may be after the next opening of the customs office.

37. The governor in council may, by regulation, declare any trade or voyage on the seas, rivers, lakes, or waters, within or adjacent to Canada, whether to or from any place within or without Canada, to be a coasting trade or a coasting voyage within the meaning of this act, whether such seas, rivers, lakes, or waters are or are not, geographically or for the purposes of other acts or laws, inland waters; and all carrying by water, which is not a carrying by sea or coastwise, shall be deemed to be a carrying by inland navigation; and the governor in council may, from time to time, with regard to any such coasting trade, dispense with such of the requirements of this act as he deems it inexpedient to enforce in any case or class of cases, or make such further regulations as he may think expedient; and any goods carried coastwise, or laden, water-borne or unladen, contrary to such regulations or to any provision of this act, not dispensed with by such regulations, shall be seized and forfeited.

38. It shall not be lawful, unless otherwise authorized by the governor in council, to import any goods, wares, or merchandise from any port or place out of Canada in any vessel which has not been duly registered and has not a certificate of such registry on board.

39. If any goods are unladen from any vessel or vehicle, or put out of the custody of the master or person in charge of the same, before report is made as required by this act, or if such person or master fails to make such report, or to produce such goods, or makes an untrue report, or does not truly answer the questions demanded of him, he shall for each such offense forfeit the sum of $400; and if any such goods are not so reported and produced, or if the marks and numbers or other description of any package do not agree with the report made, such goods or package shall be seized and forfeited, and the vessel or vehicle and the animals drawing the same shall be detained until such amount be paid.

40. Every importer of any goods by sea or from any place out of Canada shall, within three days after the arrival of the importing vessel, make due entry inwards of such goods, and land the same; and every importer of any goods imported by inland navigation in a decked vessel of 100 tons burden or more, shall, within twenty-four hours of the arrival of the importing vessel, make due entry inwards of such goods, and land the same; and every importer of any goods imported by inland navigation in any undecked vessel, or in any vessel less than 100 tons burden, or by land, shall, forthwith, after the importation of such goods, produce the same to the proper officer and make due entry thereof.

41. The person entering any goods inwards shall deliver to the collector or other proper officer, an invoice of such goods showing the place and date of purchase and the name or style of the firm or person from whom the goods were purchased, and a full description thereof in detail, giving the quantity and value of each kind of goods so imported, and a bill of the entry thereof, in such form as shall be appointed by competent authority, fairly written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, and in duplicate, containing the name of the importer,—and, if imported by water, the name of the vessel and of the master, and of the place to which bound, and of the place, within the port, where the goods are to be unladen,—and the description of the goods, and the marks and numbers and contents of the packages, and the place from which the goods are imported, and of what country or place such goods are the growth, produce, or manufacture.

42. Unless the goods are to be warehoused in the manner by this act provided, the importer shall, at the same time, pay down, or cause to be so paid, all duties upon all goods entered inwards; and the collector or other proper officer shall, immediately thereupon, grant his warrant for the unlading of such goods, and grant a permit for the conveyance of the same goods further into Canada, if so required by the importer.

43. In default of such entry and landing, or production of the goods, or payment of duty, the officer of customs may convey the goods to a customs warehouse, or some secure place appointed by the collector for such purpose, there to be kept at the risk and charge of the owner; and if such goods be not duly entered within one month from the date of their being so conveyed to the custom warehouse, or other appointed place, and all charges of removal and warehouse rent duly paid at the time of such entry, the goods shall be sold by public auction to the highest bidder, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied, first to the payment of duties and charges, and the overplus, if any, after discharging the vessel's lien, or other charges for transportation, shall be paid to the owner of the goods or to his lawful agent; provided, always, that in case the same cannot be sold for a sum sufficient to pay the duties and charges if offered for sale for home consumption, or the charges if offered for sale for exportation, such goods shall not be sold, but be destroyed.

44. Any goods unladen or landed before due entry thereof and warrant for landing, shall be seized and forfeited, and any person concerned in landing or receiving or concealing goods so landed, shall, for each offense, forfeit $400.

45. If any goods are brought in any decked vessel, from any place out of Canada to any port of entry therein, and not landed, but it is intended to convey such goods to some other port in Canada in the same vessel, there to be landed, then the duty shall not be paid nor the entry completed at the first port, but at the port where the goods are to be landed, and to which they shall be conveyed accordingly, under such regulations and with such security or precautions for compliance with the requirements of this act, as the governor in council may, from time to time, appoint.

46. The collector may require from the importer (or from his agent) of any goods charged with duty, or conditionally exempted from duty, or exempt therefrom, before admitting the said goods to entry, such further proof as he deems necessary, by oath or declaration, production of invoice or invoices, or bills of lading or otherwise, that such goods are properly described and rated for duty, or come properly within the meaning of such exemptions.

47. Any package of which the importer or his agent declares the contents to be unknown to him, may be opened and examined by the collector or other proper officer, in the presence of such importer or agent, and at the expense of the importer, who shall also bear the expense of repacking.

48. No entry, nor any warrant for the landing of any goods, or for the taking of any goods out of any warehouse (as hereinafter provided) shall be deemed valid, unless the particulars of the goods and packages in such entry or warrant correspond with the particulars of the goods and packages purporting to be the same in the report of the vessel, or other report (where any is required) by which the importation or entry thereof is authorized, nor unless the goods have been properly described in such entry by the denominations, and with the characters and circumstances according to which such goods are charged with duty or may be imported; and any goods taken or delivered out of any vessel, or out of any warehouse, or conveyed into Canada beyond the port or place of entry, by virtue of any entry or warrant not corresponding with the facts in all such respects, or not properly describing the goods, shall be deemed to be goods landed or taken without due entry thereof, and shall be seized and forfeited; and the collector or proper officer, after the entry of any goods, may, on suspicion of fraud, open and examine any package of such goods, in presence of two or more credible witnesses, and if, upon examination, the same are found to agree with the entries, they shall be repacked by such collector or proper officer, at the public cost, but otherwise they shall be seized and forfeited.

49. The quantity and value of any goods shall always be stated in the bill of entry thereof, although such goods are not subject to duty; and the invoice thereof shall be produced to the collector.

50. The surplus stores of vessels arriving in Canada shall be subject to the same duties and regulations as if imported as merchandise; but if the owner or master desires to warehouse the same for reshipment for the future use of the vessel, the collector may permit him so to do.

51. Vessels entering the Gut of Annapolis may be reported and entered, and the duties on goods therein imported paid either at the port of Digby or Annapolis.

52. Vessels entering the Great Bras d'Or and Little Bras d'Or shall be reported and entered at such place as the minister of customs may, from time to time, direct.

53. If any goods imported by water, or partly by water and partly by land, on which duties (ad valorem or specific or both) are payable, receive damage during the voyage of importation between the actual departure of the vessel in which they are laden from the foreign port of exportation and the actual arrival of the goods at the port of destination in Canada, whereby such goods have become lessened in value, an abatement may be made in the manner hereinafter provided in the duty payable upon such goods, or in case duty has been paid thereon, a refund of a part of such duty may be made proportionate to the damage sustained; provided the claim therefor is made in due form and properly substantiated at the first landing from such vessel of the goods, and while they are in the custody of the Crown, or as soon after such first landing as they can be examined; provided also, that such examination be completed and certified by the collector of customs, customs appraiser, or other proper officer, whose duty it shall be to assess such damage within ten days of such landing.

54. If any goods imported by railway, or by any other land vehicle, on which duties (ad valorem, or specific, or both) are payable, receive damage during the course of transportation, after they are laden on such railway or other vehicle, and before they arrive at the Canadian port of destination, whereby they become lessened in value, an abatement may be made in the manner hereinafter provided in the duty payable upon such goods, provided the claim for such abatement is made in due form within ten days of the arrival of such goods at the Canadian port of destination, and substantiated in the same manner as provided in the next preceding section.

55. The collector of customs or appraiser or other proper officer whose duty it may be to examine and assess the amount of damage sustained on voyage or in course of importation, shall do so with all possible dispatch on being notified to that effect, and shall certify to the exact cause and extent of such damage with reference to the value of the goods in the principal markets of the country whence imported, and not according to the value in Canada.

56. The collector or appraiser shall not regard as evidence of the existence or amount of damage any price realized at an auction or forced sale thereof, nor shall he estimate nor shall any damage be allowed which may have originated from decay, lampness, or other cause existing before the voyage commenced, and which may have rendered the goods unfit to withstand the ordinary risks of the voyage of importation, nor shall be estimate nor shall any allowance be made for or duty refunded for rust on iron or steel or any manufacture thereof, except on polished Russia iron and Canada plates, and on such only to the extent of 50 per cent., nor shall any allowance be made for stains or injury to any packages holding liquids, or the labels thereon, unless the contents of such packages have, at the same time, received actual specific damage by the admixture therewith of water or other foreign substance.

57. Upon the collector or appraiser ascertaining the percentage of damage, such percentage shall be deducted from the original value thereof, and duty shall then be levied and collected on such reduced value at an ad valorem rate which shall be equivalent to the rate of specific or specific and ad valorem duty which should have been collected upon such goods if they had not been so damaged.

58. When any vessel is entered at the custom-house at any port in Canada, on board of which there are any goods on which any duty has been levied or collected or on which any duty has been deposited, and thereafter the said goods are lost or destroyed before the same are landed from such vessel, or from any vessel or craft employed to lighten such vessel, then, on proof being made on the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, before and to the satisfaction of the collector or proper officer of the customs at the place (who shall administer the oath) that such goods, or any part thereof (specifying the same), have been so lost or destroyed before the landing of the same, the duties on the whole or the part thereof so proved to be lost or destroyed shall, if the same have been paid or deposited, be returned to the owner or his agent.

59. If any vessel having received damage puts into a port in Canada to which she is not bound, having dutiable goods on board, which it may be necessary to land for the purpose of repairing the vessel in order to enable her to proceed on her voyage, the collector, upon application of the master or agent, may permit such goods to be unladen and deposited in a warehouse in the custody of the collector; and the collector shall cause to be taken an exact account of the packages and contents, and entry of the goods shall then be made by the master or agent as hereinbefore directed, and they shall remain in the custody of the collector until the vessel is ready for sea, when upon payment of storage and the reasonable charges of unloading and storing, the collector shall deliver up the same to the master or agent to be exported or carried coastwise, as the case may be, under the same security and regulations as if such goods had been imported in the usual manner, and without payment of duty. No person shall be entitled to the benefit of this section who shall have sold any of such goods, except such as it may have been necessary to sell to defray the expense of repairs and charges of the vessel, or as may have been authorized by the collector of customs; and if goods are sold for payment of repairs and charges they shall be subject to duty, and shall be warehoused, or the duties thereon paid by the purchaser.

60. Goods derelict, flotsam, jetsam, or wreck, or landed or saved from any vessel wrecked, stranded, or lost, brought, or coming into Canada, shall be subject to the same duties and regulation as goods of the like kind imported are subject to.

61. If any person has in his possession, in port or on land, any goods, derelict, flotsam, jetsam, or wreck, the same being dutiable, and does not give notice thereof to the nearest officer of customs without unnecessary delay, or does not on demand pay the duties thereon or deliver the same to the proper officer, he shall forfeit $200, in addition to all other liabilities and penalties incurred by him, and the goods shall be seized and forfeited; and if any person removes or alters in quantity or quality any such goods, or unnecessarily opens or alters any package thereof or abets any such act before the goods are deposited in a warehouse under the custody of the customs officers, he shall, in addition to all other liabilities and penalties incurred by him, forfeit $200.

62. If the duties on such goods are not paid within eighteen months from the time when the same were so delivered as aforesaid, the same may be sold in like manner and for the same purposes as goods imported may in such default be sold; if they are sold for more than enough to pay the duty and charges thereon, the surplus shall be paid over to the person entitled to receive it.

63. All goods exempt from duty as being imported or taken out of warehouse for the use of Her Majesty's troops, or for any purpose for which such goods may be imported free of duty, shall, in case of the sale thereof after importation, become liable to and be charged with the duties payable on like goods on their importation for other purposes; and if such duties be not paid, such goods shall be forfeited, and may be seized and dealt with accordingly.

64. In all cases where duties are charged according to the weight, tale, gauge, or measure, such allowances shall be made for tare and draft upon the packages as may be appointed by regulation made by the governor in council; but when the original invoice of any goods is produced, and a declaration of the correctness thereof made as hereinafter provided, the tare according to such invoice shall be deducted from the packing of goods for shipment, and all such charges and expenses shall, in all cases, be included as part of the value for duty.

74. The governor in council may provide that in the cases and on the conditions to be mentioned in the order, goods bona fide exported to Canada from any country, but passing in transitu through another country, shall be valued for duty as if they were imported directly from such first-mentioned country.

75. The standards or instruments by which the colors and grades of sugar are to be regulated, and the class to which sugars shall be held to belong, with reference to duty chargeable thereon, shall be selected and furnished from time to time to the collectors of such ports of entry as may be necessary, by the minister of customs, in such manner as he may deem expedient; and the decision of the appraiser, or of the collector of a port where there is no appraiser, as to the class to which any sugar belongs, and the duties to which it is subject, shall be final and conclusive, unless upon appeal to the commissioner of customs, within thirty days, such decision be, with the approval of the minister, changed; the decision of the commissioner, with such approval, shall then be final.

76. All cane-juice, sirup of sugar or of sugar-cane, melado, concentrated melado or concentrated molasses, entered as molasses, or under any other name than cane-juice, sirup of sugar or of sugar-cane, melado, concentrated melado, or concentrated molasses, shall be seized and forfeited.

77. The value for duty on which any ad valorem duties on sugar, molasses, melado, sirup of sugar, or sugar-cane, sirup of molasses or of sorghum, concentrated melado or concentrated molasses, and sugar candy, shall, unless otherwise provided, be calculated and taken, shall include the value of the packages containing the same, and the shipping and other charges on such articles; and the value for duty shall be the value of the goods "free on board," at the place or port whence last exported direct to Canada; and the governor in council shall have power to declare what charges shall be included in such value so defined.

78. The governor in council shall have power to interpret, limit or extend the meaning of the conditions upon which it is provided in any act imposing duties of customs, that any article may be imported free of duty for special purposes, or for particular objects or interests; and to make regulations either for declaring or defining what cases shall come within the conditions of such act, and to what objects or interests of an analogous nature, the same shall apply and extend, and to direct the payment or non-payment of duty in any such case, or the remission thereof by way of drawback if such duty has been paid.

79. If the importer of any goods whereon a duty ad valorem is imposed, or the person authorized to make the declaration required with regard to such goods, makes and subscribes a declaration before the collector or other proper officer, that he cannot, for want of full information, make perfect entry thereof, and takes the oath in such cases provided, then the collector or officer may cause such goods to be landed on a bill of sight for the packages and parcels thereof, by the best description that can be given, and to be seen and examined by such person and at his expense, in the presence of the collector or principal officer, or of such other officer of the customs as shall be appointed by the said collector or other proper officer, and to be delivered to such person, on his depositing in the hands of the collector or officer a sum of money sufficient in the judgment of the collector or officer to pay the duties thereon; and if the importer does not complete a perfect entry within the time appointed by the collector, the money so deposited shall be taken and held to be the duty accruing on such goods, and shall be dealt with and accounted for accordingly.

80. Such sight entry may be made as aforesaid and the goods may be delivered, if such importer or person as aforesaid makes oath or affirms that the invoice has not been and cannot be produced, and pays to the collector or proper officer aforesaid a sum of money sufficient in the judgment of such collector or officer to pay the duties on such goods, and such sum shall then be held to be the amount of the said duties.

81. Except only in cases where it is otherwise provided herein, or by regulation of the governor in council, no entry shall be deemed perfect unless a sufficient invoice of the goods to be entered, duly certified in writing thereon as correct by the person, firm, and corporation from whom the said goods were purchased, has been produced to the collector and duly attested as required by this act.

82. With the bill of entry of any goods there shall be produced and delivered to and left with the collector an invoice of the goods, as provided in the next preceding section, attested by the oath of the owner, and if the owner be not the person entering such goods then verified by the oath of the importer or consignee, or (subject to the provision hereinafter made) other person who may lawfully make such entry and verify such invoice in the form or to the effect of the oath or oaths provided or to be provided by order in council in that behalf, which oath or oaths shall be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed on such invoice, or on the bill of entry (as the case may be), or shall be annexed thereto, and shall in either case distinctly refer to such invoice so that there can be no doubt as to its being the invoice to which such oath is intended to apply, and shall be subscribed by the party making it and certified by the signature of the person before whom it is made; and the bill of entry shall also contain a statement of the quantity and value for duty of the goods therein mentioned, and shall be signed by the person making the entry, and shall be verified in the form or to the effect of the oath provided or to be provided by order in council in that behalf.

83. If there be more than one owner, importer, or consignee of any goods, any one of them cognizant of the facts may take the oath required by this act; and such oath shall be sufficient unless the goods have not been obtained by purchase in the ordinary way, and some owner resident out of Canada is the manufacturer or producer of the goods, or concerned in the manufacture or production thereof, in which case the oath of such non-resident owner (or one of them, if there be more than one) cognizant of the fact shall be requisite to the due attestation of the invoice.

84. The invoice of any goods produced and delivered to the collector with the bill of entry thereof, must, if required by the collector, be attested by the oath of the owner or one of the owners of such goods, and must be verified also by the oath of the importer, or consignee, or other person who may, under this act, lawfully make entry of such goods and verify such invoice, if the owner or one of the owners is not the person entering such goods, and must also, if required by the collector, be attested by the oath of the non-resident owner being the manufacturer or producer of such goods, in the case mentioned in the next preceding section, although one of the owners be the person entering the goods and verifying the invoice on oath.

85. If the owner, importer, or consignee of any goods be dead, or a bankrupt, or insolvent, or if for any cause his personal estate be administered by another person, then his executor, curator, administrator, or assignee, or person administering as aforesaid, may, if cognizant of the facts, take any oath and make any entry which such owner, importer, or consignee might otherwise have taken or made.

86. No evidence of the value of any goods imported into Canada, or taken out of warehouse for consumption therein, at the place whence and the time when they are to be deemed to have been exported to Canada, contradictory to or at variance with the value stated in the invoice produced to the collector, with the additions (if any) made to such value by the bill of entry, shall be received in any court in Canada.

87. Any oath required under the provisions of this act connected with the entry of goods may be made in Canada before the collector, subcollector, surveyor, or chief clerk at the port where the goods are entered, or if the person making such oath is not resident there, then before the collector or proper officer of some other port; and when such oath is required to be made out of the limits of Canada, it may be made at any place within the United Kingdom, or at any place in Her Majesty's possessions abroad, before the collector or before the mayor or other chief municipal officer of the place where the goods are shipped, or before a notary public, and at any other place before a British consul, or if there be no British consul, then before a foreign consul at such place.

88. The commissioner of customs or other person acting as deputy head of the department, and all officers holding under order in council the rank of chief clerk of the inside service in the said department, and all duly appointed inspectors of customs ports, shall, by virtue of their office, have full authority to administer all oaths and receive all affirmations and declarations required or authorized by this act, and the governor in council may, from time to time, by regulation, appoint or designate such other and additional persons, officers, or functionaries, as he sees fit, by name, or by their name of office, and in Canada or out of it, as those before whom such oaths may be validly taken, and may, by any order in council relax or dispense with the provisions of this act touching such oaths, in or with regard to goods imported by land or inland navigation, or to any other class of cases to be designated in such regulation.

89. No person other than the owner, consignee, or importer of the goods of which entry is to be made, shall be allowed to take any oath connected with the entry, unless there be attached to the bill of entry therein referred to, a declaration by the owner, consignee, or importer of the said goods or his attorney and agent duly appointed to transact business with the collector, pursuant to the provisions in that behalf of this act, to the same effect as the oath, distinctly referring to the invoice presented with such bill of entry, and signed by such owner, importer or consignee, or by his attorney and agent appointed as aforesaid, either in presence of the agent making the entry, who shall attest the signature, or of some justice of the peace or notary public, who shall attest the same.

90. Such declaration shall be kept by the collector; and if there be any willfully false statement in such declaration, the goods shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture in the same manner and with the same effect as if such false statement were contained in the oath, and the person making such false statement shall be subject to the same penalties, forfeitures, and criminal punishments as if he had himself taken the oath and had made such false statement therein; but such written declaration may be dispensed with under the order of the governor in council, where it may be deemed advisable, in the interest of commerce, to dispense therewith.

91. The governor in council may prescribe the forms of oaths required under this act. Such forms may from time to time be repealed or amended, and the forms of oaths authorized by statute or by the governor in council at the time of the passing of this act shall continue to be the authorized forms until altered or dispensed with by the governor in council.

92. If any person makes, or sends, or brings into Canada, or causes or authorizes the making, sending, or bringing into Canada of any invoice or paper, used or intended to be used as an invoice for customs purposes, wherein any goods are entered or charged at a less price or value than that actually charged, or intended to be charged for them, no price or sum of money shall be recoverable by such person, his assigns or representatives, for the price or on account of the purchase of such goods, or any part of them, or on any bill of exchange, note, or other security (unless in the hands of an innocent holder for value without notice), made, given, or executed for the price of or on account of the purchase of such goods, or any part of such price.

93. The production or proof of the existence of any other invoice, account, document or paper made or sent by any person, or by his authority, wherein goods or any of them are charged or entered at or mentioned as bearing a greater price than that set upon them in any such invoice as in the next preceding section mentioned shall be prima facie evidence that such invoice was intended to be fraudulently used for customs purposes; but such intention, or the actual fraudulent use of such invoice, may be proved by any other legal evidence.

94. Any importer of goods into Canada, or any person on his behalf, who shall present or cause to be presented, with intent to make entry thereunder, any false or fraudulent invoice, such as described in the two next preceding sections shall be subject to a penalty equal in amount to the value of the goods represented in such invoice, and the goods shall also be seized and forfeited.

95. The collectors of customs at all ports in Canada shall retain and put on file, after duly stamping the same, all invoices of goods imported at such ports respectively, of which invoices they shall give certified copies or extracts, whenever called upon so to do by the importers, and such copies or extracts so duly certified by the collector or other proper officer, and bearing the stamp of the custom-house at which they are filed, shall be considered and received as authentic, and the collector shall be entitled to demand for each certificate a fee of 50 cents before delivering the same, but in no case shall an invoice be shown to or a copy thereof given to any person other than the said importer, or an officer of customs, except upon the order or subpoena of a proper court.

96. Any appraiser, or any collector acting as such, or the persons to be selected as hereinafter mentioned to examine and appraise any goods, if the importer, owner, consignee, or agent is dissatisfied with the first appraisement, may call before him or them and examine upon oath any owner, importer, consignee, or other person, touching any matter or thing which such appraiser or collector deems material in ascertaining the true value of any goods imported, and may require the production on oath of any letters, accounts, invoices, or other papers or account-books in his possession relating to the same.

97. If any person called, as provided in the next preceding section, neglects or refuses to attend, or declines to answer, or refuses to answer in writing (if required) to any interrogatories, or to subscribe his name to his deposition or answer, or to produce any such papers or account-books, as provided by the next preceding section, when required so to do, he shall thereby incur a penalty of $50; and if such person is the owner, importer, or consignee of the goods in question, the appraisement which the appraiser or collector acting as such shall make thereof shall be final and conclusive.

98. If any person willfully swears falsely in any such examination, and he is the owner, importer, or consignee of the goods in question, they shall be seized and forfeited; and all depositions or testimony in writing taken under either of the two next preceding sections shall be filed in the office of the collector at the place where the same are made or taken, there to remain for future use or reference.

99. If the importer, owner, consignee, or agent, having complied with the requirements of this act, is dissatisfied with the appraisement made, as aforesaid, of any such goods, he may forthwith give notice, in writing, to the collector, of such dissatisfaction, on the receipt of which notice the collector shall select two discreet and experienced persons, familiar with the character and value of the goods in question, to examine and appraise the same, agreeably to the foregoing provisions; and all invoices, entries, and other papers connected with the appraisement, and all evidence taken by or before the appraiser or collector of customs acting as such, and by or before the said persons, shall be transmitted without delay to the commissioner of customs, who, after due examination of the same, shall decide and determine the proper rate and amount of duty to be collected and paid, and his decision shall be final and conclusive, and the duty shall be levied and collected accordingly.

100. The said persons appointed to appraise shall each be entitled to the sum of $5, to be paid by the party dissatisfied with the first appraisement, if the value ascertained by the second appraisement is equal to or greater than that ascertained by such first appraisement or if the value ascertained by such second appraisement exceeds by 10 per cent., or more, the value of the goods for duty, as it would appear by the invoice and bill of entry thereof; otherwise the same shall be paid by the collector out of any public moneys in his hands, and charged in his accounts.

101. Any person chosen to make an appraisement required under this act who, after due notice of such choice has been given to him in writing, declines or neglects to make such appraisement, shall, for so refusing or neglecting without good and sufficient cause, incur a penalty of $40 and costs.

102. If in any case the true value for duty of any goods, as finally determined under this act, or as determined in any action or proceeding to recover unpaid duties, exceeds by 20 per cent. or more the value for duty, as it would appear by the bill of entry thereof, then in addition to the duty payable on such goods, when properly valued, there shall be levied and collected upon the same a sum equal to one-half of the duty so payable; and in case the owner or importer refuses or neglects to pay the said duty and additional sum, the goods may be seized and forfeited.

103. The collector may, when he deems it expedient for the protection of the revenue and the fair trader, subject always to any regulations to be made by the governor in council in that behalf, detain and cause to be properly secured, and may at any time within fifteen days declare his option to take, and may take, for the Crown, any whole package or packages, or separate and distinct parcel or parcels, or the whole of the goods mentioned in any bill of entry, and may pay, when thereunto requested, to the owner or person entering the same, and out of any public moneys in the hands of such collector, the sum at which such goods, packages, or parcels are respectively valued for duty in the bill of entry, and 10 per cent. thereon, and also the fair freight and charges thereon to the port of entry, and may take a receipt for such sum and addition when paid.

104. The goods taken as provided in the next preceding section, shall (whether payment be requested by the owner or person entering the same, or not) belong to the Crown from the time they are so taken as aforesaid, and shall be sold or otherwise dealt with in such manner as shall be provided by any regulation in that behalf, or as the minister of customs shall direct; and the net proceeds of the sale of any such goods shall be applied first to the repayment to the consolidated revenue fund of the sum so paid to the owner or person entering such goods, and the remainder to or towards the payment of the lawful duty on the same.

105. If the net proceeds of any such sale exceeds the amount paid as aforesaid for the goods, and the amount of duty legally accruing thereon, then any part of the surplus, not exceeding 50 per cent. of such surplus, may under any regulation or order of the governor in council be paid to the collector, appraiser, or other officer concerned in the taking thereof, as a reward for his diligence.

106. The collector shall cause at least one package in every invoice or entry and at least one package in ten, if there be more than ten, in any invoice or entry, and so many more as he or any appraiser deems it expedient to examine for the protection of the revenue, to be sent to the examining warehouse, and there to be opened, examined, and appraised, the packages to be so opened being designated by the collector.

107. If any goods are found in any package which are not mentioned in the invoice or entry, such goods shall be seized and absolutely forfeited.

108. If any goods are found which do not correspond with the goods described in the invoice or entry, or if the description in the invoice or entry has been made for the purpose of avoiding payment of the duty or of any part of the duty on such goods, or if in any entry any goods have been undervalued for such purpose as aforesaid, such goods shall be seized and forfeited.

109. If the oath made with regard to any entry is willfully false in any particular—all the packages and goods included or pretended to be included, or which ought to have been included in such entry, shall be forfeited.

110. All the packages mentioned in any one entry, although some of such packages may have been delivered to the importer or any one on his behalf, shall be subject to the control of the customs authorities of the port at which they are entered, until such of the packages as have been sent for examination to the examining warehouse shall have been duly examined and approved; and a bond shall be given by the importer, conditioned that the packages so delivered shall not be opened or unpacked before the package or packages sent to the examining warehouse shall have been examined and passed as aforesaid.

111. Any package delivered without examination, or the goods, if lawfully unpacked, shall, if required by the collector of customs, be returned to the custom-house within such time as may be mentioned in the bond, under the forfeiture of the penalty of such bond; provided, that the collector shall use due diligence in causing such examination to be made, and may, if he sees no objection, permit the remaining packages to be opened and unpacked as soon as those sent to the warehouse have been examined and approved.

112. The bond mentioned in the two next preceding sections may be a general bond covering the entries to be made by the importer for a period of twelve months from its date, and the penal sum shall be equal to the value of the largest importation made by the importer in question at any one time during the twelve months next immediately preceding; or if such importer has made no importations by which, in the opinion of the collector such penal sum can be properly fixed, the collector shall fix the amount thereof at such sum as he deems equitable.

113. The burden of proof that the proper duties payable with respect to any goods have been paid, and that all the requirements of this act with regard to the entry of any goods have been complied with and fulfilled, shall, in all cases, lie upon the party whose duty it was to comply with and fulfill the same.

114. The governor in council may, by regulation, direct that after any goods have been entered at the custom-house, and before the same are discharged by the officers and delivered into the custody of the importer or his agent, such goods shall be marked or stamped in such a manner or form as may be directed by such regulation for the security of the revenue, and by such officer as may be directed or appointed for that purpose.

115. When any person has occasion to remove from any port of entry to any other port or place, any goods duly entered, and on which the duties imposed by law have been paid, the collector or principal officer of the customs at such port on the requisition in writing of such person, within thirty days after the entry of such goods, specifying the particular goods to be removed, and the packages in which such goods are contained with their marks and numbers, shall give a permit or certificate in writing, signed by him, bearing date of the day it is made, and containing the like particulars, and certifying that such goods have been duly entered at such port and the duties paid thereon, and stating the port or place at which the same were paid, and the port or place to which it is intended to convey them, and the mode of conveyance, and the period within which they are intended to be so conveyed.

116. The warehousing ports already established and such ports of entry as the governor in council may from time to time appoint shall be warehousing ports.

117. The importer of any goods into Canada may enter the same for exportation, on giving security by his own bond with one sufficient security, for the exportation of the same goods, or may warehouse the same on giving such security by his own bond for the payment of the amount of all duties on such goods, and the performance of all the requirements of this act with regard to the same at such ports or places as aforesaid, and in such warehouses, and subject to such rules and regulations as may be from time to time appointed by the governor in council in that behalf, the penalty of the said bond to be double the amount of the duty to which such goods are subject.

118. During the regular warehouse hours, and subject to such regulations as the collector or proper officer of customs at any warehousing port sees fit to adopt, the owner of any warehoused goods may sort, pack, repack, or make any lawful arrangements respecting the goods warehoused, in order to the preservation or legal disposal thereof, and may take therefrom moderate samples, without present payment of duty or entry.

119. The owner of any warehoused goods may remove the goods under the authority of the collector or proper officer from any warehousing port to any other warehousing port in Canada, or from one warehouse to another in the same port, under good and sufficient bonds to the satisfaction of such officer.

120. Upon entry of goods at any frontier port or custom-house, under the authority and with the sanction of the collector or proper officer of customs at such port or custom-house, and under bonds to his satisfaction, and subject to such regulations as may be made in that behalf by the governor in council, the importer may pass the goods on to any port in any other part of Canada.

121. No transfer of the property in goods warehoused shall be valid for the purposes of this act unless the transfer be in writing signed by the importer or his duly authorized agent, or be made by process of law, and unless such transfer be produced to the collector or other proper officer of the proper port and be recorded by him in a book to be kept for that purpose in the custom-house. No such transfer of less than a whole package shall be valid, and no more than three transfers of the same goods shall be allowed before entry thereof for duty or for exportation.

122. Upon any such transfer of goods in warehouse being legally effected, as before provided, the proper officer may admit new security to be given by the bond of the new owner of the goods, and may cancel the bond given by the original bonder of such goods, or may exonerate him to the extent of the new security so given; and the new owner of any such goods shall then be deemed to be the importer thereof for the purposes of this act.

123. All warehoused goods shall be finally cleared, either for exportation or home consumption, within two years from the date of the first entry and warehousing thereof; and, in default thereof, the collector or proper officer may sell such goods for the payment, first, of the duties, and, secondly, of the warehouse rent and other charges; and the surplus, if any, shall be paid to the owner or his lawful agent; and the collector or proper officer may charge or authorize the occupier of the warehouse to charge a fair warehouse rent, subject to any regulation made by the governor in council in that behalf.

124. The collector may, if he sees no reason to refuse such permission, permit an importer to abandon to the Crown any whole package or packages of warehoused goods, without being liable to pay any duty on the same; and the same shall then be sold and the proceeds shall belong to the Crown, provided, that if such goods cannot be sold for a sum sufficient to pay the duties and charges, such goods shall not be sold but shall be destroyed.

125. The governor in council may, by regulation, dispense with or provide for the canceling of bonds for the payment of duties on goods actually deposited in a customs warehouse, on such terms and conditions and in such cases as he thinks proper.

126. It shall not be lawful for any person to make, or any officer of customs to accept, any bond, note, or other document for the purpose of avoiding or deferring the actual payment of duties legally accruing on goods imported into Canada, nor to arrange for deferring payment of such duties in any way, unless such goods are entered for warehouse and duly deposited therein according to the laws and regulations governing the warehousing of such goods.

127. Any collector or other officer of customs who shall allow the payment of duties of customs to be avoided or deferred for any cause or consideration whatever, except by regular entry for warehouse, shall be and become liable to forfeit a sum equal to the full value of such goods, and in addition thereto the amount of duty accruing thereon, which shall be recoverable from him or his sureties, or either of them, in the exchequer court or any court of competent jurisdiction in Canada; and any goods on which payment of duty may have been so avoided or deferred shall be liable to seizure and be dealt with as goods unlawfully imported into Canada.

128. If any goods entered to be warehoused are not duly carried into and deposited in the warehouse, or, having been so deposited, are afterwards taken out of the warehouse, without lawful permit, or, having been entered and cleared for exportation from the warehouse, are not duly carried and shipped, or otherwise conveyed out of Canada, or are afterwards relanded, sold, used, or brought into Canada, without the lawful permission of the proper officer of the customs, such goods shall be seized and forfeited.

129. All goods taken out of warehouse shall be subject to the duties to which they would be subject if then imported into Canada, and not to any other.

130. The importer of any cattle or swine may slaughter and cure and pack the same (or if such cattle or swine are imported in the carcass, may cure and pack the same) in bond; and the importer of any wheat, maize, or other grain, may grind and pack the same in bond, providing such slaughtering, curing, grinding, and packing be done and conducted under such regulations and restrictions as the governor in council may, from time to time, make for that purpose; but the said regulations shall not extend to the substitution of other beef, pork, flour, or meal for the produce of such imported cattle or swine, wheat, maize, or other grain.

131. The importer or owner of any sugar, molasses, or other material from which refined sugar can be produced, may refine the same in bond, provided such refining be done and conducted under such regulations and restrictions as the governor in council may, from time to time, make for that purpose.

132. Duties shall be payable in all cases on the quantity and value of goods in the warehouse, as ascertained and stated on first entry, or as originally warehoused.

133. The unshipping, carrying, and landing of all goods, and the taking of the same to and from a customs warehouse or proper place after landing, shall be done in such manner, and at such places, as shall be appointed by the collector or proper officer of customs.

134. Unless otherwise provided by the governor in council, warehouse rent and expenses of safe-keeping in warehouse, and all expenses connected with the unshipping, carrying, and landing of goods and the taking of the same to and from a customs warehouse or proper place after landing shall be borne by the importer. If any such goods be removed from the place so appointed without leave of such collector or proper officer, they shall be seized and forfeited.

135. The governor in council may, from time to time, make regulations for the ex-warehousing of goods, either for consumption, removal, exportation, or ship's stores, in any quantity not less than a whole package as originally warehoused, unless the said goods be in bulk, and then in quantities not less than one ton in weight, except when a less weight may be the balance remaining of the original entry thereof for warehouse.

136. If after any goods have been duly entered, or landed to be warehoused, or entered and examined to be rewarehoused, and before the same have been actually deposited in the warehouse, the importer further enters the same or any part for home use or for exportation as from the warehouse, the goods so entered shall be considered as warehoused or rewarehoused, as the case may be, although not actually deposited in the warehouse, and may be delivered and taken for home use or for exportation.

137. Upon the entry outwards of any goods to be exported from the customs warehouse, either by sea or by land, or inland navigation, as the case may be, the person entering the same shall give security by bond in double the duties of importation on such goods, and with a sufficient surety, to be approved by the collector or proper officer, that the same shall, when the entry afore said is by sea, be actually exported, and when the entry aforesaid is by land or inland navigation, shall be landed or delivered at the place for which they are entered outwards, or shall in either case be otherwise accounted for to the satisfaction of the collector or proper officer, and that such proof or certificate that such goods have been so exported, landed, or delivered, or otherwise legally disposed of, as the case may be, as shall be required by any regulation of the governor in council, shall be produced to the collector or proper officer within a period to be appointed in such bond; and if any such goods are not so exported or are fraudulently relanded in or brought into Canada, in contravention of this act and of the said bond, they shall be seized and forfeited, together with any vessel, boat, or vehicle in which they are so relanded or imported.

138. If within the period appointed by the said bond, there be produced to the proper collector or officer of customs the written certificate of some principal officer of customs or colonial revenue at the place to which the goods were exported, or if such place be a foreign country, of any British or foreign consul or vice-consul, resident there, stating that the goods were actually landed and left at some place (naming it) out of Canada, as provided by the said bond, such bond shall be canceled; in case it be proved to the satisfaction of the proper collector or officer of customs that the said goods have been lost, such bond may be canceled.

139. Any person making any entry outwards of goods from warehouse for exportation not being the owner or duly authorized by the owner thereof, or the master of the vessel by which they are to be shipped, shall, for each offense, forfeit $200.

140. Warehoused goods may be delivered as ships' stores for any vessel of the burden of 50 tons or upwards, bound on a voyage to a port out of Canada, the probable duration of which voyage out and home will not be less than thirty days; also for any vessel bound for and engaged in the deep-sea fishing, proof being first made by affidavit of the master or owner, to the satisfaction of the proper officer, that the stores are necessary and intended for the purposes aforesaid; provided that the minister of customs may define and limit the kind, quantity, and class of goods which may be so delivered as ships' stores. Should such stores or any part thereof be relanded, sold, or disposed of in Canada without due entry and payment of duty, such stores shall be seized and forfeited and the vessel for which the same were delivered from warehouse shall be seized and forfeited.

141. The master of every vessel bound outwards from any port in Canada to any port or place out of Canada, or on any voyage to any place within or without the limits of Canada, coastwise or by inland navigation, shall deliver to the collector or other proper officer an entry outwards under his hand, of the destination of such vessel, stating her name, country, and tonnage, the port of registry, the name of the master, the country of the owners, and the number of the crew; and before any goods or ballast are taken on board such vessel the master shall show that all goods imported in her, except such as were reported for exportation in the same vessel, have been duly entered, except that the proper officer may issue a stiffening order that such goods or ballast as may be specified therein may be laden before the former cargo is discharged. And before such vessel departs the master shall bring and deliver to the collector or other proper officer a content in writing under his hand of the goods laden and the names of the respective shippers and consignees of the goods, with the marks and numbers of the packages or parcels of the same, and shall make and subscribe a declaration to the truth of such content as far as any of such particulars can be known to him.

142. The master of every vessel, whether in ballast or laden, shall, before departure, come before the collector or other proper officer, and answer all such questions concerning the vessel, and the cargo, if any, and the crew, and the voyage, as may be demanded of him by such officer, and, if required, shall make his answers or any of them part of the declaration made under his hand, as aforesaid; and thereupon the collector or other proper officer, if such vessel is laden, shall make out and give to the master a certificate of the clearance of such vessel for her intended voyage with merchandise or a certificate of her clearance in ballast, as the case may be; and if there be merchandise on board, and the vessel is bound to any port in Canada, such clearance shall state whether any and which of the goods are the produce of Canada, and if the goods are such as are liable to duties, whether the duties thereon have been paid; and in such case the master shall hand the clearance to the collector at the next port in Canada at which he arrives immediately on his arrival.

143. If any vessel departs from any port or place in Canada without a clearance, or if the master delivers a false content, or does not truly answer the questions demanded of him, or if, having received a clearance, such vessel adds to her cargo, or takes another vessel in tow, or performs any work without having mentioned in the report outwards the intention so to do, the master shall forfeit the sum of $400; and the vessel shall be detained in any port in Canada until the said penalty be paid.

144. The governor in council may, by regulation, dispense with any of the requirements of the two last preceding sections which he deems it inexpedient to enforce, with regard to vessels engaged in the coasting trade or inland navigation.

145. Before a clearance is granted to any vessel bound to a port or place out of Canada, the owners, shippers, or consignors of the cargo on board such vessel shall deliver to the collector or proper officer of customs entries of such parts of the cargo as are shipped by them respectively, and shall verify the same by oath; and such entries shall specify the kinds and quantities of the articles shipped by them respectively, and the value of the total quantity of each kind of articles, and whether the said goods are of Canadian or of foreign production or manufacture; and such oath shall state that such entry contains a full, just, and true account of all articles laden on board of such vessel by such owners, shippers, or consignors respectively; and that the values of such articles are truly stated according to their actual cost or the value which they truly bear at the port and time of exportation; and in case the goods so shipped or any part thereof be liable by law to any export duty, the amount of such duty shall be stated in such entry; and no such entry shall be valid, and no clearance shall be granted to such vessel until such duty is paid to the collector or proper officer of customs.

146. The owners, shippers, or consignors of any goods consigned to a port or place out of Canada, to be transported by railway or other land conveyance, shall enter the same for exportation at the custom-house nearest to the place of lading; and such entry shall specify the kinds and quantities of the articles laden by them respectively, and the proper name and description of the railway over which such goods are to be transported, or of any other conveyance to be used for the same purpose; and shall verify the same by oath, and such oath shall be of the same form and tenor as that required from owners, shippers, or consignors of goods to be transported by sea; and if any of such goods are liable by law to any export duty, such duty shall be clearly stated upon such entry, and no railway car or other vehicle upon which such goods are laden shall be permitted to leave the limits of the port at which such entry should have been made until such duty is paid to the collector or proper officer of customs, and if any such car or vehicle be taken out of the limits of such port, contrary to the provision of this section, the company or person so taking the same shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $400.

147. The owner, shipper, or consignor of any goods who shall refuse or neglect to make report and entry of the articles shipped or laden by them respectively, as required by the two last preceding sections, shall incur a penalty not exceeding $200 for each such offense.

148. The governor in council may, by regulations to be, from time to time, made in that behalf, require such further information with regard to the description, quantity, quality, and value of goods exported from Canada, or removed from one port to another in Canada, to be given to the proper officer of the customs, in the entry of such goods outwards or otherwise, as he deems requisite for statistical purposes, whether such goods be exported or removed by sea, land, or inland navigation.

149. No entry outwards nor any shipping warrant or warrant for taking goods from warehouse for exportation shall be deemed valid, unless the particulars of the goods and packages shall correspond with the particulars in the entry inwards, nor unless they shall have been properly described in the entry outwards, by the character, denomination, and circumstances under which they were originally charged with duty; and any goods laden or taken out of the warehouse by an entry outwards or shipping warrant not so corresponding or not properly describing them, shall be seized and forfeited.

150. If the owner of any goods be resident more than ten miles from the office of the collector at the port of shipment, he may appoint an agent to make his entry outwards and clear and ship his goods; but the name of the agent and the residence of the owner shall be subjoined to the name in the entry and shipping warrant; and the agent shall make the declaration on the entry which is required of the owner, and shall answer the questions that shall be put to him. Any trading corporation or company may appoint an agent for the like purpose.

151. The report for entry, inwards and outwards, required by this act, may, in the case of any steam vessel carrying a purser, be made by such purser with the like effect in all erspects, and subject to the like penalty on the purser and the like forfeiture of the goods in case of any untrue report, as if the report were made by the master; and the word "master," for the purposes of this section, shall be construed as including the purser of any steam vessel; but nothing herein contained shall preclude the collector or proper officer of customs from calling upon the master of any steam vessel to answer all such questions concerning the vessel, passengers, cargo, and crew as might be lawfully demanded of him, if the report had been made by him, or to exempt the master from the penalties imposed by this act for failure to answer any such question, or for answering untruly, or to prevent the master from making such report if he shall see fit so to do.

152. Whenever the collector of customs at any port is satisfied that in such port as well as in the adjacent city or town and its vicinity, there does not exist an extraordinary, infectious, contagious, or epidemic disease, which could be transmitted by the vessel, her crew, or cargo, he may grant to any vessel requiring a bill of health a certificate, under his hand and seal, attesting the fact aforesaid, for which he shall be entitled to ask and receive a fee of one dollar.

153. If any person, with intent to defraud the revenue of Canada, smuggles or clandestinely introduces into Canada any goods subject to duty, or makes out or passes or attempts to pass through the custom-house any false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, or in any way attempts to defraud the revenue by evading the payment of the duty, or of any part of the duty on any goods, such goods shall be seized and forfeited; and every such person, his aiders and abettors shall, in addition to any other penalty or forfeiture to which he and they may be subject for such offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $50 and not more than $200, or to imprisonment for a term of not less than one month nor more than one year, or to both fine and imprisonment within the said limits, in the discretion of the court before whom the conviction is had.

154. If any person offers for sale any goods under pretense that the same are prohibited, or have been unshipped and run on shore, or brought in by land or otherwise without payment of duties, then and in such case all such goods (although not liable to any duties nor prohibited) shall be seized and forfeited, and every person offering the same for sale shall forfeit treble the value of such goods, or the penalty of $200, at the election of the prosecutor, which penalty shall be recoverable in a summary way, before any one or more justices of the peace; and in default of payment on conviction, the party so offending shall be committed to any of Her Majesty's jails for a period not exceeding sixty days.

155. If any person knowingly harbors, keeps, conceals, purchases, sells or exchanges any goods illegally imported into Canada (whether such goods are dutiable or not), or whereon the duties lawfully payable have not been paid, such person shall, for such offense, forfeit treble the value of the said goods, as well as the goods themselves.

156. If any two or more persons in company are found together, and they or any of them have any goods liable to forfeiture under this act, every such person having knowledge of the fact, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punishable accordingly.

157. Any person who, by any means, procures or hires or induces any person or persons to be concerned in the landing or unshipping, or carrying or conveying any goods which are prohibited to be imported, or for the landing of which permission has not been granted by the collector or proper officer of customs, shall, for every person so procured or hired or induced, forfeit the sum of $100.

158. If any warehoused goods are concealed in or unlawfully removed from any customs warehouse in Canada, such goods shall be seized and forfeited, and any person concealing or unlawfully removing any such goods or aiding or abetting such concealing or removal, shall incur the penalties imposed on persons illegally importing or smuggling goods into Canada, and on discovery of such concealment or removal all goods belonging to the importer or owner of the concealed or removed goods then remaining in the same or any other warehouse, shall be placed under detention until the duty payable on the goods so concealed or removed and all penalties incurred by him shall have been paid; and if such duties and penalties are not paid within one month after the discovery of the concealment or removal of such goods, the goods so detained shall be dealt with in the same manner as goods unlawfully imported or smuggled into Canada.

159. If the importer or owner of any warehoused goods, or any person in his employ, by any contrivance opens the warehouse in which the goods are or gains access to the goods except in the presence of or with the express permission of the proper officer of the customs, such importer or owner shall for every such offense forfeit the sum of $100.

160. If any person by any contrivance gains access to bonded goods in a railway car, or to goods in a railway car upon which goods the customs duties have not been paid, or delivers such bonded or other goods without the express permission of the proper officer of customs, such person shall for every such offense be liable to be imprisoned for any period not less than one month nor more than one year.

161. Any person wilfully altering, defacing, or obliterating any mark, placed by any officer of customs, on any package of warehoused goods, or goods in transit, shall, for every such offense, forfeit the sum of $500.

162. All vessels with the guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture thereof, vehicles, harness, tackle, horses, and cattle made use of in the importation or unshipping or landing or removal of any goods liable to forfeiture under this act, shall be seized and forfeited; and every person assisting or otherwise concerned in importing, unshipping, landing, or removal, or in the harboring of such goods, or into whose hands or possession the same knowingly come, shall forfeit treble the value of such goods, or the penalty of $200 at the election of the party suing for the same; and the averment in any information or libel exhibited for the recovery of such penalty, that such party has elected to sue for the sum mentioned in the information or libel, shall be sufficient proof of such election, without any other evidence of the fact.

163. If any vessel is found hovering (in British waters) within one league of the coasts or shores of Canada, any officer of customs may go on board and enter into such vessels and stay on board such vessel while she remains within the limits of Canada or within one league thereof; and if any such vessel is bound elsewhere and so continues hovering for the space of twenty-four hours after the master has been required to depart by such officer of customs, such officer may bring the vessel into port and examine her cargo, and if any goods prohibited to be imported into Canada are on board, then such vessel with her apparel, rigging, tackle, furniture, stores, and cargo shall be seized and forfeited; and if the master or person in charge refuses to comply with the lawful directions of such officer or does not truly answer such questions as are put to him respecting such ship or vessel or her cargo, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of $400.

164. Every person proved to have been on board any vessel or boat liable to forfeiture for having been found within one league of the coasts or shores of Canada, having on board or attached thereto or conveying or having conveyed anything subjecting such vessel or boat to forfeiture, or who shall be proved to have been on board any vessel or boat from which any part of the cargo shall have been thrown overboard or destroyed, or in which any goods shall have been unlawfully brought into Canada, shall forfeit $100, provided such person shall have been knowingly concerned in such acts.

165. Officers of customs may board any vessel at any time or place and stay on board until all the goods intended to be unladen shall have been delivered; they shall have free access to every part of the vessel, with power to fasten down hatchways, the forecastle excepted, and to mark and secure any goods on board; and if any place, box or chest be locked, and the keys withheld, the officer may open the same. If any goods be found concealed on board they shall be seized and forfeited, and if any mark, lock, or seal upon any goods on board be wilfully altered, opened, or broken, before the delivery of the goods, or if any goods be secretly conveyed away, or if hatchways fastened down by the officer be opened by the master, or with his assent, the master shall forfeit $400, and the vessel may be detained until the said fine be paid, or satisfactory security be given for the payment thereof.

166. The collector or other proper officer of the customs may station officers on board any ship while within the limits of a port, and the master shall provide every such officer with suitable accommodation and food, under a penalty of $200.

167. If any person at any time forges or counterfeits any mark or brand to resemble any mark or brand provided or used for the purposes of this act, or forges or counterfeits the impression of any such mark or brand, or sells or exposes to sale, or has in his custody or possession, any goods with a counterfeit mark or brand, knowing the same to be counterfeit, or uses or affixes any such mark or brand to any other goods required to be stamped as aforesaid, other than those to which the same was originally affixed, such goods so falsely marked or branded shall be seized and forfeited, and every such offender, and his aiders, abettors or assistants, shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay the sum of $200, which penalty shall be recoverable in a summary way, before any two justices of the peace in Canada; and in default of payment the party so offending shall be committed to any of Her Majesty's jails in Canada, for a period not less than two months and not exceeding twelve months.

168. If any person counterfeits or falsifies, or uses when so counterfeited or falsified, any paper or document required under this act, or for any purpose therein mentioned, whether written, printed, or otherwise, or by any false statement, procures such document, or forges or counterfeits any certificate relating to any oath, or declaration or affirmation hereby required or authorized, knowing the same to be so forged or counterfeited, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and being thereof convicted, shall be liable to be punished accordingly.

169. If any wilfully false oath, affirmation, or declaration be made in any case where, by this act, an oath, affirmation or declaration is required or authorized, the party making the same shall be guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury, and liable to the punishment provided for that offense.

170. If any person required by this act or by any other law to answer questions put to him by any officer of the customs, refuses to answer or does not truly answer such questions, the person so refusing or not truly answering such questions, shall, over and above any other penalty or punishment to which he becomes subject, forfeit the sum of $400.

171. Every officer and person employed under the authority of any act relating to the collection of the revenue, or under the direction of any officer in the customs department, or being an officer of the said department, shall be deemed and taken to be duly employed for the prevention of smuggling; and in any suit or information, the averment that such party was so duly employed shall be sufficient proof thereof.

172. Any such officer or person as mentioned in the next preceding section, and any sheriff or justice of the peace, or person residing more than 10 miles from the residence of any officer of customs and thereunto authorized by any collector of customs or justice of the peace, may, upon information, or upon reasonable grounds of suspicion, detain, open and examine any package suspected to contain prohibited property or smuggled goods, or goods respecting which there has been any violation of any of the requirements of this act, and may go on board of and enter into any vessel or vehicle of any description whatsoever, and may stop and detain the same, whether arriving from places beyond or within the limits of Canada, and may rummage and search all parts thereof, for such goods; and if any such goods are found in any such vessel or vehicle, the officer or person so employed may seize and secure such vessel or vehicle, together with all the sails, rigging, tackle, apparel, horses, harness, and all other appurtenances which, at the time of such seizure, belong to or are attached to such vessel or vehicle, with all goods and other things laden therein or thereon, and the same shall be seized and forfeited.

173. Any officer or person in the discharge of the duty of seizing goods, vessels, vehicles, or property liable to forfeiture under this act, may call in such lawful aid and assistance in the Queen's name, as may be necessary for securing and protecting such seized goods, vessels, vehicles, or property; and if no such prohibited, forfeited or smuggled goods are found, such officer or person, having had reasonable cause to suspect that prohibited, forfeited, or smuggled goods would be found therein, shall not be liable to any prosecution or action at law for any such search, detention or stoppage.

174. Every master or person in charge of any vessel, and every driver or person conducting or having charge of any vehicle or conveyance, refusing to stop when required to do so by an officer of customs, or person employed as such, in the Queen's name, and any person being present at any such seizure or stoppage, and being called upon in the Queen's name by such officer or person to aid and assist him in a lawful way, and refusing so to do, shall forfeit and pay the sum of $200, which penalty shall be summarily recovered before any two justices of the peace in Canada, or before any judge or magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace; and in default of payment the offender shall be committed to any jail in Canada, for a period not exceeding six months.

175. Any officer of customs having first made oath before a justice of the peace that he has reasonable cause to suspect that goods liable to forfeiture are in any particular building, or in any yard or other place, open or inclosed, may, with such assistance as may be necessary, enter therein at any time between sunrise and sunset, but if the doors are fastened, then admission shall be first demanded, and the purpose for which entry is required declared, when, if admission shall not be given, he may forcibly enter; and when in either case entry shall be made, the officer shall search the premises, and seize all goods subject to forfeiture; these acts may be done by an officer of customs without oath or the assistance of a justice of the peace, in places where no justice resides, or where no justice can be found within five miles at the time of search.

176. If any building be upon the boundary line between Canada and any foreign country, and there is reason to believe that dutiable goods are deposited or have been placed therein, or carried through or into the same, without payment of duties and in violation of law, and if the collector or proper officer of customs makes oath before any justice of the peace that he has reason to believe as aforesaid, such collector or officer shall have the right to search such building and the premises belonging thereto, so far as the same may be within the limits of Canada, and if any such goods be found therein the same shall be seized and forfeited; and any merchant or the person who shall have been guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000.

177. Upon application by or on behalf of the attorney-general of Canada to the exchequer court of Canada, or any judge thereof in chambers, such court or judge shall grant a writ of assistance for such officer or officers of customs as may be named in the application. Such writ shall have force and effect over the whole of Canada, unless upon the application of the attorney-general it be limited to some part or parts thereof. Such writ shall remain in force so long as any person named therein remains an officer of the customs, whether in the same capacity or not, or until such writ is revoked by the minister of customs.

178. Every writ of assistance granted before the coming into force of this act, under the authority of the acts hereby repealed shall remain in force, notwithstanding such repeal, as if such acts had not been repealed.

179. Under the authority of a writ of assistance any officer of the customs, or any person employed for that purpose with the concurrence of the governor in council, expressed either by special order or appointment or by general regulation, may enter at any time in the day or night into any building or other place within the jurisdiction of the court granting such writ, and may search for and seize and secure any goods liable to forfeiture under this act, and in case of necessity, may break open any doors and any chests or other packages for that purpose.

180. Any officer of customs, or person by him authorized thereunto, may search any person on board any vessel or boat within any port in Canada, or in any vessel, boat or vehicle entering Canada by land or inland navigation, or any person who may have landed or got out of such vessel, boat, or vehicle, or who may have come into Canada from a foreign country in any manner or way, provided the officer or person so searching has reasonable cause to suppose that the person searched may have goods subject to entry at the customs, or prohibited goods, secreted about his person; and whoever obstructs or offers resistance to such search, or assists in so doing, shall thereby incur a forfeiture of $100; and any person who may be on board of or may have landed from or got out of such vessel, boat, or vehicle, or who may have entered Canada from a foreign country in any manner or way, may be questioned by such officer, as to whether he has any such goods about his person, and if he denies having any such goods, or does not produce such as he may have, and any such goods are found upon him on being searched, the goods shall be seized and forfeited, and he shall forfeit treble the value thereof: Provided, That before any person can be searched, as aforesaid, such person may require the officer to take him or her before some police magistrate, justice of the peace, or before the collector or chief officer of the customs at the place, who shall, if he sees no reasonable cause for search, discharge such person; but if otherwise he shall direct such person to be searched; and if a female, she shall not be searched by any but a female; and any such magistrate or justice of the peace or collector of customs may, if there be no female appointed for such purpose, employ and authorize a suitable female person to act in any particular case or cases.

181. Any officer required to take any person before a police magistrate, justice of the peace, or chief officer of customs, as aforesaid, shall do so with all reasonable dispatch; and if any officer requires any person to be searched without reasonable cause, such officer shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding $40.

182. If any goods or property or vehicle, subject or liable to forfeiture under this act, or any other law relating to the customs, are stopped or taken by any police or peace officer, or any person duly authorized, such goods and property and vehicles shall be taken to the custom-house next to the place where the same were stopped or taken and there delivered to the proper officer authorized to receive the same within forty-eight hours after the same were stopped and taken.

183. If any such goods or property or vehicles are stopped or taken by such police or peace officer on suspicion that the same have been feloniously stolen, such officer shall carry the same to the police office to which the offender is taken, there to remain until and in order to be produced at the trial of the said offender; and in such case the officer shall give notice in writing to the collector or principal officer of Her Majesty's customs at the port nearest to the place where such goods have been detained, of his having so detained the said goods, with the particulars of the same, and immediately after the trial all such goods shall be conveyed to and deposited in the custom-house or other place appointed as aforesaid, and proceedings relative to the same shall be had according to law.

184. In case any police or peace officer, having detained such goods, neglects to convey the same to the custom-house, or to give notice of having stopped the same as before prescribed, such officer shall forfeit the sum of $100; and such penalty shall be recoverable in a summary way before any one or more justices of the peace or any police magistrate, and in default of payment the party so offending shall be committed to any of Her Majesty's jails for a period not exceeding thirty days.

185. If any person whatever, whether pretending to be the owner or not, either secretly or openly, and whether with or without force or violence, takes or carries away any goods, vessel, vehicle, or other thing which have been seized or detained on suspicion, as forfeited under this act, before the same have been declared by competent authority to have been seized without due cause, and without the permission of the officer or person having seized the same, or of some competent authority, such person shall be deemed to have stolen such goods, being the property of Her Majesty, and to be guilty of felony, and shall be liable to punishment accordingly.

186. If any person, under any pretense, either by actual assault, force, or violence, or by threats of such assault, force, or violence, in any way resists, opposes, molests, or obstructs any officer of customs, or any person acting in his aid or assistance, in the discharge of his or their duty, under the authority of this act, or any other law in force in Canada, relating to customs, trade, or navigation, or wilfully or maliciously shoots at or attempts to destroy or damage any vessel belonging to Her Majesty, or in the service of the Dominion of Canada, or maims or wounds any officer of the Army, Navy, marine, or customs, or any person acting in his aid or assistance while duly employed for the prevention of smuggling and in execution of his or their duty—or if, any person is found with any goods liable to seizure or forfeiture, under this act or any other law relating to customs, trade, or navigation, and carrying offensive arms or weapons, or in any way disguised, or staves, breaks, or in any way destroys any such goods, before or after the actual seizure thereof, or scuttles, sinks, or cuts adrift any vessel, or destroys or injures any vehicle or animal, before or after the seizure, or wilfully and maliciously destroys or injures, by fire or otherwise, any custom-house or any building whatsoever in which seized, forfeited, or bonded goods are deposited or kept, such person being convicted thereof, shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and shall be punishable accordingly.

187. If any officer of the customs, or any person who, with the concurrence of the minister of customs, is employed for the prevention of smuggling, makes any collusive seizure, or delivers up, or makes any agreement to deliver up or not to seize any vessel, boat, carriage, goods, or thing liable to forfeiture under this act, or takes or accepts a promise of any bribe, gratuity, recompense, or reward for the neglect or non-performance of his duty, such officer or other person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, forfeit for every such offense the sum of $500, and be imprisoned for a period not less than three months nor more than two years, and be rendered incapable of serving Her Majesty in any office whatever; and every person who gives, or offers or promises to give, or procure to be given, any bribe, recompense, or reward to, or makes any collusive agreement with, any such officer or person as aforesaid, to induce him in any way to neglect his duty, or to conceal or connive at any act whereby the provisions of this act, or any law relating to the customs, trade, or navigation, might be evaded, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction, forfeit for every such offense the sum of $500, and be imprisoned for a period not less than three months nor more than two years.

188. All penalties and forfeitures incurred under this act, or any other law relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, may, in addition to any other remedy provided by this act or by law, be prosecuted, sued for, and recovered, with full costs of suit, in the exchequer court of Canada, or in any superior court having jurisdiction in that province in Canada where the cause of prosecution arises, or wherein the defendant is served with process; and if the amount of any such penalty or forfeiture does not exceed $200, the same may, in the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island, respectively, also be prosecuted, sued for, and recovered in any county court or circuit court having jurisdiction in the place where the cause of prosecution arises, or where the defendant is served with process.

189. All penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, or by any other act relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, shall, unless other provisions be made for the recovery thereof, be sued for, prosecuted, and recovered, with cost, by Her Majesty's attorney-general of Canada, or in the name or names of the commissioner of customs, or some officer or officers of the customs, or other person or persons thereunto authorized by the governor in council, either expressly or by general regulation or order, and by no other party.

190. All penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, or by any other law relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, may, in the Province of Quebec, be sued for, prosecuted, and recovered, with full costs of the suit, by the same proceeding as any other moneys due to the Crown, and all suits or prosecutions for the recovery thereof shall, in that province, be heard and determined in like manner as other suits or prosecutions in the same court for moneys due to the Crown, except that in the circuit court the same shall be heard and determined in a summary manner; but nothing in this section shall affect any provisions of this act, except such only as relate to the form of proceeding and of trial in such suits or prosecutions as aforesaid.

191. Any prosecution or suit in the exchequer court of Canada, or in any superior court or circuit court of a province, for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture imposed by this act, or by any other law relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, may be commenced, prosecuted, and proceeded with in accordance with any rules of practice, general or special, established by the court for Crown suits in revenue matters, or in accordance with the usual practice and procedure of the court in civil cases in so far as such practice and procedure may be applicable, and wherever not applicable, then in accordance with the directions of the court or a judge in chambers.

The venue in any such prosecution or suit may be laid in any county in the province, notwithstanding that the cause of prosecution or suit did not arise in such county.

192. Any judge of the court in which any prosecution or suit is brought for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture as aforesaid may, upon being satisfied by affidavit that there is reason to believe that the defendant will leave the province without satisfying such penalty or forfeiture, issue a warrant under his hand and seal for the arrest and detention of the defendant in the common jail of the county, district, or place until he has given security (before and to the satisfaction of such judge or some other judge of the same court) for the payment of such penalty, with costs, in case judgment be given against him.

193. In any declaration, information, statement of claim, or proceeding in any such prosecution or suit, it shall be sufficient to state the penalty or forfeiture incurred, and the act or section under which it is alleged to have been incurred, without further particulars; and the averment that the person seizing was and is an officer of the customs shall be sufficient evidence of the fact alleged unless it be contradicted by some superior officer of the customs.

194. In every prosecution, information, suit, or proceeding brought under this act for any penalty or forfeiture, or upon any bond given under it, or in any matter relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, Her Majesty, or those who sue for such penalty or forfeiture, or upon such bond, shall, if they recover the same, be entitled also to recover full costs of suit; and all such penalties and costs, if not paid, may be levied on the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the defendant, in the same manner as sums recovered by judgment of the court in which the prosecution is brought may be levied by execution, or payment thereof may be enforced by capias ad satisfaciendum against the person of the defendant under the same conditions and in like manner.

195. If in any case the attorney-general is satisfied that the penalty or forfeiture was incurred without intended fraud, he may enter a nolle prosequi on such terms as he may see fit, and which shall be binding on all parties; the entry of such nolle prosequi shall be reported to the minister of customs, with the reasons therefor.

196. In any prosecution, suits or other proceeding for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture as aforesaid, or for an offense against this act or any other law relating to the customs, or to trade or navigation, the averment that the cause of prosecution or suit arose, or that such offense was committed, within the limits of any district, county, port, or place shall be sufficient, without proof of such limits, unless the contrary is proved.

197. If any prosecution or suit is brought for any penalty or forfeiture under this act, or any other law relating to the customs or to trade or navigation, and any question arises whether the duties have been paid on any goods, whether the same have been lawfully imported, or lawfully laden or exported, or whether any other thing hath been done by which such penalty or forfeiture would be avoided, the burden of proof shall lie on the owner or claimant of the goods, and not on the party bringing such prosecution or suit.

198. All vessels, vehicles, goods, and other things seized as forfeited under this act, or any other law relating to customs, or to trade or navigation, shall be placed in the custody of the nearest collector and secured by him, or if seized by an officer in charge of a revenue vessel, shall be retained on board thereof until her arrival in port, and shall be deemed and taken to be condemned, without suit, information, or proceedings of any kind, and may be sold, unless the person from whom they were seized, or the owner thereof, or some person on his behalf, within one month from the day of seizure, do give notice in writing to the seizing officer or other chief officer of the customs at the nearest port that he claims or intends to claim the same; and the burden of proof that such notice was duly given in any case shall always lie upon the person claiming.

199. Notwithstanding that no such notice has been given, proceedings for the condemnation of the things seized may be commenced and prosecuted to judgment.

200. So soon as proceedings have been commenced in any court for the condemnation of anything seized, notice thereof shall be posted up in the office of the clerk, registrar, or prothonotary of the court, and also in the office of the collector at the port at which the thing has been seized as aforesaid; and if it be a vessel, shall also be posted on a mast thereof, or on some other conspicuous place on board.

201. Any person desiring to claim anything seized after proceedings for condemnation thereof have been commenced must file such claim in the office of the clerk, registrar, or prothonotary of the court; such claim must state the name, residence, and occupation or calling of the person making it, and must be accompanied by an affidavit of the claimant or his agent having a knowledge of the facts, setting forth the nature of the claimant's title to the thing seized.

202. Before any claim can be filed the claimant shall give security to the satisfaction of the court or a judge thereof by bond in a penalty of not less than $200, or by a deposit of money not less than that sum, for the payment of the costs of the proceedings for condemnation.

203. If within one month after the last posting of the notice, under section 200, no claim to the thing seized be duly made, and security for costs given in accordance with the provisions of this act and of the practice of the court, judgment by default for the condemnation of the thing seized may, with the leave of the court or a judge thereof, be entered.

204. Any collector of customs may, as may also any court or judge having competent jurisdiction to try and determine the seizure, with the consent of the collector at the place where the things seized are, order the delivery thereof to the owner, on the deposit with the collector in money of a sum at least equal to the full duty-paid value (to be determined by the collector) of the things seized and the estimated costs of the proceedings in the case; and any sum or sums of money so deposited shall be immediately deposited in some bank appointed for that purpose by competent authority, to the credit of the receiver-general of Canada, there to remain until forfeited in due course of law or released by order of the minister of customs; and in case such seized articles are condemned, the money deposited shall be forfeited.

205. If the thing seized be an animal or a perishable article, the collector at whose port the same is may sell the same so as to avoid the expense of keeping it or to prevent its becoming deteriorated in value. The proceeds of such sale shall be deposited in some chartered bank to the credit of the receiver-general of Canada, and shall abide the judgment of the court with respect to the condemnation of the thing seized, in case proceedings for condemnation be taken in court, or shall become the property of Her Majesty, in case the thing seized becomes condemned without proceedings in court: Provided always, that the collector shall deliver up such animal or perishable article to the claimant thereof upon such claimant depositing with him a sum of money sufficient in the opinion of the collector to represent the duty-paid value of the thing claimed and the costs of any proceedings to be taken in court for the condemnation of the thing seized. The money so deposited shall be paid into some chartered bank to the credit of the receiver-general of Canada, and shall be dealt with in the same manner as above provided for in the case of the proceeds of a sale of such thing.

206. If notice of intent to claim has been given, and the value of the goods or thing seized does not exceed $100 and the prosecutor chooses to proceed under this section, he shall forthwith cause the goods to be valued by a competent appraiser, and if such appraiser certifies them to be under the said value, a summary information, in writing, may be exhibited in the name of the collector at or nearest to the place of seizure, or in the name of any officer authorized thereto by the minister of customs, before two justices of the peace, charging the articles seized as forfeited under some particular act and section thereof, to be therein referred to, and praying condemnation thereof; and the justices shall thereupon issue a general notice for all persons claiming interest in the seizure to appear at a certain time and place, there to claim the articles seized and answer the information, otherwise such articles will be condemned; and a copy of the notice shall, at least eight days before the time of appearance, be served upon the person from whose possession the things were taken, or shall be left at or affixed to the building or vessel in which they were seized, if any, and if there remaining, or at two public places nearest the place of seizure; if any person appears to answer the information, the justices shall hear and determine the matter in a summary manner and acquit or condemn the articles, but if no person appears, judgment of condemnation shall be given; and the justices, on condemnation, shall issue a warrant to the collector to sell the goods; and such two justices shall be deemed a court, and each of them to be a judge thereof, for the purposes of this act.

207. All prosecutions or suits for the recovery of any of the penalties or forfeitures imposed by this act, or any other law relating to the customs, may be commenced at any time within three years after the cause of prosecution or suit arose, but not afterwards; and the vessels, vehicles, goods, or things forfeited shall be liable to forfeiture during the same period.

208. An appeal shall lie from a conviction by any magistrate, judge, justice or justices of the peace under this act in the manner provided by law from convictions in cases of summary conviction in that province in which the conviction was had, on the appellant furnishing security, by bond or recognizance with two sureties, to the satisfaction of such magistrate, judge, justice or justices of the peace, to abide the event of such appeal.

209. And an appeal shall also lie from the exchequer court of Canada, the superior, county, and circuit courts, respectively, in cases where the amount of the penalty or forfeiture is such that if a judgment for a like amount were given in any civil case an appeal would lie; and such appeal shall be allowed and prosecuted on like conditions and subject to like provisions as other appeals from the same court in matters of like amount.

210. If the appeal be brought by Her Majesty's attorney-general, or a collector or officer of the customs, it shall not be necessary for him to give any security on such appeal.

211. In any case in which proceedings have been instituted in any court against any vessel, vehicle, goods, or thing, for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture under this act, or any law relating to the customs, trade, or navigation, the execution of any decision or judgment for restoring the thing to the claimant thereof shall not be suspended by reason of any appeal from such decision or judgment, provided the claimant gives sufficient security, to be approved of by the court, or a judge thereof, to render and deliver the thing in question, or the value thereof, to the appellant, in case the decision or judgment so appealed from be reversed.

212. All sales of goods forfeited or otherwise liable to be sold under this act shall be by public auction, and after a reasonable public notice, and subject to such further regulations as may be made by the governor in council; but in any case the minister of customs may order vessels, goods, vehicles, or things forfeited to be disposed of as he may see fit, instead of being sold by public auction.

213. The proceeds, after deducting expenses, shall, unless it be otherwise provided, belong to Her Majesty for the public uses of the Dominion; but the net proceeds, or any portion thereof, may be divided between and paid to the collector or chief officer of the customs at the port or place where the seizure was made, and the officer or officers by whom the seizure was made, or the information given which led to the seizure, and any person who has given information or otherwise aided in effecting the condemnation of the thing seized, in such proportions as the governor in council may in any case or class of cases direct and appoint; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit or affect any power vested in the governor in council or the minister of customs to make and ordain any other plan or system for the distribution of such net proceeds, or with regard to the remission of penalties or forfeitures imposed by this act or any other law.

214. When any goods have been seized or detained under any of the provisions of this act, or of any law relating to the customs, the importer or exporter thereof, and the owner or claimant thereof, shall immediately, upon being required so to do by the collector or other proper officer of customs of the port where the seizure or detention took place, produce and hand over all invoices, bills, accounts, and statements of the goods so seized or detained, and of all other goods imported into Canada by him at any time within three years next preceding such seizure or detention; and shall also produce for the inspection of such collector or other officer, and allow him to make copies of, or extracts from, all books of account, ledgers, day-books, cash-books, letter-books, invoice-books, or other books wherein any entry or memorandum appears respecting the purchase, importation, cost, value, or payment of the goods so seized or detained, and of all other goods as aforesaid.

215. If any person required under the next preceding section to produce and hand over invoices, bills, accounts, and statements, or to produce for inspection books of accounts, ledgers, day-books, cash-books, letter-books, invoice-books, and other books, or to allow copies or extracts to be made therefrom, neglects or refuses so to do, he shall incur a penalty of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000.

216. If in any prosecution, information, or suit respecting any seizure made under this act, or any law relating to the customs, decision or judgment be given for the claimant, and if the judge or court before whom the case has been tried or brought certifies that there was probable cause of seizure, the claimant shall not be entitled to any costs of suit, nor shall the person who made such seizure be liable to any action, indictment, or other suit or prosecution on account of such seizure; and if any action, indictment, or other suit or prosecution account of his making or being concerned in the making of such seizure, the plaintiff, if probable cause is certified as aforesaid, shall not be entitled to more than twenty cents damages nor to any costs, nor shall the defendant in such prosecution in such case be fined more than ten cents.

217. Goods claimed to be exempt from duty under any act relating to duties of customs shall, in the entry thereof, be described and set forth in the words by which they are described to be free in the act or schedule; and goods not answering such description shall be seized and forfeited; or if the collector deems it expedient, he may detain the goods and report the case for the action of the commissioner of customs and the decision of the minister of customs, as provided in this act.

218. When any vessel, vehicle, goods, or thing has been seized or detained under any of the provisions of this act or of any law relating to the customs, or when it is alleged that any penalty or forfeiture has been incurred under the provisions of this act, or of any law relating to the customs, the collector or the proper officer shall forthwith report the circumstances of the case to the commissioner of customs.

219. The commissioner may thereupon notify the owner or claimant of the thing seized or detained, or his agent, or the person alleged to have incurred the penalty or forfeiture, or his agent, of the reasons for the seizure, detention, penalty, or forfeiture, and call upon him to furnish, within thirty days from the date of the notice, such evidence in the matter as he may desire to furnish. Such evidence may be by affidavit or affirmation, made before any justice of the peace, any collector of customs, any commissioner for taking affidavits in any court, or any notary public.

220. After the expiration of the said thirty days, or sooner if the person so called upon to furnish evidence so desires, the commissioner may consider and weigh the circumstances of the case, and report his opinion and recommendation thereon to the minister of customs.

221. The minister may thereupon give his decision in the matter, respecting the seizure, detention, penalty, or forfeiture, and the terms (if any) upon which the thing seized or detained may be released, or the penalty or forfeiture remitted; and if the owner or claimant of the thing seized or detained, or the person alleged to have incurred the penalty, signifies in writing, by himself or his agent, his acceptance of the decision, he shall be bound thereby, and the terms thereof may be enforced and carried out, and in any action, suit or proceeding to recover any money claimed by virtue of such decision the person accepting the same shall not be at liberty to set up that the thing seized was not liable to seizure or detention, or that he had not incurred any penalty or forfeiture.

222. But if the said owner, or claimant, or person, or his agent, within twenty days after having been notified of the decision, gives to the minister of customs notice in writing that such decision will not be accepted, or if such twenty days elapse without such decision being accepted, proceedings for the condemnation of the thing seized or for the enforcement of the penalty or forfeiture may be taken without delay.

223. If the said decision be accepted as by this act provided, and if the terms thereof be not forthwith complied with, the minister of customs may elect either to enforce the terms of the decision or to take proceedings for the condemnation of the thing seized, or for the enforcement of the penalty or forfeiture.

224. If a term of the decision be that the thing seized or detained be released upon payment of a sum of money, and if such money be not paid forthwith after acceptance of the decision, and if the minister elects to enforce the decision, such thing may be sold and the net proceeds applied towards payment of such sum, the balance (if any) to be handed over to the person entitled thereto. If such net proceeds be not sufficient to pay such sum the person accepting the decision shall be liable to pay the amount of the deficiency, and the same may be recovered from him as a debt due to Her Majesty.

225. If after acceptance of the decision, the person required thereby to pay any sum of money as a penalty or forfeiture, does not forthwith pay the same, the amount thereof may be recovered from him as a debt due to Her Majesty.

226. No action, suit, or proceeding shall be commenced, no writ shall be sued out against, nor a copy of any process served upon any officer of the customs or person employed for the prevention of smuggling as aforesaid, or upon any officer of customs for anything done in the exercise of his office, until one month after notice in writing has been delivered to him, or left at his usual place of abode, by the attorney or agent of the party who intends to sue out such writ or process, in which notice shall be clearly and explicitly contained the cause of the action, the name and place of abode of the person who is to bring such action, and the name and place of abode of the attorney or agent; and no evidence of any cause of such action shall be produced except of such as is contained in such notice, and no verdict or judgment shall be given for the plaintiff, unless he proves on the trial that such notice was given; and, in default of such proof, the defendant shall receive a verdict, or judgment and costs.

227. Any such officer or person against whom any action, suit, or proceeding is brought on account of anything done in the exercise of his office, may, within one month after such notice, tender amends to the party complaining, or his agent, and plead such tender in bar to the action, together with other pleas; and if the court or jury (as the case may be) find the amends sufficient, judgment or verdict shall be given for the defendant, and in such case, or in case the plaintiff becomes non-suited, or discontinues his action, or judgment is given for the defendant upon demurrer or otherwise, then such defendant shall be entitled to full costs of defense; the defendant, by leave of the court in which the action is brought, may, at any time before issue joined, pay money into court as in other actions.

228. Every such action, suit, or proceeding must be brought within three months after the cause thereof, and laid and tried in the place or district where the facts were committed; and the defendant may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff becomes non-suited or discontinues the action, or if upon a demurrer or otherwise judgment is given against the plaintiff the defendant shall recover full costs of defense.

229. If in any such action, suit, or proceeding, the court or judge before whom the action is tried certifies upon the record that the defendant in such action acted upon probable cause, then the plaintiff in such action shall not be entitled to more than 20 cents damages nor to any costs of suit, nor in case of a seizure shall the person who made the seizure be liable to any civil or criminal suit or proceeding on account thereof.

230. In addition to the purposes and matters hereinbefore or hereinafter mentioned, the governor in council may from time to time, and in the manner hereinafter provided, make regulations for or relating to the following purposes and matters :

(1) For the warehousing and bonding of such cattle and swine as may be slaughtered and cured in bond, and of such wheat, maize, and other grain as may be ground and packed in bond, and of such sugar as may be refined in bond.

(2) For the branding and marking of all duty-paid goods and goods entered for exportation, and for regulating and declaring what allowances shall be made for tare on the gross weight of goods.

(3) For declaring what shall be coasting trade, or inland navigation, respectively, and how the same shall be regulated in any case or classes of cases, and for relaxing or dispensing with any of the requirements of this act, as to vessels engaged in such trade, on any conditions which he may see fit to impose.

(4) For appointing places and ports of entry, and warehousing and bonding ports, and respecting goods and vessels passing the canals, and respecting the horses, vehicles and personal baggage of travelers coming into Canada, or returning thereto, or passing through any portion thereof.

(5) For regulating or restricting the importation of spirits, wine, and malt liquors, or other goods requiring to be weighed, gauged, or tested for strength or quantity, and limiting or prescribing the kind and capacity of packages in which the same may be imported, and the conveyances by which and the ports or places at which the same may be landed and entered.

(6) For exempting from duty any flour or meal or other produce of any wheat or grain grown in and taken out of Canada into the United States to be ground, and brought back into Canada within two days after such wheat or grain has been so taken out to be ground, or any boards, planks, or scantling, the produce of any logs or timber grown in and taken out of Canada into the United States to be sawn, and brought back into Canada within seven days after such logs or timber were so taken out to be sawn.

(7) For regulating the quantity to be so taken out or brought in at any one time by any party, and the mode in which the claim to exemption shall be established and proved.

(8) For authorizing the appointment of warehouses, and regulating the security which shall be taken from warehouse keepers, the forms and conditions subject to which goods are to be warehoused, the mode of keeping goods in warehouse, and of removing such goods therefrom, and the amount of warehouse rent or license fees.

(9) For extending either by general regulation or by special order, the time for clearing warehoused goods, and for the transport of goods in bond from one port or place to another.

(10) For regulating the form in which transfers of goods in warehouse or bond from one party to another shall be entered.

(11) For exempting goods from duty as being the growth, produce, or manufacture of Newfoundland, if such exemption be provided for by any act relating to Customs, and for regulating the mode of proving such exemption.

(12) For transferring to the list of goods which may be imported into Canada free of duty, any or all articles (whether natural products or products of manufactures) used as materials in Canadian manufactures, and any such materials transferred to the free list by such order in council, shall be free of duty of customs for the time therein appointed for that purpose ; and for granting a drawback of the whole or part of the duty paid on articles which may have been used in Canadian manufactures ; or for granting a certain specific sum in lieu of any such drawback.

(13) For appointing the manner in which the proceeds of penalties and forfeitures shall be distributed.

(14) For authorizing the taking of such bonds and security as he deems advisable for the performance of any condition on which any remission or part remission of duty, indulgence or permission is granted to any party, or any other condition made with such party, in the matter relating to the customs or to trade or navigation ; and such bonds, and all bonds taken with the sanction of the minister of customs expressed either by general regulation or by special order, shall be valid in law, and upon breach of any of the conditions thereof, may be sued and proceeded upon in like manner as any other bond entered into under this act or any other law relating to the customs.

(15) For any other purpose for which by this act, or any other law relating to the customs or to trade and navigation, the governor in council is empowered to make orders or regulations ; it being hereby declared competent for him (if he deems it expedient) to make general regulations in any matter in which he may make a special order, and any such general regulation shall apply to each particular case within the extent and meaning thereof, as fully and effectively as if the same referred directly to each particular case within the intent and meaning thereof, and the officers, functionaries, and parties had been specially named therein.

231. And whereas it frequently happens that goods are conveyed, directly through the Canadian canals or otherwise by land or inland navigation, from one part of the frontier line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States to another, without any intention of unlading such goods in Canada, and that travelers in like manner pass through a portion of Canada, or come into it, with their carriages, horses, or other cattle drawing the same, and personal baggage, with the intention of forthwith returning to the United States, or having gone to the United States from Canada, return to it with such articles, and though the bringing of such goods and other articles into Canada is strictly an importation thereof, it may nevertheless be inexpedient that duties should be levied thereon; with regard to all such cases as aforesaid, the governor in council may, from time to time, and as occasion may require, make such regulations as to him seem meet, and may direct under what circumstances such duty shall be or shall not be paid, and on what conditions it shall be remitted or returned, and may cause such bonds or other security to be given, or such precautions to be taken at the expense of the importer (whether by placing officers of the customs on board any such vessel or carriage or otherwise) as to him seem meet; and on the refusal of the importer to comply with the regulations to be so made, the duty on the goods so imported shall forthwith become payable; and all and every animal, vehicle, or goods of any kind, brought into Canada by any traveler, exempted from duty under such regulations or otherwise, shall, if sold or offered for sale in Canada, provided the duties thereon have not been previously paid, be held to have been illegally imported, and shall be seized and forfeited, together with the harness or tackle employed therewith or in the conveyance thereof.

232. In any regulation made by the governor in council, under this act, any oath or declaration may be prescribed and required which the governor in council deems necessary to protect the revenue against fraud, and any person or officer may be authorized to administer the same; and by any such regulation, a declaration may be substituted for an oath in any case where an oath is required by this act.

233. The governor in council may by proclamation or order in council, at any time, and from time to time, prohibit the exportation or the carrying coastwise or by inland navigation of the following goods: Arms, ammunition, and gunpowder, military and naval stores, and any articles which the governor in council shall judge capable of being converted into or made useful in increasing the quantity of military or naval stores, provisions, or any sort of victual which may be used as food by man; and, if any goods so prohibited be exported, carried coastwise, or by inland navigation, or waterborne, or laden in any railway carriage, or other vehicle, for the purpose of being so exported or carried, they shall be seized and forfeited.

234. The governor in council may grant yearly coasting licenses to British vessels navigating the inland waters of Canada above Montreal, and may direct that a fee of fifty cents shall be payable for each such license, and that the master or person in charge of any vessel navigating the said waters, and not having a coasting license, shall, on entering any port in the Dominion with such vessel, pay a fee of fifty cents if such vessel is not over fifty tons burthen, and of one dollar if she is more than fifty tons burthen, to the collector on each entry, and a like fee of fifty cents, or one dollar, according to the burthen of the vessel, on each clearance of such vessel at any port: and such fees shall be payable accordingly before such vessel shall be entered or cleared; provided that the governor in council may reduce or readjust such fees, but may not increase them; and provided also, that vessels merely passing through any of the Canadian canals, without breaking bulk, shall not be liable to such fees.

235. All goods shipped or unshipped, imported or exported, carried or conveyed contrary to any regulation made by the governor in council, and all goods or vehicles and all vessels under the value of $400, with regard to which the requirements of any such regulations have not been complied with, shall be seized and forfeited, and if such vessel be of or over the value of $400, the master thereof shall, by such non-compliance, incur a penalty of $400, and the vessel may be detained until the said penalty is paid, or satisfactory security is given for the payment thereof; and any such forfeitures and penalties shall be recoverable and may be enforced in the same manner, before the same court and tribunal, as if incurred by the contravention of any direct provision of this act.

236. All general regulations made by the governor in council under this act, shall have effect from and after the day on which the same have been published in the Canada Gazette, or from and after such later day as may be appointed for the purpose in such regulations, and during such time as shall be therein expressed, or if no time be expressed for that purpose, then until the same are revoked or altered; and all such regulations may be revoked, varied, or altered by any subsequent regulation; and a copy of the Canada Gazette containing any such regulation shall be evidence of such regulation to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

237. Any copy of an order of the governor in council made in any special matter, and not being a general regulation, certified as a true copy by the clerk or assistant clerk of the Queens privy council for Canada, shall be evidence of such order to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

238. In every case where the person required to take any oath under any act or regulation relating to the customs, is one of the persons entitled by law to take a solemn affirmation instead of an oath in civil cases, such person may instead of the oath hereby required make a solemn affirmation to the same effect; and every person before whom any oath is, by any such act or regulation, required or allowed to be taken, or solemn affirmation to be made, shall have full power to administer the same; and the wilfully making any false statement in any such oath shall be perjury, and the wilfully making any false statement in such solemn affirmation shall be a misdemeanor punishable as perjury.

239. Whenever on the levying of any duty, or for any other purpose, it becomes necessary to determine the precise time of the importation or exportation of any goods, or of the arrival or departure of any vessel, such importation, if made by sea, coastwise, or by inland navigation in any decked vessel, shall be deemed to have been completed from the time the vessel in which such goods were imported came within the limits of the port at which they ought to be reported, and, if made by land or by inland navigation in any undecked vessel, then from the time such goods were brought within the limits of Canada; and the exportation of any goods shall be deemed to have been commenced from the time of the legal shipment of such goods for exportation, after due entry outwards, in any decked vessel, or from the time the goods were carried beyond the limits of Canada, if the exportation be by land or in any undecked vessel; and the time of the arrival of any vessel shall be deemed to be the time at which the report of such vessel was, is, or ought to have been made, and the time of the departure of any vessel to be the time of the last clearance of such vessel on the voyage for which she departed.

240. Although any duty of customs has been overpaid, or although after any duty of customs has been charged and paid, it appears or is judicially established that the same was charged under an erroneous construction of the law, no such overcharge shall be returned after the expiration of three years from the date of such payment, unless application for repayment has been previously made.

241. No refund of duty shall be allowed after the lapse of fourteen days from the time of entry, for any alleged misdescription of goods by the importer; and should any error of the kind be discovered by the importer while unpacking his goods, he shall immediately and without further interference with the goods, report the facts to the collector, in order that the same may be verified.

242. The governor in council may, under regulations to be made for that purpose, allow, on the exportation of goods which have been imported into Canada, and on which a duty of customs has been paid, a drawback equal to the duty so paid, with such deduction therefrom as may be provided in such regulations; and in cases to be mentioned in such regulations and subject to such provisions as may be therein made, such drawback or a specific sum in lieu thereof, may be allowed on duty-paid goods manufactured or wrought in Canada into goods exported there from as aforesaid; and the period within which such drawback may be allowed after the time the duty was paid shall be limited in such regulations.

243. All bonds and securities of what kind and nature soever authorized to be taken by any law relating to customs, trade, or navigation shall be taken to and for the use and benefit of Her Majesty, and such bonds shall be taken before the performance of any act or matter with regard to which the taking of any such bond or bonds is required.

244. All bonds, documents, and papers necessary for the transaction of any business at the respective custom houses or places or ports of entry in Canada, shall be in such form as the minister of customs shall from time to time direct.

245. Certificates and copies of official papers, certified under the hand and seal of any of the principal officers of the customs in the United Kingdom, or of any collector of colonial revenue in any of the British possessions in America or the West Indies, or other British possessions, or of any British consul or vice-consul in a foreign country, and certificates and copies of official papers made pursuant to this act or any act in force in Canada relating to the customs or revenue, shall be received as presumptive evidence in reference to any matter contained in this act or any act relating to the customs or on the trial of any suit in reference to any such matter.

246. Whenever any person makes any application to an officer of the customs to transact any business on behalf of any other person, such officer may require the person so applying to produce a written authority from the person on whose behalf the application is made, and in default of the production of such authority, may refuse to transact such business; and any act or thing done or performed by such agent shall be binding upon the person by or on behalf of whom the same is done or performed, to all intents and purposes, as fully as if the act or thing had been done or performed by the principal.

247. Any attorney and agent duly thereunto authorized by a written instrument, which he shall deliver to and leave with the collector, may, in his said quality, validly make any entry, or execute any bond or other instrument required by this act, and shall thereby bind his principal as effectually as if such principal had himself made such entry or executed such bond or other instrument, and may take the oath hereby required of a consignee or agent, if he be cognizant of the facts therein averred; and any instrument appointing such attorney and agent shall be valid if in the form prescribed by the minister of customs.

248. Any partner in an incorporated company, association, or copartnership of persons, or their attorney and agent authorized as aforesaid, may, under the name and style usually taken by such company, association, or copartnership, make any entry or execute any bond or other instrument required by this act, without mentioning the name or names of any of the members or of the other members of the company or association or partnership, and such entry, bond, or instrument shall nevertheless bind them as fully and effectually, and shall have the same effect in all respects as if the name of every such member or partner had been therein mentioned and he had signed the same, and (if it be a bond or other instrument under seal) as if he had thereunto affixed his seal and had delivered the same as his act and deed; and the seal thereunto affixed shall be held to be the seal of each and every such member or partner as aforesaid; and the provisions of this section shall apply to any instrument by which any company, association, or partnership of persons appoint an attorney or agent to act for them under the next preceding section. The person who, under this section, makes any entry or executes any bond or instrument on behalf of any company, association, or partnership, shall, under the name and style usually taken by them, write his own name with the word "by" or the words "by their attorney," or words to the like effect, as the case may be, thereunto prefixed.

No. 55.

Sir L. West to Mr. Bayard.

WASHINGTON, December 7, 1886.

SIR: With reference to your note of the 30th of July last, I am instructed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to communicate to you the inclosed copy of a dispatch, with its inclosures, from the officer administering the Government of Canada, respecting the action of the customs officer at Magdalen Islands, in the case of the United States fishing vessel Mascotte.

I have, &c.,

Acting Governor Lord A. G. Russell to Mr. Stanhope.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, October 30, 1886.

SIR: With reference to your telegraphic message of the 22d August, and to your dispatch of the 25th of August, marked Secret, transmitting copy of a dispatch from Her Majesty's chargé d'affaires at Washington, with a note from Mr. Bayard, complaining of the action of the customs officer at Magdalen Islands with reference to the American fishery schooner Mascotte. I have the honor to forward herewith a copy of an approved minute of the privy council of Canada, embodying a report of the minister of marine and fisheries on the subject.

I have, &c.,

A. G. RUSSELL,
General.

Report of a committee of the honorable the privy council, approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government in council for Canada on the 30th day of October, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had under consideration a telegram of the 22d August and a dispatch of the 25th August last, from the right honorable the secretary of state for the colonies, transmitting copy of a letter from Her Majesty's minister at Washington, inclosing a note from Mr. Secretary Bayard, complaining of the action of the customs officer at Magdalen Islands, with reference to the American fishing schooner Mascotte.

The minister of marine and fisheries, to whom the correspondence was referred, observes that Mr. Bayard, in his note to the British minister at Washington, says:

"I am also in possession of the affidavit of Alex. T. Vachem,* master of the American fishing schooner Mascotte, who entered Port Amherst, Magdalen Islands, and was there threatened by the customs official with seizure of his vessel if he attempted to obtain bait for fishing or take a pilot."

And from a report of the customs officer at Magdalen Islands, a copy of which, so far as it relates to the case in point, is hereto annexed, it appears that no grounds exist for the complaint made by the master of the Mascotte.

The minister states that Captain Vachem [McEachern] was served with a printed copy of the "warning," and was, in addition, informed by the collector that under the treaty of 1818 he had no right to buy bait or to ship men. He was not forbidden to take fish, but, on the contrary, the collector pointed out to him on the chart the places in which, by the convention of 1818, he, as a United States fisherman, had the right to inshore fishing, and one of the places so pointed out to him was the Magdalen Islands.

Notwithstanding the "warning" and the personal explanation of the collector, it appears that Captain Vachem [McEachern] did go up the country and attempt to hire men, and upon his return informed the collector that he could not get any. For this, clearly an illegal act, he was not interfered with by the collector.

The minister further observes that the convention of 1818, while it grants to United States fishermen the right of fishing in common with British subjects on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, does not confer upon them privileges of trading or of shipping men, and it was against possible acts of the latter kind, and not against fishing inshore, or seeking the rights of hospitality guaranteed under the treaty, that Captain Vachem [McEachern] was warned by the collector.

With reference to the remarks of the colonial secretary that "Her Majesty's Government would recommend that special instructions should be issued to the authorities at the places where the inshore fisheries has been granted by the convention of 1818 to the United States fishermen, calling their attention to the provisions of that convention, and warning them that no action contrary thereto may be taken in regard to United States fishing vessels," the minister states that the circular instructions issued to collectors of customs recite the articles of the convention of 1818, which grant to United States fishermen the right to take fish upon the shore of the Magdalen Islands, and of certain parts of the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland, which instructions the collector in question had received, and the import of which his report shows him to be familiar with.

In addition to this, the commander of the fishery protection steamer La Canadienne was ordered to visit Magdalen Islands, and explain fully to collectors there the extent of their powers.

The minister, in view of these instructions, printed and oral, does not deem it necessary to send further special orders.

The committee, concurring in the foregoing report, advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy hereof, if approved, to the right honorable the secretary of state for the colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for your excellency's approval.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

CUSTOM-HOUSE, MAGDALEN ISLANDS,
August 28, 1886.

SIR: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram respecting captain of the schooner Mascotte's report in reference to my having threatened him with seizure.

I replied, on receipt: "Mascotte information incorrect. Particulars per mail Tuesday."

* So in the British copy. The master's name is Alex. McEachern. (See Doc. No. 66, page 147.)

Particulars: On arrival of the captain I served him a "warning" personally; informed him he could not buy [(?) bait] or ship men.

I say this to all American fishermen. He tried, however, to hire; went up the country to hire, but could not hire a man.

I saw him and men go up, and on his return he told me he could not hire. I did not oppose him. He attended halibutting at Seven Islands, Dominion. I found this out since. I deny having said I would seize him if he obtained bait, himself or crew. I did not use the term, but it suits the captain or owners to use it, as it serves their meaning to make the report good.

I particularly showed him where, on the chart, he had the right to fish inshore, to wit, at the Magdalen Islands, Cape Ray, &c., as per treaty in my hands then.

I think I was very lenient with him and all American fishermen calling here, knowing their privileges.

I treated them so gentlemanly that I am surprised to hear he made the above inaccurate report to you.

Yours, &c.,

J. B. F. POINCHAUD,
Collector of Customs.

WASHINGTON, December 7, 1886.

SIR: With reference to your notes of the 9th and 18th of August last, I am instructed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to communicate to you the inclosed copy of a dispatch from the governor-general of Canada, with its inclosures, relative to the causes of complaint alleged by the masters of the United States fishing vessels Rattler, Shiloh, and Julia Ellen against Captain Quigley, of the Canadian cruiser Terror.

Acting Governor Lord A. G. Russell to Mr. Stanhope.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, October 29, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to forward herewith a copy of an approved minute of the privy council of Canada, furnishing the report asked for in your dispatch of the 1st September last, respecting the alleged unfriendly treatment of the United States fishing schooner Rattler in being required to report to the collector of customs at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, when seeking that harbor for shelter.

I beg also to draw your attention to the statement of the captain of the Terror, appended to the above order in council, which gives the facts concerning the cases of the Shiloh and Julia Ellen, a report as to which was requested in your dispatch of the 9th ultimo.

I have, &c.,

A. G. RUSSELL,
General.

[Inclosure 2 in No. 56.]

Report of a committee of the honorable the privy council for Canada, approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government in council on the 28th day of October, 1886.

The committee of the privy council have had their attention called by a cablegram from the right honorable Mr. Stanhope as to when he may expect answer to dispatch Rattler. The honorable Mr. Bowell, for the minister of marine and fisheries, to whom the papers were referred, submits, for the information of his excellency in council, that having considered the statements, copies of which are annexed, of Captain Quigley, of the Government cutter Terror, and of the collector of customs at Shelburne, with reference to the subject-matter of the dispatch, he is of opinion that these officers only performed their respective duties in the case of the Rattler, and that no just grounds exist for the complaint put forward in Mr. Bayard's dispatch of a violation of that hospitality which all civilized nations prescribe, or of a gross infraction of treaty stipulations.

The minister states that it does not appear at all certain, from the statements submitted, that this vessel put into Shelburne for a harbor in consequence of stress of weather. It does, however, appear that immediately upon the Rattler coming into port, Captain Quigley sent his chief officer to inform the captain of the Rattler that before sailing he must report his vessel at the custom-house, and left on board the Rattler a guard of two men to see that no supplies were landed or taken on board or men allowed to leave the vessel during her stay in Shelburne Harbor. That at midnight the guard fired a shot as a signal to the cruiser, and the first officer at once again proceeded to the Rattler, and found the sails being hoisted and the anchor weighed preparatory to leaving port. The captain being informed he must comply with the customs regulations and report his vessel, headed her up the harbor. That on the way up she became becalmed, when the first officer of the Terror took the captain of the Rattler in his boat and rowed him to the town, where the collector of customs received his report at the unusual hour of 6 a. m. rather than detain him, and the captain with his vessel proceeded to sea.

The minister observes that under section 25 of the customs act every vessel entering a port in Canada is required to immediately report at the customs, and the strict enforcement of this regulation as regards the United States fishing vessels has become a necessity in view of the illegal trade transactions carried on by the United States fishing vessels when entering Canadian ports under pretext of their treaty privileges.

That under these circumstances, a compliance with the customs act, involving only the report of a vessel, cannot be held to be a hardship or an unfriendly proceeding.

The minister submits, in view of the repeated groundless complaints of being harshly treated that have been made during the present season by captains of United States fishing vessels, and in almost every instance traceable to a refusal or neglect to observe the customs regulations, which, it is proper to state, are enforced upon other vessels as well as those of the United States, herewith a letter written by Captain Blake, of the United States fishing schooner Andrew Burnham, which appeared in the Boston (Massachusetts) Herald of the 7th instant, and also the editorial comments thereon made in a subsequent issue of the paper referred to.

The minister believes that the statements made by Captain Blake are strictly accurate, and as applied to other vessels are substantiated by the weekly boarding reports, received by the fishery department from the different captains engaged in the fisheries protection service. He, the minister, therefore respectfully submits that the reflections of Mr. Secretary Bayard, characterizing the treatment extended to the captain of the Rattler as unwarrantable and unfriendly, is not merited, in view of the facts as stated by Captain Quigley and Collector Attwood.

The committee concur in the report of the acting minister of marine and fisheries and advise that your excellency be moved to transmit a copy of this minute, if approved, to the right honorable Her Majesty's principal secretary of state for the colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for your excellency's approval.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

[Extract from the Boston Herald of October 9, 1886.]

A Fishing Captain's Experience.—The letter of Capt. Nathan F. Blake, of the fishing schooner Andrew Burnham, of this city, which we published on Wednesday, would apparently indicate that the Canadian officials have not been disposed to push the requirements of their law quite as vigorously as some of our fishermen have maintained. Captain Blake says he has experienced not the least trouble in his intercourse with the Canadian officials, but that as he treated them courteously, they, on their side, have reciprocated in like terms. There is, undoubtedly, a great deal of bitterness felt on both sides, and probably this bitterness has led both parties to be ungracious in their own conduct, and to exaggerate the wrongs they have endured, hardships frequently due to an unwillingness to observe the requirements of the law as these are now laid down. If all American fishing captains exhibited the same courtesy and moderation that Captain Blake has shown, we imagine that there would be very little trouble in arriving at an equitable and pleasing understanding with Canada.

Captain Quigley to Major Siltou.

SHELBURNE, September 30, 1886.

SIR: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th instant, requesting the circumstances connected with the boarding of the vessels Rattler, Julia and Ellen, and Shiloh.

In the case of the Rattler, she came into Shelburne Harbor on the evening of the 4th August at 6 o'clock. She being at some distance from where I was anchored, and it being too rough to send my boat so far, I fired a musket signal for her to round-to, which she did, and came to an anchor alongside of my vessel.

I then sent the chief officer to board her; he reported she put in for shelter. The captain was then told by the chief officer to report his vessel before he sailed, and that he must not let his men on shore, and that he would leave two men, who are always armed, on board to see that he did not otherwise break the law.

About midnight the captain hoisted his sails to leave port, thereby evading the customs law requiring him to report (for which I refer you to section 25 of the customs act), and disregarding my instructions.

The watchman fired a signal, calling my attention to his act, when I sent the chief officer to tell him he must lower his sails and report his vessel in the morning, otherwise he would likely have his vessel detained. He did so and sailed up in company with the chief officer at 4 o'clock a. m. On the way it fell calm, and the vessel anchored. The chief officer with my boat's crew rowed him up to the custom-house, where he reported at 6 a. m.; and returned, passing out to sea at 8 a. m. The captain was only asked to report his vessel as all others do, but was not disposed to do so.

In the case of the Julia and Ellen, she came into the harbor of Liverpool on the 9th of August, about 5 p. m. Being some distance from me, I fired a blank musket shot to round her to. When she anchored I boarded her, and the captain reported that he came in for water. I told him to report his vessel in the morning, as it was then after customs hours, and that he must not let his men ashore, and that I would leave two men on his vessel to see that my instructions were carried out, and to see that he did not otherwise break the law.

In the morning, at 8 o'clock, I called for the captain to go to the custom-house and told him his men could go on and take water while he was reporting, so that he would be all ready to sail when he returned, which they did, and he sailed at noon.

In the case of the Shiloh, she came into the harbor about 6 p. m. on the 9th of August, at Liverpool, and a signal was fired in her case the same as the others.

When she anchored I boarded her, and the captain reported she was in for water. I told him it was then too late to report at the customs till morning, and that he must not allow his crew on shore; also that I would leave two men on board to see that he did not otherwise break the law, and that my instructions were carried out.

In the morning I called for the captain, when taking the Julia and Ellen's captain ashore. When there I told him, as I did the other, that his men could go on taking water while he was reporting, so that he could sail when he returned, and not be delayed. This they did not do.

I have reason to know that it was not water this vessel came in for, as several of the crew lived there, and it was for the purpose of letting his men ashore, and not for taking water, that he put in. He afterwards emptied six barrels of water, stating that they were sour, and fooled all day filling them, delaying the time, that he might get his crew on shore. I refused to allow his crew on shore for any other purpose than to take water, after completing which, the weather being fine, I ordered him to sea in the evening.

The signals that were fired were not intended to make them come-to quickly, but as a signal for them to either round-to or show their ensign.

After the Shiloh sailed the harbor master informed me that she landed two men at the mouth of the harbor, 7 miles down, before she reported, and the evening she sailed she called after dark and picked them up.

In many cases it is an understood thing between the captains and crews to let the men ashore and then make out they have deserted. In all cases where a vessel puts in for shelter the captain reports, and the rest of his crew are not allowed ashore, as the vessel only put in for the privilege of shelter and for no other purpose.

When she puts in for water, after reporting, the captain is allowed to take his boats and the men he requires to procure water, and the rest remain on board, after which he is ordered to sea. When in for repairs he is allowed all the privileges he requires after reporting, and when ready is ordered to sea. In all cases, except when in for repairs, I place men on board to see that the law is not violated, as many of those vessels put into the harbor and make taking water and seeking shelter an excuse either to get men or land them, or to allow them a chance to see their friends, or to get goods ashore if the vessel is on her way from American ports to the fishing grounds, and have landed men here and at other ports on this coast in my absence.

In one case in this port, a vessel, finding I was in the harbor, let men take a boat and land, she going on her way home to the States. That is why I put men on these vessels, to keep them from breaking the law under cover of night. I might remark here that the collector of customs at Liverpool informed me that the Shiloh on her previous voyage remained in port five days after being ordered out, delaying for the purpose of letting the men be with their friends.

Now that they are not allowed all the privileges they once enjoyed, it is an outrage on my part.

These are the facts connected with those vessels which I reported to Captain Scott while in Halifax some time ago. I treat all courteously, but firmly, and find no trouble with any but a few who wish to evade the law.

I am, &c.,

THOMAS QUIGLEY,
Government Cruiser Terror.

Mr. Attwood to the Commissioner of Customs, Ottawa.

CUSTOM-HOUSE, SHELBURNE, September 6, 1886.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of the 4th instant relative to schooner Rattler, and I wired an answer this morning as requested.

On the morning of the 4th ultimo chief officer of Terror, accompanied by Capt. A. F. Cunningham, called at this office. Captain Cunningham reported his vessel inwards as follows, viz: Schooner Rattler, of Gloucester, 93 tons register, 16 men, from fishing banks, with 465 barrels mackerel, came in for shelter.

I was afterwards informed by the officer of cutter that they found the schooner the evening before at anchor off Sandy Point, 5 miles down the harbor. Two men from cutter were put on board, and the master required to report at customs in the morning. I was also informed that the master, Captain Cunningham, made an attempt to put to sea in the night by hoisting sails, weighing anchor, &c., but was stopped by officer from cutter.

I am, &c.,

W. H. ATTWOOD,
Collector.

[Extract from the Montreal Gazette of October 13, 1886.]

A Fisherman's Tale.—The following letter which appears in the Boston Herald conveys a different impression to many statements that have appeared on the subject:

"So much has been written and printed about the experiences of American fishermen in Canadian waters, and the indignities put on them, I wish you would open your columns and give your readers an insight into the other side of the story. I sailed from Boston for North Bay on the 16th June, not knowing just what the cutters would do or how the law would be interpreted. I neared the coast with fear and anxiety. The first land sighted was White Head, and immediately cries came from aloft, 'Cutter in sight, ahead.' I rushed to the deck, found the vessel, which proved to be the Howlet, commanded by Captain Lowry, nearing us rapidly. At time of sighting the cutter we were standing inshore. She hoisted her flags to let us know what she was, and we immediately 'about ship,' and put to sea to get out of her way, for fear we might be placed on the prize-list of the captures. We finally headed up for Port Mulgrave, in Canso, expecting to receive rough usage from the authorities, but, to our surprise, found Collector Murray a perfect gentleman, willing to assist me as far as he could without encroaching on the Canadian laws. From there we put in at Port Hawkesbury, and boarded the cutter Conrad, and asked the captain for instructions in regard to the three-mile limit, and what privileges, if any, we had. I was answered, in a courteous and hearty way, that he did not have them aboard, but would go ashore in a few moments and get me a printed copy of the regulations, which he did, and assured us that if we followed them we would be unmolested; that he was there to see that the law was not violated, but not to cause unnecessary annoyance. After receiving instructions from the captain, thanks to him, I went to the custom-house and entered my vessel, paying 25 cents. I found a very pleasant gentleman in the collector, who did all in his power to relieve my mind and make us comfortable. Souris was our next port of landing, where we also reported and were well treated. From there we went to Malpeque, where we found another gentleman in the collector. We met the cutter Howlet at Cassumpece, and had several interviews with the commander, Captain Lowry, whom I found a quiet, just, and gentlemanly officer. My vessel was one of the fleet ordered out of harbor by him. At that time it was as good a fish day as one could ask for, and the instructions were plain that at such times we had no right to remain in harbor. At no time is there much water to spare on the bar, and it is a common occurrence for vessels to ground in going in or out, and that some did touch was due to ignorance of the channel or carelessness on the part of captains. At the time the order was issued the weather was fair, but before all the fleet could work out through the channel, one of the sudden changes in weather, so much to be dreaded on such a coast, came, and the cutter rescinded the order and the fleet returned. It has been printed in a Boston paper that, owing to being forced to sea by the cutter's orders in bad weather, my schooner, the Andrew Burnham, fouled two Englishmen, and narrowly escaped serious damage. If true, it would look like a hardship. It was simply this: In getting under way, in a small and crowded space, finding I would not have room, I dropped our starboard anchor. That not holding, we let go the other, and it brought us up all right; not much in this to point to as an outrage or danger from stress of weather. I believe Captain Lowry to be a man who would carry out all the requirements of the Canadian laws, but I saw nothing in my experience in those waters that could be considered as being arbitrary, or taking a mean advantage of his official authority to annoy any one. Captain Lowry has been a master of vessels for twenty-five years, is a man of high reputation as a seaman, and as good a judge of whether the weather is favorable for a vessel to go to sea as any man who walks a deck, and when he ordered the fleet to sea he went himself, and I know he would not order a vessel to leave harbor if there was any danger of loss of life or property. We reported at Cassumpece, and were treated the same as at all other ports we touched at. If our vessels would attend to reporting at the custom-house, the same as they do in our ports, no trouble would be met with.

"If we had free fish it would give the Canadians some recompense for what our fishermen want, viz, the right to go anywhere and everywhere, use their harbors, ship men, get provisions, land and mend our nets, buy salt and barrels, and ship our catch home by rail or steamer without expense or annoyance, the same as we have heretofore.

"If we had had that privilege this year, myself and vessel would have been $5,000 better off this season, and all the fishermen in the bay would have been in the same boat with me. I do not say that I am too honest not to fish within the three-mile limit, nor do I believe there is a vessel in the fleet who would not, if the cutter was out of sight. I made two trips to the bay, both of which were very successful, and I lived up to the requirements of the law as well as I knew how, and did not find them obnoxious or to interfere with my success, and everywhere I went I was courteously treated by the officials, especially so by both the cutters. Should it be a bay year next season, I hope to meet them again. Those who openly preached that they would go where they pleased, do what they wanted to in spite of law or cutters, shipped men, smuggled, or openly fished inside the limit, and indulged in the satisfaction of damning the cutter, the captain, the Government, and everything else when they knew they could do it with impunity, and that the men they were talking to could not resent it by word or blow, were looked after sharp, and were not extended the courtesy that was shown so many of us.

"In the interest of fair play, I could not help writing you and asking you to give this to your readers, if not taking up too much of your valuable space.

"Very respectfully,

"NATHAN F. BLAKE,

"Captain Schooner Andrew Burnham, of Boston.

WASHINGTON, December 7, 1886.

SIR: I am instructed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to communicate to you the inclosed copy of a dispatch, with its inclosures, from the officer administering the Government of Canada, expressing the regret of the Dominion Government at the action of the captain of the Canadian cutter Terror in lowering the United States flag from the United States fishing schooner Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, Mass., while that vessel was under detention at Shelburne, Nova Scotia.

Acting Governor Lord A. G. Russell to Mr. Stanhope.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, October 27, 1886.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of an approved minute of the privy council of Canada, expressing the regret of my Government at the action of the captain of the Canadian cutter Terror in lowering the United States flag from the United States fishing schooner Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, Mass., while that vessel was under detention at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, by the collector of customs at that port for an infraction of the customs regulations.

I have communicated a copy of this order in council to Her Majesty's minister at Washington.

I have, &c.,

A. G. RUSSELL,
General.

[Inclosure 2 in No. 57.]

Report of a committee of the honorable the privy council for Canada, approved by his excellency the administrator of the Government in council on the 26th October, 1886.

On a report, dated the 14th October, 1886, from the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, for the minister of marine and fisheries, stating that on Monday, the 11th October instant, the United States fishing schooner Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, Mass., was under detention at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, by the collector of customs at that port for an infraction of the customs regulations; that while so detained, and under the surveillance of the Canadian Government cutter Terror, the captain of the Marion Grimes hoisted the United States flag.

The minister further states that it appears that Captain Quigley, of the Terror, considered such act as an intimation that there was an intention to rescue the vessel, and requested Captain Landry to take the flag down. This request was complied with. An hour later, however, the flag was again hoisted, and on Captain Landry being asked if his vessel had been released, and replying that she had not, Captain Quigley again requested that the flag be lowered. This was refused, when Captain Quigley himself lowered the flag, acting under the belief that while the Marion Grimes was in possession of the customs authorities, and until her case had been adjudicated upon, the vessel had no right to fly the United States flag.

The minister regrets that he should have acted with undue zeal, although Captain Quigley may have been technically within his right while the vessel was in the custody of the law.

The committee advise that your excellency be moved to forward a copy of this minute, if approved, to the right honorable the secretary of state for the colonies, and to Her Majesty's minister at Washington, expressing the regret of the Canadian Government at the occurrence.

All of which is respectfully submitted for your excellency's approval.

JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

UNITED STATES CONSULATE-GENERAL,

Halifax, May 15, 1886.

SIR: As instructed by message from the honorable Secretary of State to personally report, fully and carefully, all the facts and proceedings connected with the seizure of the American schooner David J. Adams by armed men from the Canadian steamship Lansdowne, I left Halifax for St. John May 10 as soon after receiving the message as the means of travel would permit. After leaving I learned that the vessel had been taken back to Digby, where I proceeded, and found her anchored close to the Lansdowne in Digby Harbor. Shortly after my arrival Captain Scott, of the Lansdowne, formally transferred the custody of the vessel to the collector of the port of Digby to be held on a charge, as the collector informed me, of violating the customs act of 1883, the penalty being $400. He said if this sum was paid and the vessel not claimed by the minister of fisheries he would release her. On the following morning, in order to get at the facts in connection with the seizure, I addressed a note to the collector asking him to furnish me a copy of the charges against the vessel. He replied verbally that the vessel passed out of his possession, and was again in Captain Scott's custody. I then addressed Captain Scott a communication asking him to state in writing, fully and specifically, with as little delay as possible, why he detained this vessel. (A copy marked A attached.)

Captain Scott replied by referring me to the deputy minister of fisheries in Ottawa. (Reply attached marked B.) The refusal of Captain Scott to give this information, which I had a right to have, even without asking for it, was not only discourteous to me, but an indignity to the nation whose vessel he seized. The next morning I heard that a process in an admiralty suit against the schooner was served on the vessel. I went on board and found that the process was served by affixing to the mast with nails what I supposed to be a warrant or summons; no part of which, except the indorsement, was visible. I requested permission from the person in charge of the schooner to take down this process so that I might read, and, if possible, ascertain from its contents what offenses were charged against this vessel. My request was refused; and right here I may remark that it seems a strange course of procedure to serve a party with a process to appear and defend a suit, and then prohibit that party and those interested in his protection and defense in respect to that suit, from seeing or inspecting the process thus served. The frequent changes as to the custodians of this vessel, the mysterious, secret, and unexplained movements of these officials, and their refusal to set forth any of the alleged offenses charged to the vessel, was most aggravating.

All the parties to the controversy were on the ground, and want of knowledge could not be urged as a reason why this information was withheld. Not until after my arrival in Halifax, on the 14th of May, did I receive the slightest intimation of the charge against the vessel, but on the contrary every effort was made to conceal it. All I could do under the circumstances was to serve Captain Scott, and the person in charge of the schooner, with protest (marked C). Captain Scott arrived in Halifax on the 12th. On the 14th he sent me a second reply (marked D), in which he stated that the vessel was seized for a violation of the imperial statutes in entering a port for other than a legal purpose.

The facts in this case, as I obtained them from Captain Kinney, are as follows:

The David J. Adams entered Digby Bay on Wednesday evening, May 5, 1886. Her captain purchased from a fisherman named Ellis, residing at the entrance of Digby Bay, nearly five barrels of bait. On Thursday he purchased from several fishermen, whose names he did not know, nearly seven barrels of bait. He then brought his vessel to anchor. It appears that this man Ellis had promised to sell this bait to a Canadian captain named Sproule for 75 cents per barrel, but getting $1.25 from the captain of the David J. Adams, sold it to him. The Canadian captain reported the sale to the collector, who telegraphed for the Lansdowne which arrived during the night. On Friday morning the David J. Adams in sailing out of the basin, was hailed by a boat from the Lansdowne and came alongside, the commander of which asked the name of the vessel and that of her owner, where she was from, and her business in the basin. Being answered by the captain in his own way, the boat returned to the Lansdowne without ordering the vessel to sea. The schooner continued her course, but ran aground, and while in this position she was boarded a second time. The officer in charge stated that he had orders from Captain Scott to search the vessel, and immediately proceeded to carry out the order, and found some herring. The captain was asked how old they were. He replied about ten days. The boat again returned to the Lansdowne and brought to the schooner a new officer, who examined the vessel and returned to the Lansdowne. The fourth visit to the vessel brought Captain Scott, who, in the name of the Queen, seized her. On Saturday morning the vessel was taken to St. John, N. B., and on Sunday she was returned to Digby, the place of capture.

A suit has been begun in the supreme court of Nova Scotia at Halifax in the name of the Queen against Alden Kinney, master, in which the following claim is made, namely, for £200 sterling, equal to $973.33, for violation of a certain convention between his late Majesty, George the Third, King of Great Britain and Ireland, of the one part, and the United States of America of the other part, made on the 20th day of October, A. D. 1818, and for violation of the act of Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty, George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being chapter 38 of the acts of the said last Parliament, and passed in said year. In addition to the above, an action has been instituted in the vice-admiralty court at Halifax to have the vessel and cargo forfeited. The charges are (1) that she violated the treaty of 1818; (2) that she violated the provisions of the act 59, George the Third; (3) that she violated the provisions of chapter 61 of the Canadian acts of 1870, and chapter 23 of the acts of Canada, 1871. Also a suit was instituted later for violating the customs act of Canada for 1883. Under this act it is charged that the vessel did not report her arrival at Digby to the customs officer. Digby is a fishing village without a corporation, and, so far as I could learn, and I made special inquiry, the harbor is not defined, and the practice has been that only vessels having business at Digby entered at the custom-house. The records of the office will show, and the collector admitted, that during his forty years' service fishermen went in and out the bay at pleasure and were never required to report. It is very plain that this suit was not instituted to vindicate the law, as the vessel was not apprehended on that charge, but instituted to annoy and harass our fishermen. The other suits are for violating the treaty of 1818, and statutes made under it. I confidently report that the only charge against the vessel that can be sustained, or that she is guilty of, is purchasing fish in British waters.

My conclusions are therefore as follows:

- (1) That the David J. Adams was not fishing, had not fished, and was not preparing to fish in British waters.
- (2) She did not conceal her name nor attempt to conceal her name.
- (3) She did not report to the custom-house at Digby, because she did not enter the harbor of Digby, but only Digby Basin.
- (4) She purchased twelve barrels of fish for bait in British waters for deep-sea fishing, and not to fish in such waters.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

M. H. PHELAN,
Consul-General.

Deposition of the captain and crew of the David J. Adams.

In the matter of the seizure of the United States schooner David J. Adams, of Gloucester, now held by the Dominion of Canada.

We, the captain and crew of the schooner David J. Adams, of Gloucester, Mass., in the United States of America, depose and saith under oath, as follows: I, Captain Alden Kinney; I am 25 years old; occupation, seaman; citizen of the United States. What is your present occupation? Master of the David J. Adams. What is her tonnage? Sixty-six register. Owned by Capt. Jesse Lewis. We left Gloucester, Mass., for Eastport, Me., for bait on or about the 10th day of April last. We arrived at Eastport, Me., on the following Monday, April 12, and got bait and proceeded to the Banks. We fished for several days, say about twelve days, and set out for and returned to Eastport, Me., that being a central station as a general thing for fishermen's headquarters at this season of the year for bait and other supplies. We again left Eastport for the Banks and put into Digby Basin about 11 o'clock on the 6th day of May, and we anchored under Lower Granville. We got under way the next morning at about 5 o'clock, bound out. The reason we could not get out was on account of the wind dying away, and we drifted back with the tide. We sailed up off of Digby Town and tacked, anchoring off of or about Bear Island. This was about 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Not being satisfied with the place we layed we shifted further up the basin, say about two miles further. We again anchored there until 5 o'clock, got under way, and shifted to another part of the basin and anchored until Friday morning about 4 o'clock. We then got under way and started to go out of the basin into the Bay of Fundy. Shortly after we got under way a boat from the steamer lying off the harbor, which proved to be the steamer Lansdowne, of the Dominion service, was seen coming toward us and we continued our course as we were before we saw the boat coming. The boat caught up to us when we were about a mile and a half from our recent anchorage of the night. The officer on board the boat asked us where we hailed from, and the vessel's name and tonnage; captain's name and owner's, and what we were there for, and if we had any bait in. Receiving my reply (captain's) the boat rowed away. We still continued on our course until we got into St. George's Channel (they called), and grounded at low water, and there remained aground for about two hours, and after floating the tide was too strong for us to proceed out of the basin. We were at that time again boarded by the same boat and officer of the Lansdowne, who searched our vessel. The officer, on boarding with armed men, said that he was ordered by Captain Scott to search the vessel, which they did by coming on board and examining the hold of the vessel and different parts of the deck. They stated to Captain Kinney that some herring was below in the hold, and we answered that they were ten days old. The officer of Lansdowne and boat returned to their ship. Afterwards the Lansdowne boat boarded us for the third time, and brought another officer, whom I understand was Captain Dakin, who also entered hold and examined the herring, and then returned to their vessel. Again for the fourth time the same officers and crew of the Lansdowne boarded us, who informed us that we would be held here in Digby for some time. We were ordered by the same officer to bring our vessel to Digby and to anchor as near as possible to the steamer Lansdowne, which order we obeyed. This was the morning of May 7. The same boat, after being towed up to the town by us, cast off from us also; the officer and crew in charge went on board his vessel. Soon after an officer boarded us and ordered us to lower our sails and await further orders. About four hours afterward Captain Scott ordered the hatches removed, and he examined the cargo, and returning to the deck of our vessel Captain Scott said he had seized us in the Queen's name. Then Captain Scott notified us that we might go on shore to the American consul, and said he would at once return with Lansdowne and the schooner David J. Adams to St. John, N. B. We remained on board our own vessel during that night under charge of five armed men of the Lansdowne's crew. Saturday morning early all of us and our captain, with the exception of three of our men, were ordered on board the Lansdowne. We were then taken to St. John and went on shore, according to the order of the night previous to go on shore. Our captain took the papers and articles belonging to the David J. Adams with him on shore. Our vessel was towed to St. John at the same time and fastened to the Lansdowne with chain cable, both lying at the wharf at St. John. The vessel was there on Sunday morning, when I was informed by an officer of the Lansdowne that they were going to remove her to Digby. I was told that I could return to Digby in the vessel if I chose, or otherwise take out my personal effects and that of the crew. The Lansdowne and our vessel then left St. John. On Wednesday, the 12th day of May, on our arrival in Digby, Captain Scott came to me as captain of the D. J. Adams and demanded her register of said vessel before I had landed from the steamboat, which I refused to give up.

Question. Captain, there is a charge that you concealed the name of your vessel by tacking canvas or by other means of covering the name on the stern of the vessel?

Captain Kinney answers that he denies the charge; it is not true. I never concealed nor attempted to conceal the name of the vessel.

Did you ever fish or attempt to fish in British waters during this season?

Captain answers that he never did; that he never saw the land from where I fished. Deep-sea fishing is the only fishing that we are engaged.

Did you ever buy bait or attempt to buy bait for the purpose of fishing in British waters?

No, sir; I did not.

Did you come into Digby Basin to buy bait for the purpose of fishing in British waters during this season?

Answer. No, I did not.

Did you purchase bait or attempt to purchase bait while at anchor above Bear River?

Answer. No, I did not.

ALDEN KINNEY,
Master.

We, the undersigned seamen or crew of the schooner David J. Adams, of Gloucester, Mass., in the United States of America, being present and having heard the above testimony of Capt. Alden Kinney, and we all being under oath, do certify that the same is true to our best knowledge and belief and we know no other fact bearing on or in connection with this case.

SIR: I have the honor to inclose herewith the copy of a note which I have this day addressed to the Earl of Rosebery, Her Majesty's principal secretary of state for foreign affairs, on the subject of the Canadian fisheries, embodying the substance of the views which, under instructions from the Department of State, I have already presented to his lordship orally in various interviews, and of the arguments adduced in support of the same.

I have, &c.,

E. J. PHELPS.

[Inclosure with Mr. Phelps's No. 293.]

Mr. Phelps to Lord Rosebery.

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES,
London, June 2, 1886.

MY LORD: Since the conversation I had the honor to hold with your lordship, on the morning of the 29th ultimo, I have received from my Government a copy of the report of the consul-general of the United States at Halifax, giving full details and depositions relative to the seizure of the David J. Adams, and the correspondence between the consul-general and the colonial authorities in reference thereto.

The report of the consul-general and the evidence annexed to it appear fully to sustain the point submitted to your lordship in the interview above referred to, touching the seizure of this vessel by the Canadian officials.

I do not understand it to be claimed by the Canadian authorities that the vessel seized had been engaged or was intending to engage in fishing within any limit prohibited by the treaty of 1818.

The occupation of the vessel was exclusively deep-sea fishing, a business in which it had a perfect right to be employed. The ground upon which the capture was made was that the master of the vessel had purchased of an inhabitant of Nova Scotia, near the port of Digby, in that province, a day or two before, a small quantity of bait to be used in fishing in the deep sea, outside the three-mile limit.

The question presented is whether, under the terms of the treaty and the construction placed upon them in practice for many years by the British Government, and in view of the existing relations between the United States and Great Britain, that transaction affords a sufficient reason for making such a seizure and for proceeding under it to the confiscation of the vessel and its contents.

I am not unaware that the Canadian authorities, conscious, apparently, that the affirmative of this proposition could not be maintained, deemed it advisable to supplement it with a charge against the vessel of a violation of the Canadian customs act of 1883, in not reporting her arrival at Digby to the customs officer. But this charge is not the one on which the vessel was seized, or which must now be principally relied on for its condemnation, and standing alone could hardly, even if well founded, be the source of any serious controversy. It would be at most, under the circumstances, only an accidental and purely technical breach of a custom-house regulation, by which no harm was intended, and from which no harm came, and would in ordinary cases be easily condoned by an apology, and perhaps the payment of costs.

But trivial as it is, this charge does not appear to be well founded in point of fact. Digby is a small fishing settlement and its harbor not defined. The vessel had moved about and anchored in the outer part of the harbor, having no business at, or communication with Digby, and no reason for reporting to the officer of customs. It appears by the report of the consul-general to be conceded by the customs authorities there that fishing vessels have for forty years been accustomed to go in and out of the bay at pleasure, and have never been required to send ashore and report when they had no business with the port, and made no landing; and that no seizure had ever before been made or claimed against them for so doing.

Can it be reasonably insisted under these circumstances that by the sudden adoption, without, notice, of a new rule, a vessel of a friendly nation should be seized and forfeited for doing what all similar vessels had for so long a period been allowed to do without question?

It is sufficiently evident that the claim of a violation of the customs act was an afterthought, brought forward to give whatever added strength it might to the principal claim on which the seizure had been made.

Recurring, then, to the only real question in the case, whether the vessel is to be forfeited for purchasing bait of an inhabitant of Nova Scotia, to be used in lawful fishing, it may be readily admitted that if the language of the treaty of 1818 is to be interpreted literally, rather than according to its spirit and plain intent, a vessel engaged in fishing would be prohibited from entering a Canadian port "for any purpose whatever" except to obtain wood or water, to repair damages, or to seek shelter. Whether it would be liable to the extreme penalty of confiscation for a breach of this prohibition in a trifling and harmless instance might be quite another question.

Such a literal construction is best refuted by considering its preposterous consequences. If a vessel enters a port to post a letter, or send a telegram, or buy a newspaper, to obtain a physician in case of illness, or a surgeon in case of accident, to land or bring off a passenger, or even to lend assistance to the inhabitants in fire, flood, or pestilence, it would, upon this construction, be held to violate the treaty stipulations maintained between two enlightened maritime and most friendly nations, whose ports are freely open to each other in all other place and under all other circumstances.

If a vessel is not engaged in fishing she may enter all ports; but if employed in fishing, not denied to be lawful, she is excluded, though on the most innocent errand. She may buy water, but not food or medicine; wood, but not coal. She may repair rigging, but not purchase a new rope, though the inhabitants are desirous to sell it. If she even entered the port (having no other business) to report herself to the custom-house, as the vessel in question is now seized for not doing, she would be equally within the interdiction of the treaty. If it be said these are extreme instances of violation of the treaty not likely to be insisted on, I reply that no one of them is more extreme than the one relied upon in this case.

I am persuaded that your lordship will, upon reflection, concur with me that an intention so narrow, and in its result so unreasonable and so unfair, is not to be attributed to the high contracting parties who entered into this treaty.

It seems to me clear that the treaty must be construed in accordance with those ordinary and well-settled rules applicable to all written instruments, which without such salutary assistance must constantly fail of their purpose. By these rules the letter often gives way to the intent, or rather is only used to ascertain the intent.

The whole document will be taken together, and will be considered in connection with the attendant circumstances, the situation of the parties, and the object in view, and thus the literal meaning of an isolated clause is often shown not to be the meaning really understood or intended.

Upon these principles of construction the meaning of the clause in question does not seem doubtful. It is a treaty of friendship and not of hostility. Its object was to define and protect the relative rights of the people of the two countries in these fisheries, not to establish a system of non-intercourse or the means of mutual and unnecessary annoyance. It should be judged in view of the general rules of international comity and of maritime intercourse and usage, and its restrictions considered in the light of the purposes they were designed to serve.

Thus regarded it appears to me clear that the words "for no other purpose whatever," as employed in the treaty, mean no other purposes inconsistent with the provisions of the treaty, or prejudicial to the interests of the provinces or their inhabitants, and were not intended to prevent the entry of American fishing vessels into Canadian ports for innocent and mutually beneficial purposes, or unnecessarily to restrict the free and friendly intercourse customary between all civilized maritime nations, and especially between the United States and Great Britain. Such, I cannot but believe, is the construction that would be placed upon this treaty by any enlightened court of justice.

But even were it conceded that if the treaty was a private contract, instead of an international one, a court in dealing with an action upon it might find itself hampered by the letter from giving effect to the intent, that would not be decisive of the present case.

The interpretation of treaties between nations in their intercourse with each other proceeds upon broader and higher considerations. The question is not what is the technical effect of words, but what is the construction most consonant to the dignity, the just interests, and the friendly relations of the sovereign powers. I submit to your lordship that a construction so harsh, so unfriendly, so unnecessary, and so irritating as that set up by the Canadian authorities is not such as Her Majesty's Government has been accustomed either to accord or to submit to. It would find no precedent in the history of British diplomacy, and no provocation in any action or assertion of the Government of the United States.

These views derive great, if not conclusive, force from the action of the British Parliament on the subject, adopted very soon after the treaty of 1818 took effect, and continued without change to the present time.

An act of Parliament (59 George III, chap. 38) was passed June 14, 1819, to provide for carrying into effect the provisions of the treaty. After reciting the terms of the treaty, it enacts (in substance) that it shall be lawful for His Majesty by orders in council to make such regulations and to give such directions, orders, and instructions to the governor of Newfoundland or to any officer or officers in that station, or to any other persons "as shall or may be from time to time deemed proper and necessary for the carrying into effect the purposes of said convention with relation to the taking, drying, and curing of fish by inhabitants of the United States of America, in common with British subjects within the limits set forth in the aforesaid convention."

It further enacts that any foreign vessel engaged in fishing, or preparing to fish, within three marine miles of the coast (not authorized to do so by treaty) shall be seized or forfeited upon prosecution in the proper court.

It further provides as follows:

"That it shall and may be lawful for any fisherman of the said United States to enter into any such bays or harbors of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America as are last mentioned for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein and of purchasing wood and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever, subject nevertheless to such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent such fishermen of the aid United States from taking, drying, or curing fish in the said bays or harbors, or in any other manner whatever abusing the said privileges by the said treaty and this act reserved to them, and as shall for that purpose be imposed by an order or orders to be from time to time made by His Majesty in council under the authority of this act, and by any regulations which shall be issued by the governor or person exercising the office of governor in any such parts of His Majesty's dominions in America, under or in pursuance of any such an order in council as aforesaid."

It further provides as follows:

"That if any person or persons upon requisition made by the governor of Newfoundland, or the person exercising the office of governor, or by any governor or person exercising the office of governor, in any other parts of His Majesty's dominions in America as aforesaid, or by any officer or officers acting under such governor, or person exercising the office of governor, in the execution of any orders or instructions from His Majesty in council, shall refuse to depart from such bays or harbors; or if any person or persons shall refuse or neglect to conform to any regulations or directions which shall be made or given for the execution of any of the purposes of this act; every such person so refusing or otherwise offending against this act shall forfeit the sum of £200, to be recovered, &c."

It will be perceived from these extracts, and still more clearly from a perusal of the entire act, that while reciting the language of the treaty in respect to the purposes for which American fishermen may enter British ports, it provides no forfeiture or penalty for any such entry unless accompanied either (1) by fishing or preparing to fish within the prohibited limits, or (2) by the infringement of restrictions that may be imposed by orders in council to prevent such fishing or the drying or curing of fish, or the abuse of privileges reserved by the treaty, or (3) by a refusal to depart from the bays or harbors upon proper requisition.

It thus plainly appears that it was not the intention of Parliament, nor its understanding of the treaty, that any other entry by an American fishing vessel into a British port should be regarded as an infraction of its provisions, or as affording the basis of proceedings against it.

No other act of Parliament for the carrying out of this treaty has ever been passed. It is unnecessary to point out that it is not in the power of the Canadian Parliament to enlarge or alter the provisions of the act of the Imperial Parliament, or to give to the treaty either a construction or a legal effect not warranted by that act.

But until the effort which I am informed is now in progress in the Canadian Parliament for the passage of a new act on the subject, introduced since the seizures under consideration, I do not understand that any statute has ever been enacted in that Parliament which attempts to give any different construction of effect to the treaty from that given by the act of 59 George III.

The only provincial statutes which, in the proceedings against the David J. Adams, that vessel has thus far been charged with infringing are the colonial acts of 1868, 1870, and 1883. It is therefore fair to presume that there are no other colonial acts applicable to the case, and I know of none.

The act of 1868, among other provisions not material to this discussion, provides for a forfeiture of foreign vessels "found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing, in British waters within three marine miles of the coast," and also provides a penalty of $400 against a master of a foreign vessel within the harbor who shall fail to answer questions put in an examination by the authorities. No other act is by this statute declared to be illegal; and no other penalty or forfeiture is provided for.

The very extraordinary provisions in this statute for facilitating forfeitures and embarrassing defense, or appeal from them, not material to the present case, would, on a proper occasion, deserve very serious attention.

The act of 1883 has no application to the case, except upon the point of the omission of the vessel to report to the customs officer already considered.

It results, therefore, that at the time of the seizure of the David J. Adams and other vessels there was no act whatever, either of the British or colonial parliaments, which made the purchase of bait by those vessels illegal, or provided for any forfeiture, penalty, or proceedings against them for such a transaction, and even if such purchase could be regarded as a violation of that clause of the treaty which is relied on, no law existed under which the seizure could be justified. It will not be contended that custom-house authorities or colonial courts can seize and condemn vessels for a breach of the stipulations of a treaty when no legislation exists which authorizes them to take cognizance of the subject, or invests them with any jurisdiction in the premises. Of this obvious conclusion the Canadian authorities seem to be quite aware. I am informed that since the seizures they have pressed or are pressing through the Canadian parliament in much haste an act which is designed for the first time in the history of the legislation under this treaty to make the facts upon which the American vessels have been seized illegal, and to authorize proceedings against them therefor.

What the effect of such an act will be in enlarging the provisions of an existing treaty between the United States and Great Britain need not be considered here. The question under discussion depends upon the treaty and upon such legislation warranted by the treaty as existed when the seizures took place.

The practical construction given to the treaty down to the present time has been in entire accord with the conclusions thus deduced from the act of Parliament. The British Government has repeatedly refused to allow interference with American fishing vessels, unless for illegal fishing, and has given explicit orders to the contrary.

On the 26th of May, 1870, Mr. Thornton, the British minister at Washington, communicated officially to the Secretary of State of the United States copies of the orders addressed by the British Admiralty to Admiral Wellesley, commanding Her Majesty's naval forces on the North American station, and of a letter from the colonial department to the foreign office, in order that the Secretary might "see the nature of the instructions to be given to Her Majesty's and the Canadian officers employed in maintaining order at the fisheries in the neighborhood of the coasts of Canada." Among the documents thus transmitted is a letter from the foreign office to the secretary of the Admiralty, in which the following language is contained:

"The Canadian Government has recently determined, with the concurrence of Her Majesty's ministers, to increase the stringency of the existing practice of dispensing with the warnings hitherto given, and seizing at once any vessel detected in violating the law.

"In view of this change and of the questions to which it may give rise, I am directed by Lord Granville to request that you will move their lordships to instruct the officers of Her Majesty's ships employed in the protection of the fisheries that they are not to seize any vessel unless it is evident and can be clearly proved that the offense of fishing has been committed and the vessel itself captured within three miles of land."

In the letter from the lords of the Admiralty to Vice-Admiral Wellesley of May 5, 1870, in accordance with the foregoing request, and transmitting the letter above quoted from, there occurs the following language:

"My lords desire me to remind you of the extreme importance of commanding officers of the ships selected to protect the fisheries exercising the utmost discretion in carrying out their instructions, paying special attention to Lord Granville's observation that no vessel should be seized unless it is evident and can be clearly proved that the offense of fishing has been committed, and that the vessel is captured within three miles of land."

Lord Granville, in transmitting to Sir John Young the aforesaid instructions, makes use of the following language:

"Her Majesty's Government do not doubt that your ministers will agree with them as to the propriety of these instructions, and will give corresponding instructions to the vessels employed by them."

These instructions were again officially stated by the British minister at Washington to the Secretary of State of the United States in a letter dated June 11, 1870.

Again, in February, 1871, Lord Kimberly, colonial secretary, wrote to the governor-general of Canada as follows:

"The exclusion of American fishermen from resorting to Canadian ports, except for the purpose of shelter, and of repairing damages therein, purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, might be warranted by the letter of the treaty of 1818, and by the terms of the imperial act 59 George III, chap. 38, but Her Majesty's Government feel bound to state that it seems to them an extreme measure, inconsistent with the general policy of the Empire, and they are disposed to concede this point to the United States Government under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent smuggling, and to guard against any substantial invasion of the exclusive rights of fishing which may be reserved to British subjects."

And in a subsequent letter from the same source to the governor-general, the following language is used:

"I think it right, however, to add that the responsibility of determining what is the true construction of a treaty made by Her Majesty with any foreign power must remain with Her Majesty's Government, and that the degree to which this country would make itself a party to the strict enforcement of the treaty rights may depend not only on the literal construction of the treaty, but on the moderation and reasonableness with which these rights are asserted."

I am not aware that any modification of these instructions or any different rule from that therein contained has ever been adopted or sanctioned by Her Majesty's Government.

Judicial authority upon this question is to the same effect. That the purchase of bait by American fishermen in the provincial ports has been a common practice is well known. But in no case, so far as I can ascertain, has a seizure of an American vessel ever been enforced on the ground of the purchase of bait, or of any other supplies. On the hearing before the Halifax Fisheries Commission in 1877 this question was discussed, and no case could be produced of any such condemnation. Vessels shown to have been condemned were in all cases adjudged guilty, either of fishing, or preparing to fish, within the prohibited limit. And in the case of the White Fawn, tried in the admiralty court of New Brunswick before Judge Hazen in 1870, I understand it to have been distinctly held that the purchase of bait, unless proved to have been in preparation for illegal fishing, was not a violation of the treaty, nor of any existing law, and afforded no ground for proceedings against the vessel.

But even were it possible to justify on the part of the Canadian authorities the adoption of a construction of the treaty entirely different from that which has always heretofore prevailed, and to declare those acts criminal which have hitherto been regarded as innocent, upon obvious grounds of reason and justice, and upon common principles of comity to the United States Government, previous notice should have been given to it or to the American fishermen of the new and stringent instructions it was intended to enforce.

If it was the intention of Her Majesty's Government to recall the instructions which I have shown had been previously and so explicitly given relative to the interference with American vessels, surely notice should have been given accordingly.

The United States have just reason to complain, even if these restrictions could be justified by the treaty or by the acts of Parliament passed to carry it into effect, that they should be enforced in so harsh and unfriendly a manner without notice to the Government of the change of policy, or to the fishermen of the new danger to which they were thus exposed.

In any view, therefore, which it seems to me can be taken of this question, I feel justified in pronouncing the action of the Canadian authorities in seizing and still retaining the David J. Adams to be not only unfriendly and discourteous, but altogether unwarrantable.

The seizure was much aggravated by the manner in which it was carried into effect. It appears that four several visitations and searches of the vessel were made by boats from the Canadian steamer Lansdowne, in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia. The Adams was finally taken into custody and carried out of the Province of Nova Scotia, across the Bay of Fundy, and into the port of St. John, New Brunswick, and without explanation or hearing, on the following Monday, May 10, taken back by an armed crew to Digby, Nova Scotia. That, in Digby, the paper alleged to be the legal precept for the capture and detention of the vessel was nailed to her mast in such manner as to prevent its contents being read, and the request of the captain of the David J. Adams and of the United States consul-general to be allowed to detach the writ from the mast for the purpose of learning its contents was positively refused by the provincial official in charge. Nor was the United States consul-general able to learn from the commander of the Lansdowne the nature of the complaint against the vessel, and his respectful application to that effect was fruitless.

From all the circumstances attending this case, and other recent cases like it, it seems to me very apparent that the seizure was not made for the purpose of enforcing any right or redressing any wrong. As I have before remarked, it is not pretended that the vessel had been engaged in fishing, or was intending to fish in the prohibited waters, or that it had done or was intending to do any other injurious act. It was proceeding upon its regular and lawful business of fishing in the deep sea. It had received no request, and of course could have disregarded no request, to depart, and was, in fact, departing when seized; nor had its master refused to answer any questions put by the authorities. It had violated no existing law, and had incurred no penalty that any known statute imposed.

It seems to me impossible to escape the conclusion that this and other similar seizures were made by the Canadian authorities for the deliberate purpose of harassing and embarrassing the American fishing vessels in the pursuit of their lawful employment. And the injury, which would have been a serious one, if committed under a mistake, is very much aggravated by the motives which appear to have prompted it.

I am instructed by my Government earnestly to protest against these proceedings as wholly unwarranted by the treaty of 1818, and altogether inconsistent with the friendly relations hitherto existing between the United States and Her Majesty's Government; to request that the David J. Adams, and the other American fishing vessels now under seizure in Canadian ports, be immediately released, and that proper orders may be issued to prevent similar proceedings in the future. And I am also instructed to inform you that the United States will hold Her Majesty's Government responsible for all losses which may be sustained by American citizens in the dispossession of their property growing out of the search, seizure, detention, or sale of their vessels lawfully within the territorial waters of British North America.

The real source of the difficulty that has arisen is well understood. It is to be found in the irritation that has taken place among a portion of the Canadian people on account of the termination by the United States Government of the treaty of Washington on the 1st of July last, whereby fish imported from Canada into the United States, and which so long as that treaty remained in force was admitted free, is now liable to the import duty provided by the general revenue laws, and the opinion appears to have gained ground in Canada that the United States may be driven, by harassing and annoying their fishermen, into the adoption of a new treaty by which Canadian fish shall be admitted free.

It is not necessary to say that this scheme is likely to prove as mistaken in policy as it is indefensible in principle. In terminating the treaty of Washington the United States were simply exercising a right expressly reserved to both parties by the treaty itself, and of the exercise of which by either party neither can complain. They will not be coerced by wanton injury into the making of a new one. Nor would a negotiation that had its origin in mutual irritation be promising of success. The question now is, not what fresh treaty may or might be desirable, but what is the true and just construction, as between the two nations, of the treaty that already exists.

The Government of the United States, approaching this question in the most friendly spirit, cannot doubt that it will be met by Her Majesty's Government in the same spirit, and feels every confidence that the action of Her Majesty's Government in the premises will be such as to maintain the cordial relations between the two countries that have so long happily prevailed.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 18, 1886.

SIR; I have received and read with much satisfaction your No. 293 of the 5th instant, inclosing a copy of a note addressed by you on that day to Lord Rosebery, in reference to the seizures of American fishing vessels in Canadian waters, and other interference with our commercial rights.

The views and arguments you adduce are fully in accord with the instructions already sent you, and are so ably advanced and enforced that I have for the present, and pending Lord Rosebery's reply, nothing further to suggest on these points.

I now transmit for your information a copy of a note addressed by me, on the 14th instant, to Sir Lionel West, on the subject of certain verbal notifications not to approach the coasts of Nova Scotia, which, as I have been informed by our consul-general at Halifax, were given to four of our fishing vessels by the subcollector of customs at Canso, and the information from the collector at Halifax that no American fishing vessels would be permitted to land fish at that port for transportation in bond across the province.

In reply to my note, Sir Lionel West informed me that the subject has been brought by him to the notice of Her Majesty's Government.

My notes of the 10th, 20th, and 29th of May last to Sir Lionel West continue without reply, and this, I suppose, is one of the serious impediments to prompt and practical exchange of views which results from the triangular attitude of the United States, the imperial Government of Great Britain, and the American dependencies of the latter power, towards all questions in which the interests of the provinces are involved.

The last note of the British minister, stating that he has brought the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the questions raised by the action of provincial officials will, I hope, be productive of authoritative expression, and afford some solid basis for our judgment and progressive action, which has hitherto been so delayed from the somewhat anomalous relations of the Canadian authorities towards a convention to which they are not actual or responsible parties.

UNITED STATES CONSULATE-GENERAL,
Halifax, June 15, 1886. [Received June 18.]

SIR: I have the honor to report that I sent with dispatch No. 83, dated May 27, 1886, a circular issued by J. Johnson, Esq., Canadian commissioner of customs, known as Circular No. 371, dated May 7, 1886, containing instructions to customs collectors concerning foreign fishing vessels. I now inclose herewith a confidential circular of the same date and number issued by the same officer, with a note saying "that the confidential circular was to be substituted for the one of the same date and number previously received."

It will be seen by comparing the circulars that the two last paragraphs in the first circular issued are stricken out and the following substituted in lieu thereof:

"Having reference to the above you are requested to furnish every foreign fishing vessel, boat, or fisherman found within three marine miles from shore with a copy of the warning inclosed herewith. If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, or, if hovering within the three-mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such warning, you will place an officer on board such vessel and at once telegraph the facts to the fisheries department at Ottawa and await instructions."

Everything about shipping crew, purchasing supplies, and trading is eliminated in the confidential circular.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT,
Ottawa, May 7, 1886.

SIR: The Government of the United States having by notice terminated article 18 to 25, both inclusive, and article 30, known as the fishery articles of the Washington treaty, attention is called to following provision of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London on the 20th October, 1818:

"ARTICLE 1. Whereas, differences have arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the United States for the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, and cure fish on certain coasts, bays, harbors and creeks, of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that the inhabitants of the said United States shall have forever, in common with the subjects of his Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland, from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks, from Mount Joly on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company; and that the American fishermen shall also have liberty, forever, to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbors, and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland hereabove described, and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same or any portion thereof shall be settled, it shall not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry or cure fish at such portion so settled, without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground.

"And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America, not included within the above-mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbors for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them."

Attention is also called to the following provisions of the act of the Parliament of Canada, cap. 61 of the acts of 1868, entitled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels":

(2) "Any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, serving on board of any vessel of Her Majesty's navy, cruising and being in the waters of Canada for purpose of affording protection to Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries, or any commissioned officer of Her Majesty's navy, fishery officer, or stipendiary magistrate on board of any vessel belonging to or in the service of the Government of Canada and employed in the service of protecting the fisheries, or any officer of the customs of Canada, sheriff, magistrate, or other person duly commissioned for that purpose, may go on board of any ship, vessel, or boat within any harbor in Canada, or hovering (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors in Canada, and stay on board as long as she may remain within such place or distance."

(3) "If such ship, vessel, or boat be bound elsewhere, and shall continue within such harbor, or so hovering for twenty-four hours after the master shall have been required to depart, any one of such officers or persons as are above mentioned may bring such ship, vessel, or boat into port and search her cargo, and may also examine the master upon oath touching the cargo and voyage; and if the master or person in command shall not truly answer the questions put to him in such examination he shall forfeit $400; and if such ship, vessel, or boat be foreign, or not navigated according to the laws of the United Kingdom or of Canada, and have been found fishing, or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing (in British waters) within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of Canada not included within the above-mentioned limits, without a license, or after the expiration of the period named in the last license granted to such ship, vessel, or boat, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo thereof shall be forfeited.

(4) "All goods, ships, vessels, and boats, and the tackle, rigging, apparel, furniture, stores, and cargo liable to forfeiture under this act, may be seized and secured by any officers or persons mentioned in the second section of this act; and every person opposing any officer or person in the execution of his duty under this act, or aiding or abetting any other other person in any opposition, shall forfeit $800, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years."

Having reference to the above, you are requested to furnish any foreign fishing vessels, boats, or fishermen found within three marine miles of the shore, within your district, with a printed copy of the "warning" inclosed herewith. If any fishing vessel or boat of the United States is found fishing, or to have been fishing, or preparing to fish, or, if hovering within the three-mile limit, does not depart within twenty-four hours after receiving such "warning," you will please place an officer on board such vessel and at once telegraph the facts to the fisheries department at Ottawa and await instructions.

To the President:

Responding to the accompanying resolutions, of the respective dates of May 10 and July 10, 1886, adopted by the Senate of the United States, and which were referred by the President to this Department, the undersigned, Secretary of State, has the honor to reply:

That the list hereunto appended gives all the cases of seizure or detention of American vessels in foreign ports since January 1, 1886, of which the Department of State has been informed; and, as it will be observed, no other cases of such seizure or detention have occurred than those in the ports of the Dominion of Canada, and under the alleged authority of the officials of that Government.

All of the vessels so seized or detained were vessels licensed for fishing under the laws of the United States.

They have all been released excepting the schooner David J. Adams, of Gloucester, Mass., which is still held in custody at Digby, Nova Scotia, her owners not having sought to procure her release by giving bond.

The period for which each vessel was detained and the terms upon which they were respectively released are stated in the appended list.

Instantly upon receiving authentic information of an alleged seizure from the owners of the vessels or their agents, or from the consular officers of the United States in Canada, this Department gave instructions to the United States consular officers to make full and careful investigation of the facts in each case; and wherever an infraction of treaty rights or the commercial rights and privileges of citizens of the United States appeared to have occurred, representation was promptly made to Her Britannic Majesty's minister at this capital, calling for redress, and notification given of demand for compensation for all loss and injury to the vessels in question and their owners.

In order properly to assert and maintain the rights of our citizens and our international rights under conventions and by the law of nations which might be brought in question by these proceedings and by the action of the Canadian Government, the professional services of two gentlemen learned in the law—Mr. George W. Biddle, of the city of Philadelphia, and Mr. William L. Putnam, of the city of Portland, in Maine—were retained by the Executive; and since the 20th of May last these gentlemen have bestowed their careful consideration upon the circumstances and the law in connection therewith in each case.

Proceedings have been commenced in the vice-admiralty court at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the name of Her Majesty the Queen as plaintiff, against the schooner David J. Adams and the schooner Ella M. Doughty in both of which cases the complaint is substantially the same. Copy is hereunto appended of the complaint signed by the solicitor for the attorney-general of the Dominion of Canada against the Ella M. Doughty, which sets forth at length the alleged grounds for the seizure and detention of that vessel.

Concurrently with these events, correspondence has begun and is still proceeding between this Department and the British minister at this capital, and also between the minister of the United States in London and the foreign office of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, to obtain satisfactory recognition and enforcement of our rights under treaty and international law and the laws and commercial usages of both countries, which are brought in question by the action of the Canadian authorities in making the seizures and detentions of American fishing vessels herein referred to and described.

Pending this correspondence, which it is believed must soon terminate in an amicable settlement mutually just and honorable, and, therefore, satisfactory to both countries and their inhabitants, the undersigned is unable to recommend the President to communicate its contents in its present incomplete status, believing that to do so would not be compatible with the public interests as connected with the transactions referred to.

Respectfully submitted.

T. F. BAYARD.

vessel and her cargo for violation of chapter 61 of the acts of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, made and passed in the year 1868, and of chapter 15 of the acts of the said Parliament, passed and made in the year 1870, and of chapter 23 of the acts of the said Parliament, made and passed in the year 1871.

Writ issued on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1886.

1. A certain convention between his late Majesty George the Third, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the United States of America was made and signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818, and by the first article thereof after that differences had arisen respecting the liberty claimed by the said United States for the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, and cure fish on certain coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks of his Britannic Majesty's domains in America, it was agreed between the high contracting parties that the inhabitants of the said United States should have forever, in common with the subjects of his Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coasts of Newfoundland, and from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands; and also on the coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of exclusive rights of the Hudson Bay Company; and that the American fishermen should also have liberty forever to dry and cure fish on any of the unsettled harbors and creeks of the southern part of the coast of Newfoundland, and there above described and of the coast of Labrador; but so soon as the same or any portion thereof should be settled it should not be lawful for the said fishermen to dry and cure fish at such portion so settled without previous agreement for such purpose with the inhabitants, proprietors, or possessors of the ground, and the said United States thereby renounced forever any liberty theretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, or cure fish on or within 3 marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbors of His Majesty's dominions in America not included within the above-mentioned limits; provided, however, that the American fishermen should be admitted to enter such bays or harbors for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood, and of obtaining water, and for no other purposes whatever. But they should be under such restrictions as might be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges thereby reserved to them.

2. That a certain act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, being chapter 38 of the acts of the said Parliament, made and passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King George the Third, and entitled "An act to enable his Majesty to make regulations with respect to the taking and curing of fish on certain parts of the coast of Newfoundland, Labrador, and his Majesty's other possessions in North America according to a convention made between his Majesty and the United States of America."

3. That on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1867, a certain other act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was made, and being chapter 3 of the acts of the said Parliament passed in the thirtieth and thirty-first years of the reign of her present Majesty Victoria, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and being entitled "An act for the union of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick and the government thereof, and for purposes connected therewith," which said act is cited and known as the British North America act of 1867.

4. That a certain act of the Parliament of Canada was made and passed in the thirty-first year of the reign of her said Majesty Queen Victoria, being chapter 61 of the acts of the said Parliament made and passed in the year 1868, and being entitled "An act respecting fishing by foreign vessels." And a certain other act of the Parliament of Canada was made and passed in the thirty-third year of the reign of her said Majesty Queen Victoria, being chapter 15 of the acts of the Parliament made and passed in the year 1870, and being entitled "An act to amend the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels." And in the thirty-fourth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria a certain other act of said Parliament of Canada, being chapter 15 of the acts of the said Parliament of Canada, was made and passed, being entitled "An act further to amend the act respecting fishing by foreign vessels," was made and passed, being chapter 23 of the acts of the said Parliament made and passed in 1871.

5. That the said convention and the said several acts hereinbefore mentioned were and are still in full force and effect.

of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and now of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and not included or lying on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland, and which extends [from] Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coasts of Newfoundland, and from the said cape to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, or on the coasts, bays, harbors, and creeks from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast.

7. That the said ship Ella M. Doughty, whereof one Warren A. Doughty, who was not a natural-born subject of Her Majesty, was or is master, is a foreign ship or vessel not navigated according to the laws of Great Britain and Ireland, or according to the laws of Canada, but was and is a ship of the United States of America owned by foreigners; that is to say, by persons residing in and being citizens of the United States of America, where the said ship or vessel was built and enrolled, and the said ship or vessel Ella M. Doughty was at the time hereinafter mentioned licensed and permitted to carry on the fisheries under and in pursuance of the acts of the United States of America, and was engaged in the prosecution of the fisheries and on a fishing voyage, and was and is without a license to fish or any license whatsoever in that behalf from the Government of Canada or of Nova Scotia under the statutes of Canada or of Nova Scotia in that behalf.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

Washington, July 30, 1886.

SIR: Notwithstanding the express language of Article I of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, concluded October 20, 1818, by which it is provided that the inhabitants of the two contracting countries "shall have forever in common * * * the liberty to take fish of every kind" on certain coasts therein described, and, as part thereof, "on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland; from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands, on the shores of the Magdalen Islands, and also on the coast, bays, harbors, and creeks from Mount Joly, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through the Straits of Belle Isle, and thence northwardly indefinitely along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson Bay Company," I have to-day received the sworn statements of the captain of an American fishing vessel, the Thomas F. Bayard, of Gloucester, Mass., to the effect that he has been hindered of his lawful rights, so expressly secured by the convention referred to, "to take fish of every kind" in the harbor of Bonne Bay, on the western coast of Newfoundland and within the geographical limits hereinbefore stated.

I inclose a copy of the affidavit and likewise of the formal notice received by the master of the Thomas F. Bayard from the customs officials at Bonne Bay, whereby, to avoid the seizure of his vessel by the local authority of Newfoundland, he was compelled to abstain from the exercise of his lawful right to obtain fish for bait to be used in the open-sea fishing, and to break up his voyage and return home, thus suffering great loss.

The affidavit of Captain McEachern, of the American schooner Mascot, of Gloucester, Mass., which I hand you herewith, discloses the fact of the threat of the customs officials at Port Amherst, in the Magdalen Islands, to seize his vessel should he there obtain fresh fish for bait, although those islands are expressly designated and included in the region wherein the liberty forever to take fish of every kind is expressly secured by the convention of 1818.

Previous attempts or suggestions have been made by the local authorities of Newfoundland to inhibit the purchase or sale of fresh fish for use as bait, and the same have been distinctly disapproved by Her Majesty's Government, notably by the Duke of Newcastle, when secretary of state for the colonies, in his dispatch of August 3, 1863, to the governor of Newfoundland, Sir A. Bannerman, a copy of which you will find at page 111 in the public document (Ex. Doc. No. 84, House of Representatives, Forty-sixth Congress, second session) sent you by this mail.*

You will please draw the attention of Her Majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs (Lord Iddesleigh) to these infractions of treaty rights, and request that such instructions may be promptly issued to the Newfoundland officials as will prevent a recurrence of such wrongs to the lawful pursuits of American citizens; and you will also notify his lordship that remuneration for the damages incurred by the vessels and their owners in the cases referred to in this instruction will be claimed on behalf of the sufferers, so soon as the amount is accurately ascertained.

I am, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES,

London, September 13, 1886. [Received September 27.]

SIR: I have the honor to transmit to you herewith a copy of a note sent by me to Lord Iddesleigh, Her Majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs, under date of September 11, 1886, on the subject of the Canadian fisheries.

And I have, &c.,

E. J. PHELPS.

* This document comprises the correspondence in relation to the Fortune Bay occurrences.

[Inclosure No. 1, with Mr. Phelps's No. 351.]

*Mr. Phelps to Lord Iddesleigh.*LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES, London, September 11, 1886.

MY LORD: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of September 1, on the subject of the Canadian fisheries.

I received also on the 16th of August, last, from Lord Rosebery, then foreign secretary, a copy of a note on the same subject, dated July 23, 1886, addressed by his Lordship, through the British minister at Washington, to Mr. Bayard, the Secretary of State of the United States, in reply to a note from Mr. Bayard to the British minister of May 10, and also to mine addressed to Lord Rosebery under date of June 2. The retirement of Lord Rosebery from office immediately after I received his note, prevented a continuance of the discussion with him. And in resuming the subject with your lordship, it may be proper to refer both to Lord Rosebery's note and to your own. In doing so I repeat in substance considerations expressed to you orally in recent interviews.

My note to Lord Rosebery was confined to the discussion of the case of the David J. Adams, the only seizure in reference to which the details had then been fully made known to me. The points presented in my note, and the arguments in support of them, need not be repeated.

No answer is attempted in Lord Rosebery's reply. He declines to discuss the questions involved on the ground that they are "now occupying the attention of the courts of law in the Dominion, and may possibly form the subject of an appeal to the judicial committee of Her Majesty's privy council in England."

He adds:

"It is believed that the courts in Canada will deliver judgment in the above cases very shortly, and until the legal proceedings now pending have been brought to a conclusion, Her Majesty's Government do not feel justified in expressing an opinion upon them, either as to facts or the legality of the action taken by the colonial authorities."

And your lordship remarks, in your note of August 24, "it is clearly right, according to practice and precedent, that such diplomatic action should be suspended pending the completion of the judicial inquiry."

This is a proposition to which the United States Government is unable to accede.

The seizures complained of are not the acts of individuals claiming private rights which can be dealt with only by judicial determination, or which depend upon facts that need to be ascertained by judicial inquiry. They are the acts of the authorities of Canada, who profess to be acting, and in legal effect are acting, under the authority of Her Majesty's Government. In the report of the Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, which is annexed to and adopted as a part of Lord Rosebery's note, it is said:

"The colonial statutes have received the sanction of the British sovereign who, and not the nation, is actually the party with whom the United States made the convention. The officers who are engaged in enforcing the acts of Canada, or the laws of the Empire, are Her Majesty's officers, whether their authority emanates directly from the Queen or from her representative, the governor-general."

The ground upon which the seizures complained of are principally justified is the allegation that the vessels in question were violating the stipulations of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain. This is denied by the United States Government. The facts of the transaction are not seriously in dispute, and, if they were, could be easily ascertained by both Governments without the aid of the judicial tribunals of either, and the question to be determined is the true interpretation of the treaty as understood, and to be administered between the high contracting parties.

The proposition of Her Majesty's Government amounts to this, that before the United States can obtain consideration of their complaint that the Canadian authorities without justification have seized and are proceeding to confiscate American vessels, the result of the proceedings in the Canadian courts, instituted by the captors as the means of the seizures, must be awaited, and the decision of that tribunal on the international questions involved obtained.

The interpretation of a treaty when it becomes the subject of discussion between two governments is not, I respectfully insist, to be settled by the judicial tribunals of either. That would be placing its construction in the hands of one of the parties to it. It can only be interpreted for such a purpose by the mutual consideration and agreement which were necessary to make it. Questions between individuals arising upon the terms of a treaty may be for the courts to which they resort to adjust.

Questions between nations as to national rights secured by treaty are of a very different character and must be solved in another way.

The United States Government is no party to the proceedings instituted by the British authorities in Canada. Nor can it consent to become a party. The proceedings themselves are what the United States complain of as unauthorized, as well as unfriendly. It would be inconsistent with the dignity of a sovereign power to become a party to such proceedings, or to seek redress in any way in the courts of another country for what it claims to be the violation of treaty stipulations by the authorities of that country.

Still less could it consent to be made indirectly a party to the suits by being required to await the result of such defense as the individuals whose property is implicated may be able and may think proper to set up.

Litigation of that sort may be indefinitely prolonged. Meanwhile fresh seizures of American vessels upon similar grounds are to be expected, for which redress would in like manner await the decisions of the local tribunals, whose jurisdiction the captors invoke and the United States Government denies.

Nor need it be again pointed out, how different may be the question involved between the Governments from that which these proceedings raise in the Canadian courts. Courts in such cases do not administer treaties. They administer only the statutes that are passed in pursuance of treaties. If a statute contravene the provisions of a treaty, British courts are nevertheless bound by the statute. And if, on the other hand, there is a treaty stipulation which no statute gives the means of enforcing, the court cannot enforce it.

Although the United States Government insists that there is no British or colonial act authorizing the seizures complained of, if the British courts should nevertheless find such authority in any existing statute, the question whether the statute itself or the construction given it is warranted by the treaty would still remain. And also the still higher question, whether if the strict technical reading of the treaty might be thought to warrant such a result, it is one which ought to be enforced between sovereign and friendly nations acting in the spirit of the treaty.

The United States Government must therefore insist that, irrespective of the future result of the Canadian legal proceedings, the authority and propriety of which is the subject of dispute, and without waiting their conclusion, it is to Her Majesty's Government it must look for redress and satisfaction for the transactions in question, and for such instructions to the colonial authority as will prevent their repetition.

While, as I have observed, Lord Rosebery declines to discuss the question of the legality of these seizures, the able and elaborate report on the subject from the Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, which is made a part of it, attempts in very general terms to sustain their authority. He says:

"It is claimed that the vessel (the David J. Adams) violated the treaty of 1818, and consequently the statutes which exist for the enforcement of the treaty."

It is not clear from this language whether it is meant to be asserted that if an act, otherwise lawful, is prohibited by a treaty, the commission of the act becomes a violation of a statute which has no reference to it, if the statute was enacted to carry out the treaty, or whether it is intended to say that there was in existence, prior to the seizure of the vessel in question, some statute which did refer to the act complained of and did authorize proceedings or provide a penalty against American fishing vessels for purchasing bait or supplies in a Canadian port to be used in lawful fishing.

The former proposition does not seem to require refutation. If the latter is intended, I have respectfully to request that your lordship will have the kindness to direct a copy of such act to be furnished to me. I have supposed that none such existed, and neither in the report of the Canadian minister, nor in the customs circulars or warnings thereto appended, in which attention is called to the various legislation on the subject, is any such act pointed out.

The absence of such statute provision either in the act of Parliament (59 Geo. III, c. 38) or in any subsequent colonial act, is not merely a legal objection, though quite a sufficient one, to the validity of the proceedings in question. It affords the most satisfactory evidence that up to the time of the present controversy no such construction has been given to the treaty by the British or by the colonial parliament, as is now sought to be maintained.

No other attempt is made in the report of the Canadian minister to justify the legality of these seizures.

It is apparent from the whole of it that he recognizes the necessity of the proposed enactment of the act of the Canadian Parliament already alluded to in order to sustain them.

This remark is further confirmed by the communication from the Marquis of Lansdowne, governor-general of Canada, to Lord Granville, in reference to that act, annexed by Lord Rosebery to his second note to the British minister of July 23, 1886, a copy of which was sent me by his lordship, in connection with his other note of same date above referred to.

I do not observe upon other points of the minister's report not bearing upon the points of note to Lord Rosebery. So far as they relate to the communications addressed to the British minister by Mr. Bayard, the Secretary of State will doubtless make such reply as may seem to him to be called for.

In various other instances American vessels have been seized or driven away by the provincial authorities when not engaged or proposing to engage in any illegal employment.

Some of these cases are similar to that of the Adams, the vessels having been taken possession of for purchasing bait or supplies to be used in lawful fishing, or for alleged technical breach of custom-house regulations, where no harm was either intended or committed, and under circumstances in which for a very long time such regulations have been treated as inapplicable.

In other cases, an arbitrary extension of the three-mile limit fixed by the treaty has been announced so as to include within it portions of the high sea, such as the Bay of Fundy, the Bay of Chaleur, and other similar waters, and American fishermen have been prevented from fishing in those places by threats of seizure. I do not propose at this time to discuss the question of the exact location of that line. But only to protest against its extension in the manner attempted by the provincial authorities.

To two recent instances of interference by Canadian officers with American fishermen, of a somewhat different character, I am specially instructed by my Government to ask your lordship's attention, those of the schooners Thomas F. Bayard and Mascot.

These vessels were proposing to fish in waters in which the right to fish is expressly secured to Americans by the terms of the treaty of 1818; the former in Bonne Bay, on the northwest coast of Newfoundland, and the latter near the shores of the Magdalen Islands.

For this purpose the Bayard attempted to purchase bait in the port of Bonne Bay, having reported at the custom-house and announced its object. The Mascot made a similar attempt at Port Amherst in the Magdalen Islands, and also desired to take on board a pilot. Both vessels were refused permission by the authorities to purchase bait, and the Mascot to take a pilot, and were notified to leave the ports within twenty-four hours on penalty of seizure. They were therefore compelled to depart, to break up their voyages, and to return home, to their very great loss. I append copies of the affidavits of the masters of these vessels, stating the facts.

Your lordship will observe, upon reference to the treaty, not only that the right to fish in these waters is conferred by it, but that the clause prohibiting entry by American fishermen into Canadian ports, except for certain specified purposes, which is relied on by the Canadian Government in the cases of the Adams and of some other vessels, has no application whatever to the ports from which the Bayard and the Mascot were excluded. The only prohibition in the treaty having reference to those ports is against curing and drying fish there, without leave of the inhabitants, which the vessels excluded had no intention of doing.

The conduct of the provincial officers toward these vessels was therefore not merely unfriendly and injurious, but in clear and plain violation of the terms of the treaty. And I am instructed to say that reparation for the losses sustained by it to the owners of the vessels will be claimed by the United States Government on their behalf as soon as the amount can be accurately ascertained.

It will be observed that interference with American fishing vessels by Canadian authorities is becoming more and more frequent, and more and more flagrant in its disregard of treaty obligations and of the principles of comity and friendly intercourse. The forbearance and moderation of the United States Government in respect to them appear to have been misunderstood and to have been taken advantage of by the provincial government. The course of the United States has been dictated, not only by an anxious desire to preserve friendly relations, but by the full confidence that the interposition of Her Majesty's Government would be such as to put a stop to the transactions complained of, and to afford reparation for what has already taken place. The subject has become one of grave importance, and I earnestly solicit the immediate attention of your lordship to the question it involves, and to the views presented in my former note and in those of the Secretary of State.

The proposal in your lordship's note that a revision of the treaty stipulations bearing upon the subject of the fisheries should be attempted by the Government, upon the basis of mutual concessions is one that under other circumstances would merit and receive serious consideration. Such a revision was desired by the Government of the United States before the present disputes arose, and when there was a reasonable prospect that it might have been carried into effect. Various reasons not within its control now concur to make the present time inopportune for that purpose, and greatly to diminish the hope of a favorable result to such an effort. Not the least of them is the irritation produced in the United States by the course of the Canadian Government, and the relief thereby engendered that a new treaty is attempted to be forced upon the United States Government.

It seems apparent that the questions now presented and the transactions that are the subject of present complaint must be considered and adjusted upon the provisions of the existing treaty, and upon the construction that is to be given to them.

A just construction of these stipulations, and such as would consist with the dignity, the interests, and the friendly relations of the two countries, ought not to be difficult, and can doubtless be arrived at.

As it appears to me very important to these relations that the collisions between the American fishermen and the Canadian officials should terminate, I suggest to your lordship whether an ad interim construction of the terms of the existing treaty cannot be reached by mutual understanding of the Governments, to be carried out informally by instructions given on both sides, without prejudice to ultimate claims of either, and terminable at the will of either, by which the conduct of the business can be so regulated for the time being as to prevent disputes and injurious proceedings until a more permanent understanding can be had.

Should this suggestion meet with your lordship's approval, perhaps you may be able to propose an outline for such an arrangement.

I am not prepared nor authorized to present one at this time, but may hereafter be instructed to do so if the effort is thought advisable.

I have, &c.,

E. J. PHELPS.

Sworn statement of James McDonald, master of the Thomas F. Bayard, dated July 28, 1886, with accompanying notice served on him by N. N. Taylor, officer of customs, dated July 12, 1886.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
Commonwealth of Massachusetts :

I, James McDonald, of Gloucester, on my oath do say I am master and part owner of the schooner Thomas F. Bayard, a licensed vessel of the United States; that she sailed with a permit to trade from Gloucester June 22, on a trip for halibut. We fished on the northwest coast of Newfoundland, near Bonne Bay, where, my supply of bait being exhausted, I ran into the port July 12 and reported at the custom-house, stating to the collector that my purpose was to buy bait. The collector immediately served me with the notice hereto appended and made part of this affidavit. I had with me a copy of the Canadian Warning of March 5, 1886, which contained the clause 2 of the treaty of 1818. This I showed to the collector and argued that I had the right under the treaty there set out. In substance his reply was that he had an official duty to perform and would not permit me.

Fearing that my vessel would be seized should I remain or should I buy bait or take it, I determined to return to Gloucester, as my trip was broken up by reason of these threats in the notice and the action of the collector in refusing to recognize the rights secured to my vessel by the treaty. I arrived in Gloucester July 26. I say great losses and damages have inured to said vessel, her owner, and crew by reason of being warned off said coast and said Bonne Bay, as will be duly made to appear.

JAMES McDONALD.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,

BOSTON, July 28, 1886.

Then personally appeared the above-named James McDonald and made oath that the foregoing statement by him subscribed is true.

of the convention, and that the purchase of bait or ice, or other transaction in connection with fishery operations, within 3 miles of the coasts of this colony, will be in further violation of the terms of said convention and laws.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS,

GLOUCESTER, July 27, 1886.

Be it known that on the 27th day of July, in the year of our Lord 1886, before me, Aaron Parsons, a notary public, duly commissioned and sworn, and dwelling at Gloucester, in the county and State aforesaid, personally appeared Alexander McEachern, master of the schooner called Mascot, of this port, who deposes and says: That on the 10th day of June, 1886 A. D., I went into Port Amherst, Magdalen Islands, for the purpose of buying bait, but as soon as I went ashore I was met by the custom-house officials, who forbid me from so doing, stating they would seize my vessel, and I had no right to enjoy any privileges here except to get wood and water. I informed him that I wanted to take a pilot so I could find a spot where I was informed the fishing was good. He also said if I shipped such pilot or laid in port over twenty-four hours he would seize my vessel.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, November 6, 1886.

SIR: On October 7, 1886, the United States fishing vessel, the Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, Mass., Alexander Landry, a citizen of the United States, being her captain, arrived shortly before midnight, under stress of weather, at the outer harbor of Shelburne, Nova Scotia.

The night was stormy, with a strong head-wind against her, and her sole object was temporary shelter. She remained at the spot where she anchored, which was about seven miles from the port of Shelburne, no one leaving her until 6 o'clock the next morning, when she hoisted sail in order to put to sea. She had scarcely started, however, before she was arrested and boarded by a boat's crew from the Canadian cruiser Terror. Captain Landry was compelled to proceed to Shelburne, about seven miles distant, to report to the collector. When the report was made, Captain Landry was informed that he was fined $400 for not reporting on the previous night. He answered that the custom-house was not open during the time that he was in the outer harbor. He further insisted that it was obvious from the storm that caused him to take shelter in that harbor, from the shortness of his stay, and from the circumstances that his equipments were exclusively for deep-sea fishing, and that he had made no effort whatever to approach the shore, that his object was exclusively to find shelter. The fine, however, being imposed principally through the urgency of Captain Quigley, commanding the Terror, Captain Landry was informed that he was to be detained at the port of Shelburne until a deposit to meet the fine was made. He consulted Mr. White, the United States consular agent at Shelburne, who at once telegraphed the facts to Mr. Phelan, United States consul-general at Halifax, it being of great importance to Captain Landry, and to those interested in his venture, that he should proceed on his voyage at once. Mr. Phelan then telegraphed to the assistant commissioner of customs at Ottawa that it was impossible for Captain Landry to have reported while he was in the outer harbor on the 8th instant, and asking that the deposit required to release the vessel be reduced. He was told in reply that the minister declined to reduce the deposit, but that it might be made at Halifax. Mr. Phelan at once deposited at Halifax the $400, and telegraphed to Captain Landry that he was at liberty to go to sea. On the evening of October 11 Mr. Phelan received a telegram from Captain Landry, who had already been kept four days in the port, stating that "the custom-house officers and Captain Quigley" refused to let him go to sea. Mr. Phelan the next morning called on the collector at Halifax to ascertain if an order had issued to release the vessel, and was informed that the order had been given, "but that the collector and captain of the cruiser refused to obey it, for the reason that the captain of the seized vessel hoisted the American flag while she was in custody of Canadian officials." Mr. Phelan at once telegraphed this state of facts to the assistant commissioner at Ottawa, and received in reply, under date of August 12, the announcement that "collector has been instructed to release the Grimes from customs seizure. This department has nothing to do with other charges." On the same day a dispatch from the commissioner of customs at Ottawa was sent to the collector of customs at Halifax reciting the order to release the Grimes, and saying "this [the customs] department has nothing to do with other charges. It is department of marine."

The facts as to the flag were as follows :

On October 11, the Marion Grimes, being then under arrest by order of local officials for not immediately reporting at the custom-house, hoisted the American flag. Captain Quigley, who, representing, as appeared, not the revenue, but the marine department of the Canadian administration, was, with his "cruiser," keeping guard over the vessel, ordered the flag to be hauled down. This order was obeyed; but about an hour afterwards the flag was again hoisted, whereupon Captain

Quigley boarded the vessel with an armed crew and lowered the flag himself. The vessel was finally released under orders of the customs department, being compelled to pay $8 costs in addition to the deposit of $400 above specified.

The seriousness of the damage inflicted on Captain Landry and those interested in his venture will be understood when it is considered that he had a crew of twelve men, with full supplies of bait, which his detention spoiled.

You will at once see that the grievances I have narrated fall under two distinct heads.

The first concerns the boarding by Captain Quigley of the Marion Grimes on the morning of October 8th, and compelling her to go to the town of Shelburne, there subjecting her to a fine of $400 for visiting the port without reporting, and detaining her there arbitrarily four days, a portion of which time was after a deposit to meet the fine had been made.

This particular wrong I now proceed to consider with none the less gravity, because other outrages of the same class have been perpetrated by Captain Quigley. On August 18th last I had occasion, as you will see by the annexed papers, to bring to the notice of the British minister at this capital several instances of aggression on the part of Captain Quigley on our fishing vessels. On October 19, 1886, I had also to bring to the British minister's notice the fact that Captain Quigley had, on September the 10th, arbitrarily arrested the Everett Steele, a United States fishing vessel, at the outer port of Shelburne. To these notes I have received no reply. Copies are transmitted, with the accompanying papers, to you in connection with the present instruction, so that the cases, as part of a class, can be presented by you to Her Majesty's Government.

Were there no treaty relations whatever between the United States and Great Britain, were the United States fishermen without any other right to visit those coasts than are possessed by the fishing craft of any foreign country simply as such, the arrest and boarding of the Grimes, as above detailed, followed by forcing her into the port of Shelburne, there subjecting her to fine for not reporting, and detaining her until her bait and ice were spoiled, are wrongs which I am sure Her Majesty's Government will be prompt to redress. No Governments have been more earnest and resolute in insisting that vessels driven by stress of weather into foreign harbors should not be subject to port exactions than the Governments of Great Britain and the United States. So far has this solicitude been carried that both Governments, from motives of humanity, as well as of interest as leading maritime powers, have adopted many measures by which foreigners as well as citizens or subjects arriving within their territorial waters may be protected from the perils of the sea. For this purpose not merely light-houses and light-ships are placed by us at points of danger, but an elaborate life-saving service, well equipped with men, boats, and appliances for relief, studs our seaboard in order to render aid to vessels in distress, without regard to their nationality. Other benevolent organizations are sanctioned by Government which bestow rewards on those who hazard their lives in the protection of life and property in vessels seeking in our waters refuge from storms. Acting in this spirit the Government of the United States has been zealous, not merely in opening its ports freely, without charges to vessels seeking them in storm, but in insisting that its own vessels, seeking foreign ports under such circumstances, and exclusively for such shelter, are not under the law of nations subject to custom-house exactions.

In cases of vessels carried into British ports by violence or stress of weather [said Mr. Webster in instructions to Mr. Everett, June 28, 1842] we insist that there shall be no interference from the land with the relation or personal condition of those on board, according to the laws of their own country; that vessels under such circumstances shall enjoy the common laws of hospitality, subjected to no force, entitled to have their immediate wants and necessities relieved, and to pursue their voyage without molestation.

In this case, that of the Creole, Mr. Wheaton, in the Revue Française et Étrangère (IX, 345), and Mr. Legaré (4 Op. At. Gen., 98), both eminent publicists, gave opinions that a vessel carried by stress of weather or forced into a foreign port is not subject to the law of such port; and this was sustained by Mr. Bates, the umpire of the commission to whom the claim was referred (Rep. Com. of 1853, 244, 245):

The municipal law of England [so he said] cannot authorize a magistrate to violate the law of nations by invading with an armed force the vessel of a friendly nation that has committed no offense, and forcibly dissolving the relations which, by the laws of his country, the captain is bound to preserve and enforce on board. These rights, sanctioned by the law of nations, viz, the right to navigate the ocean and to seek shelter in case of distress or other unavoidable circumstances, and to retain over the ship, her cargo, and passengers, the law of her country, must be respected by all nations, for no independent nation would submit to their violation.

It is proper to state that Lord Ashburton, who conducted the controversy in its diplomatic stage on the British side, did not deny as a general rule the propositions of Mr. Webster. He merely questioned the applicability of the rule to the case of the Creole. Nor has the principle ever been doubted by either Her Majesty's Government or the Government of the United States; while, in cases of vessels driven by storm on inhospitable coasts, both Governments have asserted it, sometimes by extreme measures of redress, to secure indemnity for vessels suffering under such circumstances from port exactions, or from injuries inflicted from the shore.

It would be hard to conceive of anything more in conflict with the humane policy of Great Britain in this respect, as well as with the law of nations, than was the conduct of Captain Quigley towards the vessel in question on the morning of October 8th.

In such coasts, at early dawn, after a stormy night, it is not unusual for boats, on errands of relief, to visit vessels which have been struggling with storm during the night. But in no such errand of mercy was Captain Quigley engaged. The Marion Grimes, having found shelter during the night's storm, was about to depart on her voyage, losing no time while her bait was fresh and her ice lasted, when she was boarded by an armed crew, forced to go 7 miles out of her way to the port, and was there under pressure of Captain Quigley, against the opinion originally expressed of the collector, subjected to a fine of $400 with costs, and detained there, as I shall notice hereafter, until her voyage was substantially broken up. I am confident Her Majesty's Government will concur with me in the opinion that, as a question of international law, aside from treaty and other rights, the arrest and detention under the circumstances of Captain Landry and of his vessel were in violation of the law of nations as well as the law of humanity, and that on this ground alone the fine and the costs should be refunded and the parties suffering be indemnified for their losses thereby incurred.

It is not irrelevant, on such an issue as the present, to inquire into the official position of Captain Quigley, "of the Canadian cruiser Terror." He was, as the term "Canadian cruiser" used by him enables us to conclude, not an officer in Her Majesty's distinctive service. He was not the commander of a revenue cutter, for the head of the customs service disavowed him. Yet he was arresting and boarding, in defiance of law, a vessel there seeking shelter, over-influencing the collector of the port into the imposition of a fine, hauling down with his own hand the flag of the United States, which was displayed over the vessel, and enforcing arbitrarily an additional period of detention after the deposit had been made, simply because the captain of the vessel refused to obey him by executing an order insulting to the flag which the vessel bore. If armed cruisers are employed in seizing, harassing, and humiliating storm-bound vessels of the United States on Canadian coasts, breaking up their voyages and mulcting them with fines and costs, it is important for reasons presently to be specified that this Government should be advised of the fact.

From Her Majesty's Government redress is asked. And that redress, as I shall have occasion to say hereafter, is not merely the indemnification of the parties suffering by Captain Quigley's actions, but his withdrawal from the waters where the outrages I represent to you have been committed.

I have already said that the claims thus presented could be abundantly sustained by the law of nations, aside from treaty and other rights. But I am not willing to rest the case on the law of nations. It is essential that the issue between United States fishing vessels and the "cruiser Terror" should be examined in all its bearings, and settled in regard not merely to the general law of nations, but to the particular rights of the parties aggrieved.

It is a fact that the fishing vessel Marion Grimes had as much right under the special relations of Great Britain and the United States to enter the harbor of Shelburne as had the Canadian cruiser. The fact that the Grimes was liable to penalties for the abuse of such right of entrance does not disprove its existence. Captain Quigley is certainly liable to penalties for his misconduct on the occasion referred to. Captain Landry was not guilty of misconduct in entering and seeking to leave that harbor, and had abused no privilege. But whether liable or no for subsequent abuse of the rights, I maintain that the right of free entrance into that port, to obtain shelter, and whatever is incident thereto, belonged as much to the American fishing vessel as to the Canadian cruiser.

The basis of this right is thus declared by an eminent jurist and statesman, Mr. R. R. Livingston, the first Secretary of State appointed by the Continental Congress, in instructions issued on January 7, 1782, to Dr. Franklin, then at Paris, intrusted by the United States with the negotiation of articles of peace with Great Britain:

The arguments on which the people of America found their claim to fish on the banks of Newfoundland arise, first, from their having once formed a part of the British Empire, in which state they always enjoyed as fully as the people of Britain themselves the right of fishing on those banks. They have shared in all the wars for the extension of that right, and Britain could with no more justice have excluded them from the enjoyment of it (even supposing that one nation could possess it to the exclusion of another) while they formed a part of that Empire than they could exclude the people of London or Bristol. If so, the only inquiry is, how have we lost this right? If we were tenants in common with Great Britain while united with her, we still continue so, unless by our own act we have relinquished our title. Had we parted with mutual consent, we should doubtless have made partition of our common rights by treaty. But the oppressions of Great Britain forced us to a separation (which must be admitted, or we have no right to be independent); and it can not certainly be contended that those oppressions abridged our rights or gave new ones to Britain. Our rights, then, are not invalidated by this separation, more particularly as we have kept up our claim from the commencement of the war, and assigned the attempt of Great Britain to exclude us from the fisheries, as one of the causes of our recurring to arms.

As I had occasion to show in my note to the British minister in the case of the Everett Steele, of which a copy is hereto annexed, this "tenancy in common," held by citizens of the United States in the fisheries, they were to "continue to enjoy" under the preliminary articles of 1782, as well as under the treaty of peace of 1783; and this right, as a right of entrance in those waters, was reserved to them, though with certain limitations in its use, by the treaty of 1818. I might here content myself with noticing that the treaty of 1818, herein reciting a principle of the law of nations as well as ratifying a right previously possessed by fishermen of the United States, expressly recognizes the right of these fishermen to enter the "bays or harbors" of Her Majesty's Canadian dominions, "for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein." The extent of other recognitions of rights in the same clause need not here be discussed. At present it is sufficient to say that the placing an armed cruiser at the mouth of a harbor in which the United States fishing vessels are accustomed and are entitled to seek shelter on their voyages, such cruiser being authorized to arrest and board our fishing vessels seeking such shelter, is an infraction not merely of the law of nations, but of a solemn treaty stipulation. That, so far as concerns the fishermen so affected, its consequences are far-reaching and destructive, it is not necessary here to argue. Fishing vessels only carry provisions enough for each particular voyage. If they are detained several days on their way to the fishing banks the venture is broken up. The arrest and detention of one or two operates upon all. They cannot as a class, with their limited capital and resources, afford to run risks so ruinous. Hence, rather than subject themselves to even the chances of suffering the wrongs inflicted by Captain Quigley, "of the Canadian cruiser Terror," on some of their associates, they might prefer to abandon their just claim to the shelter consecrated to them alike by humanity, ancient title, the law of nations, and by treaty, and face the gravest peril and the wildest seas in order to reach their fishing grounds. You will therefore represent to Her Majesty's Government that the placing Captain Quigley in the harbor of Shelburne to inflict wrongs and humiliation on United States fishermen there seeking shelter is, in connection with other methods of annoyance and injury, expelling United States fishermen from waters, access to which, of great importance in the pursuit of their trade, is pledged to them by Great Britain, not merely as an ancient right, but as part of a system of international settlement.

It is impossible to consider such a state of things without grave anxiety. You can scarcely represent this too strongly to Her Majesty's Government.

It must be remembered, in considering this system, so imperiled, that the preliminaries to the article of 1782, afterwards adopted as the treaty of 1783, were negotiated at Paris by Dr. Franklin, representing the United States, and Mr. Richard Oswald, representing Lord Shelburne, then colonial secretary, and afterwards, when the treaty was finally agreed on, prime minister. It must be remembered, also, that Lord Shelburne, while maintaining the rights of the colonies when assailed by Great Britain, was nevertheless unwilling that their independence should be recognized prior to the treaty of peace, as if it were a concession wrung from Great Britain by the exigencies of war. His position was that this recognition should form part of a treaty of partition, by which, as is stated by the court in Sutton v. Sutton (1 Rus. & M., 675), already noticed by me, the two great sections of the British Empire agreed to separate, in their articles of separation recognizing to each other's citizens or subjects certain territorial rights. Thus the continuance of the rights of the United States in the fisheries was recognized and guaranteed; and it was also declared that the navigation of the Mississippi, whose sources were, in the imperfect condition of geographical knowledge of that day, supposed to be in British territory, should be free and open to British subjects and to citizens of the United States. Both powers also agreed that there should be no further prosecutions or confiscations based on the war; and in this way were secured the titles to property held in one country by persons remaining loyal to the other. This was afterwards put in definite shape by the following article (Article X) of Jay's treaty:

It is agreed that British subjects who now hold lands in the territories of the United States, and American citizens who now hold lands in the dominion of His Majesty, shall continue to hold them according to the nature and tenure of their respective estates and titles therein, and may grant, sell, or devise the same to whom they please in like manner as if they were natives; and that neither they nor their heirs or assigns shall, so far as may respect the said lands and the legal remedies incident thereto, be regarded as aliens.

It was this article which the court in Sutton v. Sutton, above referred to, held to be one of the incidents of the "separation" of 1783, of perpetual obligation, unless rescinded by the parties, and hence not abrogated by the war of 1812.

It is not, however, on the continuousness of the reciprocities, recognized by the treaty of 1783, that I desire now to dwell. What I am anxious you should now impress upon the British Government is the fact that, as the fishery clause in this treaty, a clause continued in the treaty of 1818, was a part of a system of reciprocal recognitions which are interdependent, the abrogation of this clause, not by consent, but by acts of violence and of insult, such as those of the Canadian cruiser Terror, would be fraught with consequences which I am sure could not be contemplated by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain without immediate action being taken to avert them. To the extent of the system thus assailed I now direct attention.

When Lord Shelburne and Dr. Franklin negotiated the treaty of peace, the area on which its recognitions were to operate was limited. They covered, on the one hand, the fisheries; but the map of Canada in those days, as studied by Lord Shelburne, gives but a very imperfect idea of the territory near which the fisheries lay. Halifax was the only port of entry on the coast; the New England States were there and the other nine were provinces, but no organized governments to the west of them. It was on this area only, as well as on Great Britain, that the recognitions and guarantees of the treaty were at first to operate. Yet comparatively small as this field may now seem, it was to the preservation over it of certain reciprocal rights that the attention of the negotiators was mainly given. And the chief of these rights were: (1) the fisheries, a common enjoyment in which by both parties took nothing from the property of either; and (2) the preservation to the citizens or subjects of each country of title to property in the other.

Since Lord Shelburne's premiership this system of reciprocity and mutual convenience has progressed under the treaties of 1842 and 1846, so as to give to Her Majesty's subjects, as well as to citizens of the United States, the free use of the river Detroit or both sides of the island Bois

Blanc, and between that island and the American and Canadian shores, and all the several channels and passages between the various islands lying near the junction of the river St. Clair with the lake of that name. By the treaty of 1846 the principle of common border privileges was extended to the Pacific Ocean. The still existing commercial articles of the treaty of 1871 further amplified those mutual benefits by embracing the use of the inland waterways of either country, and defining enlarged privileges of bonded transit by land and water through the United States for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Dominion. And not only by treaties has the development of Her Majesty's American dominion, especially to the westward, been aided by the United States, but the vigorous contemporaneous growth under the enterprise and energy of citizens of the Northwestern States and Territories of the United States has been productive of almost equal advantages to the adjacent possessions of the British Crown, and the favoring legislation by Congress has created benefits in the way of railway facilities which under the sanction of State laws have been and are freely and beneficially enjoyed by the inhabitants of the Dominion and their Government.

Under this system of energetic and co-operative development the coast of the Pacific has been reached by the transcontinental lines of railway within the territorial limits of the respective countries, and, as I have stated, the United States being the pioneers in this remarkable progress, have been happily able to anticipate and incidentally to promote the subsequent success of their neighbors in British America.

It will be scarcely necessary for you to say to Lord Iddesleigh that the United States, in thus aiding in the promotion of the prosperity, and in establishing the security of Her Majesty's Canadian dominions, claims no particular credit. It was prompted, in thus opening its territory to Canadian use, and incidentally for Canadian growth, in large measure by the consciousness that such good offices are part of a system of mutual convenience and advantage growing up under the treaties of peace and assisted by the natural forces of friendly contiguity. Therefore it is that we witness with surprise and painful apprehension the United States fishermen hampered in their enjoyment of their undoubted rights in the fisheries.

The hospitalities of Canadian coasts and harbors, which are ours by ancient right, and which these treaties confirm, cost Canada nothing and are productive of advantage to her people. Yet, in defiance of the most solemn obligations, in utter disregard of the facilities and assistances granted by the United States, and in a way especially irritating, a deliberate plan of annoyances and aggressions has been instituted and plainly exhibited during the last fishing season—a plan calculated to drive these fishermen from shores where, without injury to others, they prosecute their own legitimate and useful industry.

It is impossible not to see that if the unfriendly and unjust system, of which the cases now presented are part, is sustained by Her Majesty's Government, serious results will almost necessarily ensue, great as is the desire of this Government to maintain the relations of good neighborhood. Unless Her Majesty's Government shall effectually check these aggressions a general conviction on the part of the people of the United States may naturally be apprehended that, as treaty stipulations in behalf of our fishermen, based on their ancient rights, cease to be respected, the maintenance of the comprehensive system of mutual commercial accommodation between Canada and the United States could not reasonably be expected.

In contemplation of so unhappy and undesirable a condition of affairs I express the earnest hope that Her Majesty's Government will take immediate measures to avert its possibility.

With no other purpose than the preservation of peace and good will and the promotion of international amity, I ask you to represent to the statesmen charged with the administration of Her Majesty's Government the necessity of putting an end to the action of Canadian officials in excluding American fishermen from the enjoyment of their treaty rights in the harbors and waters of the maritime provinces of British North America.

The action of Captain Quigley in hauling down the flag of the United States from the Marion Grimes has naturally aroused much resentment in this country, and has been made the subject of somewhat excited popular comment; and it is wholly impossible to account for so extraordinary and unwarranted an exhibition of hostility and disrespect by that official. I must suppose that only his want of knowledge of what is due to international comity and propriety and overheated zeal as an officer of police could have permitted such action; but I am confident that, upon the facts being made known by you to Her Majesty's Government, it will at once be disavowed, a fitting rebuke be administered, and the possibility of a repetition of Captain Quigley's offense be prevented.

It seems hardly necessary to say that it is not until after condemnation by a prize court that the national flag of a vessel seized as a prize of war is hauled down by her captor. Under the fourteenth section of the twentieth chapter of the Navy Regulations of the United States the rule in such cases is laid down as follows:

A neutral vessel, seized, is to wear the flag of her own country until she is adjudged to be a lawful prize by a competent court.

But, a fortiori, is this principle to apply in cases of customs seizures, where fines only are imposed and where no belligerency whatever exists. In the port of New York, and other of the countless harbors of the United States, are merchant vessels to-day flying the British flag which from time to time are liable to penalties for violations of customs laws and regulations. But I have yet to learn that any official, assuming, directly or indirectly, to represent the Government of the United States, would under such circumstances order down or forcibly haul down the British flag from a vessel charged with such irregularity; and I now assert that if such act were committed, this Government, after being informed of it, would not wait for a complaint from Great Britain, but would at once promptly reprimand the parties concerned in such misconduct and would cause proper expression of regret to be made.

A scrupulous regard for international respect and courtesy should mark the intercourse of the officials of these two great and friendly nations, and anything savoring of the contrary should be unhesitatingly and emphatically rebuked. I cannot doubt that these views will find ready acquiescence from those charged with the administration of the Government of Great Britain.

You are at liberty to make Lord Iddesleigh acquainted with the contents of this letter, and, if desired, leave with him a copy.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

T. F. BAYARD.

No. 462.]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, November 20, 1886.

SIR: On the 6th of the present month I wrote you concerning the treatment of the United States fishing schooner Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, Mass., on October 7, 1886, in the outer harbor of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, by Captain Quigley, of the Canadian cruiser Terror.

I received yesterday and now inclose a copy of the statement made under oath by Captain Landry of the Marion Grimes, and present it as supplementary and confirmatory of my former communication on the subject.

I am, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

I, Alexander Landry, master of schooner Marion Grimes, of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say:

That on Monday, October 4, 1886, I sailed from Gloucester on a fishing trip to Western Bank. On the night of Thursday, October 7, the wind blowing almost a gale from the southeast and a heavy sea running, we came to anchor in the entrance of Shelburne Harbor about midnight for shelter. We were then fully 10 miles from the custom-house at Shelburne. At 4.30 a. m. of the next day we hove up our anchor to continue our voyage, the wind having died away almost to a calm. Just as we had got our anchor on the bow an officer and boat's crew from Canadian cruiser Terror (which laid off Sand Point some 3 miles above us) came on board and told me we must come to anchor at once and go to the custom-house at Shelburne and enter and clear. I at once anchored the vessel and taking my boat and two of my crew started for the custom-house. When we reached the Terror, Captain Quigley ordered me to come on board his vessel, leave my boat and men, and go with him in his boat to Shelburne. I arrived at the custom-house at about 8.30 a. m., and waited until 9 a. m., when Collector Attwood arrived. I then entered and cleared my vessel and was about to pay the charges and depart, when Captain Quigley entered the office and told the collector he ought not to clear my vessel as I had attempted to leave the harbor without reporting, and that the case should be laid before the authorities at Ottawa. Collector Attwood then withheld my papers until a decision should be received from Ottawa. I then tried to find the American consul, calling at his office three times during the day, and was unable to find him. But in the afternoon found a Mr. Blatchford in the consul's office, who informed me that my vessel had been fined $400, and I wired my owners accordingly. At 4 p. m. returned with Captain Quigley on board the Terror, and when on board he informed me that my vessel was fined $400.

He then sent a boat's crew on board my schooner, telling me to go with them, but detaining my boat and two men, and ordered me to take my schooner up to Shelburne at once. We started and got as far as Sand Point, and came to anchor for want of wind at about 10 o'clock p. m., and alongside the Terror. At 3 o'clock a. m. on Saturday, October 9, accompanied by the Terror, we started again for Shelburne inner harbor, arriving there about 7 o'clock a. m., and then the boat's crew left us and my two men came on board in my boat. I then went on shore and found the American consul, who informed me he could not give me any assistance. During Saturday, Sunday, and Monday I awaited dispatches from my owner in regard to the payment of the fine. On Monday morning, it being the anniversary of my birthday, I hoisted the American flag to the mast-head, and immediately Captain Quigley (speaking from the deck of his vessel) ordered me to haul it down, which I did; but after thinking the matter over, I concluded that as no regular seizure of my vessel had been made, no broad arrow put upon my mast, but my vessel only detained until a deposit of the fine had been made, Captain Quigley had acted beyond his authority, and acting on this conclusion I again set my flag at the mast-head. Captain Quigley again ordered me to haul down the flag, which I refused to do; upon which he came on board my vessel with eight men, and asked who gave the authority to hoist that flag. I replied that I took the authority myself. He then said, "Well, I'll haul it down myself," which I forbid him to do; but without heeding me he immediately hauled down the flag, unbent it, unrove the halliards, and passed the flag to me. I passed it back to him, telling him as he had hauled it down he better take charge of it himself. He then ordered his men to haul the vessel into the wharf, which they did, and Collector Attwood came on board and put a broad arrow ($\blacktriangledown$) on the mainmast and placed two watchmen on the wharf to watch the vessel. On Tuesday, October 12, at 10 a. m., Collector Attwood informed me that the vessel was released, but I must pay the bill for watching, amounting to \$8, and to save further delay I did so. On Tuesday evening, October 12, sailed for the Western Bank in continuation of my voyage.

STATE DEPARTMENT, April 9, 1886.

The question of the right of American vessels engaged in fishing on the high seas to enter Canadian ports for the purpose of shipping crews may possibly involve construction of treaty with Great Britain. I expect to attain such an understanding as will relieve our fishermen from all doubts or risk in the exercise of the ordinary commercial privileges of friendly ports, to which, under existing laws of both countries, I consider their citizens to be mutually entitled free from molestation.

No. 74.

Mr. Woodbury to Mr. Bayard.

BOSTON May 21, 1886. [Received May 24.]

SIR: In behalf of Jesse Lewis, esq., I inclose a statement by him and the crew of the D. J. Adams of the damages inuring to them by the seizure of that schooner by the British authorities near the Gut of Annapolis, and her detention at Digby, for an alleged violation of the convention of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain. Mr. Lewis employed counsel at Halifax, who has informed him that there are "two suits pending, one in rem, under section 2, imperial act 1819, for alleged violation of the treaty 1818, act of 1819, and the Canadian fishery acts of 1868, 1870, 1871; no proceedings taken yet for violation of customs act other than seizure and detention by customs officer at Digby. The charge in this respect, I believe, is under sections 25 and 29, Canada customs act, chap. 12, 1883. The other suit against captain personally, and is for a penalty under section 4, imperial act, 1819."

The information I have from the master is that the Adams was arrested some miles from the town of Digby and ordered into the Lansdowne by an armed boat, she being at that time beating out of the gut against a head tide from an anchorage five or six miles up the basin beyond Digby, and was in the possession of the captors from the Lansdowne before she changed her course, and headed by their command into Digby. No seizure was made by any custom-house officer whilst the master controlled the vessel, and the owner and master are in profound ignorance of any such proceeding, or of the grounds, except the telegram which I cite above, and his counsel in Halifax has not yet been able to be more definite. Mr. Lewis, through his friends, has furnished security for costs to enable him to interpose a defense in the admiralty court against the libel in rem, based on the treaty of 1818. His vessel had been lately extensively repaired, and he has no means to bond her. Indeed, as it is in the power of the authorities there to seize her over and over, it would be impossible to know in what amount he would need to find security before he could get the vessel out of the hands of the provincial authorities—out of their local jurisdiction.

The only cause of seizure avowed is that the master "bought bait" somewhere along the coast and received it on the vessel. The undersigned has not discovered any statute forbidding a master to buy bait or anything else in a British Canadian port, nor one that subjects a vessel of the United States to forfeiture for exporting bait from such ports. It is supposed the provincials assert the doctrine that trading in their ports either is a violation of the treaty of 1818 or of the act of 1819. It cannot be that a private person can in the inferior courts of a foreign country undertake to defend the American construction of that treaty against the suit of the Crown, who alone is imperative in its courts of admiralty as to matters of treaty or maritime privilege; nor can it be that in such inferior courts the consonance of the act of 1819, with the principles of the treaty of 1818, or the law of nations, can be put in issue by the citizen of the United States defending his property; it is only the United States in its sovereignty that can arraign before the sovereignty of Great Britain the question whether the act of 1819 conflicts with or impairs the American right under the convention or the law of nations. My client would not humiliate his native land so much as to ask its Executive to appear by counsel before a local inferior tribunal of the other party to the convention of 1818 and submit to its decision any question affecting the sovereignty of the contracts it had made with Great Britain. It seems, then, to my perhaps imperfect understanding of the principles of national law, that my client must rely upon his own Government for defense and redress for the outrage upon his property, and he requests the intervention of the Executive as the only adequate protection he can have against the aggressive spoliations of his property by subordinate British officials. It is proper also that I should invite your attention to the evident fact that the cause put forth is the alleged shortcoming of the United States in not living up to its convention, but that the incident is the exercise over the persons and property of private citizens of the United States of an absolute control to forfeit the one and punish the other without the consent of the United States, and without even this country having agreed to the interpretations shadowed or expressed by the imperial act of 1819.

SIR: In the matter of Mr. Lewis's statement of damages incurred by the seizure of the D. J. Adams, I yesterday transmitted some papers sent me from Gloucester, perhaps without as mature consideration as they should have received. Mr. Lewis's claim to the fish caught, as I take the law to be, is that of owner, but the law makes his ownership a trust to divide among the sharesmen their share of the net proceeds of the fish when received by him.

The master and crew appear, claiming their loss by the breaking up of the trip. This is their own adventure, and I must not be considered as their counsel in this matter, nor as in any way sanctioning their statement as to their citizenship, residence, &c. I have to-day from Gloucester the official fact that the custom-house at Digby have seized under the sections referred to in the telegram quoted in my last, together with a reference to sections which make this seizure for a $400-penalty a lien on the vessel.

I learn Mr. Meagher, the counsel of Mr. Lewis at Halifax, is in town, and hope to see him within a day or two for consultation, and will advise the Department of our views as to that; meanwhile we are hardly ripe for any step of reclamation.

I beg you to believe that Mr. Lewis and myself wish to conform in our action to the wishes and policy of the Department, and to rely on its generous efforts to protect his property.

SIR: Learning by telegraphic news that your consideration of the provincial seizures has been somewhat delayed by the want of documentary evidence, I inclose affidavits this morning received from Eastport relative to the schooner Jennie and Julia of that port. They were sent me by a reputable merchant. I am in no way interested in the vessel, nor do I know who are her owners. If there is any service which the members of the American Fishery Union or its officers can render that would be of use in your efforts to obtain redress from Canadian annoyances, they will very cheerfully be at your service.

I am, &c.,

Statement of Capt. William H. Farris, master of schooner Jennie and Julia, of Eastport.

I, William H. Farris, master of the schooner Jennie and Julia, a vessel of the United States hailing from Eastport, Me., cleared from Eastport on 17th inst., taking out a register, crew list and all papers required for a foreign voyage. I left Eastport at about 4 o'clock, p. m., arriving at Digby, Nova Scotia, at about 10 o'clock of the forenoon of the 18th inst., dropping anchor in Digby Harbor. I immediately went ashore and reported to United States Consular Agent Stewart, and delivered all my papers to him. After looking over the papers Mr. Stewart informed me that he did not think he could do anything for me, except if my vessel was seized or cast away, he could send myself and crew home. He further said that he did not know whether he was reappointed under this new administration or not.

I then took my papers from the consul and went to the custom-house and found the door locked. Turning from the door I met the collector, Veits, and his son coming to the office. He asked if I was Captain Farris. I answered that I was. He said, "What are you here for—bait?" I answered, "I am here for fresh herring." He said, "You can't have any." I then asked him to look at my papers. He examined them and asked what I had this kind of a register for. I answered, "After stating to the collector at Eastport what I wanted to do, he gave me these papers as the proper ones." The collector, Mr. Veits, then said, "You can't buy fresh herring here for any purpose."

I said to him that I had two smoke-houses at home empty, and I would like to buy fresh herring to fill them up. He answered, "You cannot buy herring for any purpose."

I then said to him, "If I can't buy herring I will take my papers and go home"; and the collector said, "No; wait till afternoon and then I will let you know."

At about 3 o'clock I went to the custom-house again, when the collector told me that he had telegraphed to headquarters, but had received no answer.

About 7 o'clock p. m. the collector informed me that he could allow me to enter my vessel but could not give a clearance. I then said to him, "If I buy one barrel of fresh herring I am liable to seizure" and the collector answered, "Yes."

I then went on board my vessel and started for home.

Statement of Arthur Farris, mate to the schooner Jennie and Julia.

The Jennie and Julia sailed from Eastport, May 17, for Digby, N. S., arriving there about 10 o'clock of the morning of the 18th. Immediately after dropping anchor, the captain went on shore. About half an hour after a steam tug came alongside, and a man on board, whom I afterwards learned was the collector of the port of Digby, took out a note-book and wrote something in it; then threw a line aboard, to which I paid no attention. He then asked, "What are you doing here?" I answered, "We are here to buy herring." He then asked me, if I did not know we were violating the law. I answered, "No, I think not." He then asked me if I did not know we were liable to seizure. I then told him that we were under register, and had cleared for Digby, to return to Eastport when we left Digby. He then asked if I was captain. I told him no, the captain had gone ashore to the custom-house. He then asked me what we were doing with fishing-gear on deck. I told him to ask the captain and he would tell him. The collector then said, "I warn you not to buy herring."

SIR: Your letter of the 22d instant has been received, and the affidavits sent in the matter of the application of the Jennie and Julia, of Eastport, Me., to purchase fresh herring at Digby, Nova Scotia, will be placed on file and duly considered in connection with the questions involved.

This Department will be at all times most willing to receive reports from citizens of the United States respecting any unusual treatment they may encounter abroad, and duly to investigate and endeavor to remedy any alleged diminution of their lawful rights.

*Mr. William H. Jordan to Mr. Bayard.*GLOUCESTER, MASS., June 4, 1886. [Received June 7.]

SIR: We see by recent dispatches from Halifax that the Canadian Government propose seizing schooner James A. Garfield whenever they have an opportunity, for having purchased bait and ice within their jurisdiction as they allege. The captain of the Garfield denies their charge of purchasing bait and ice, but that will make no difference about the seizure of the vessel, and if seized will be condemned whether guilty or not, judging from our past experience, as we had a vessel seized some years since (schooner A. I. Franklin) and condemned for alleged violation of their laws, and we had absolute knowledge that their charge was not correct in whole or in part. What we want to know is this: Can we be sustained by our Government in resisting capture to the best of our ability, where we are sure we have not violated their laws, and so instruct our captains?

We have another case, occurring about four weeks ago. The captain of schooner Annie H. Jordan wished to purchase bait at St. Andrews, New Brunswick. He had a permit to touch and trade, but being afraid of trouble he anchored the vessel outside the three-mile limit and went ashore in a dory to enter vessel at custom-house. The collector refused to allow him to enter his vessel, and ordered him to leave forthwith, saying they would have nothing to do with his vessel.

Yours, respectfully,

WM. H. JORDAN,
Secretary American Fishing Union
(Firm of Rowe & Jordan).

SIR: I inclose the master of the schooner Alice M. Jordan's affidavit for your consideration.

Yours, truly, &c.,

GEO. STEELE,
President American Fishery Union.

[Inclosure No. 1.]

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

District of Massachusetts:

I, Alexander Hains, of Gloucester, State of Massachusetts, on my oath do say that I was master of the schooner Annie M. Jordan, enrolled and licensed at Gloucester, Mass, when she sailed on a fishing voyage for cod and halibut on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1886, and further say that before I sailed I applied at the custom-house for and received a permit to touch and trade at foreign ports during my said voyage.

I further say that on the 4th day of May, 1886, I arrived and anchored at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, in the Dominion of Canada, and went ashore to the custom-house at that port, where I reported my arrival; applied to the collector, or person representing the collector, to enter my vessel for purposes of purchasing and exporting certain merchandise therein.

Said person refused to receive my papers and admit me to an entry, saying my papers were of no account. I asked why, and stated I had a permit to touch and trade from the United States authorities at Gloucester.

It was replied to me by said custom-house officer that it made no difference; my vessel had no business in these waters, and that she would be seized by the Canadian authorities if she was here when the cutter came into port. Being thus refused an entry, I returned to my vessel and left the port.

I arrived in Gloucester, Mass., May 28, 1886. I further say that damage to my voyage and loss has accrued to the owners of said vessel, Rowe & Jordan, of Gloucester, from the refusal to admit her to an entry, and I further say that I anchored in said port and reported in good faith for purpose of trade, under the belief that the laws of Great Britain gave to vessels of the United States all the privilege of trade and export from British North America which British vessels enjoyed.

ALEXANDER HAINS,
Master of Schooner Annie M. Jordan.

MASSACHUSETTS, Essex, ss :

JUNE 5, 1886.

Personally appeared Alexander Hains, and made oath to the truth of the above statement.

Before me.

No. 80.

Mr. Steele to Mr. Bayard..

GLOUCESTER, MASS., June 5, 1886. [Received June 7.]

SIR: I take the liberty to write to you in regard to the present relation of American fisheries with England and her provinces.

I first desire to call attention to the reciprocity treaty of 1854, during which the Government paid fisherman a bounty of $4 per ton, which was an assistance to us, and helped in part offset the remittance of duties on foreign fish during that period.

During the treaty of Washington, which expired by limitation, we received no bounty from our Government, that having been abolished in 1866, and we felt the effect of the second reciprocity treaty more than the one covering the years 1854 to 1866 inclusive.

We have no occasion to regret the action of the Government in allowing the treaty of Washington to expire by limitation, and we are also pleased at the action of the House of Representatives in granting the President the power to deny to foreign nations the same commercial rights denied us in their ports.

If it is the pleasure of the President to use that power, I think it would meet the approval of every person interested in the fishing business, both the property owner and the individual fisherman, but if this power to pass retaliatory measures the President does not see fit to use, we earnestly beg that the settlement of so important a matter will not be left with ministers or commissioners to arbitrate on our existing fishery rights or make new treaty definitions, because we have seen that diplomacy is untrained in commercial affairs, and incapable of appreciating the business and commercial effects following contracts concerning them, and we know that long or permanent contracts on such subjects are a mere gambling with interests where consequences can rarely be foreseen at the time they are made.

We have an invincible dread that in such negotiations in the future as in the past our interests would be sacrificed to Canadian interests.

We think the powers Congress has delegated to the President are enough for the protection of our right to trade with Canadian ports, if he use them with his usual firmness and sense of justice. Should he be reluctant to do this, still we do not desire to obtain privileges of trade by another treaty. We prefer to accept the present situation, even if more seizures and more exclusion from Canadian ports are practiced on our vessels touching there for trade. We had better lose twenty vessels or even fifty, than that we should enter into another such treaty with England.

We know full well that Canada would use any and all means, no matter how barbarous, to drive our Government into a reciprocity treaty again, and we think this is the object of her present conduct.

We thank you for furnishing counsel to look after the individual interests at the trial of these cases in the admiralty court at Halifax, as no individual ought to be compelled to bear the burden of cases of this nature in foreign courts.

I desire to bring to your attention that the mackerel fleet of the United States will sail from about the 15th of June to July 1, for the eastward; a few have already gone.

The Canadians have a fleet of cruisers as they say to guard their three-mile limit from the intrusion of our craft, but as we think to prey on our vessels without regard to the distance of three miles from the shores. Owners here instruct their masters to keep out of the three-mile limit in good faith. It is American property that is at risk and the American right on the high seas, outside of the three-mile question, that is to be guarded from encroachment.

The "men-of-war" of the United States should be at hand to protect our flag, our citizens and their property.

What are the spoils derived from the confiscation and dividing of the prey of half a dozen bait-buying smacks entering their ports, compared to the chances of capture among three to five hundred sail of mackerelmen who may lawfully fish within a fathom outside of the three-mile limit, and on whom Canadian law devolves the burden of proof, that where they lay was more than three miles? Whilst by the same law the seizure is primary proof that the prize was within the three-mile limit. If a hundred sail were in sight at the seizure, what means has the arrested master to ascertain their names to obtain their testimony in a prize court? We are content to live by the three-mile limit honestly construed; but the Government should protect us in our lawful side of it, and secure to us an honest construction of the treaty clause.

This extract from a letter in the Boston Herald of June 4, 1886, written from Cape Breton, shows the animus of the provincials:

Three American mackerel seiners passed through the straits this morning bound for North Bay. They will be closely watched by the Howlett and customs officers. The moiety on a seizure would amount to at least $2,000, and every person in authority on the coast lies awake nights thinking how he can make an arrest of some unlucky Yankee fisherman. If sufficient ground is given there is not a doubt but what seizures will be made, as the bounty is a very substantial incentive outside of the credit to be gained therefrom. Yankees will do well to be cautious and avoid "the appearance of evil."

If a duty of 1 cent per pound could be put upon fresh and salt fish the Canadians would stop their overt acts and be brought to a realizing sense of the commercial rights of nations, quicker than any other way.

The fact is Canada has nothing whatever that she can compensate us with, for the privilege of the markets of the United States free for her fish.

Canada is fighting from business motives and nothing more, and if she succeeds in bullying the United States into any agreement by which she can bring in her fish free, said fish untaxed and bounty-fed with fishing grounds in close proximity, while we are heavily taxed, it would not take more than ten or twelve years to wipe out the Atlantic fisheries.

As well to allow English men-of-war to enter our ports and destroy our vessels and other property, as for us to see the humiliating spectacle of our fishing industry passing under the control of the English flag, through the default of our Government, an industry that all other Governments afford ample protection.

My own personal experience as owner of twelve fishing vessels; an experience in this business, on this coast, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, on the Newfoundland coast, and on the Grand and Western Banks, directly and indirectly since the year 1848, proves to me conclusively that in what I have here written I voice the sentiments of every man in the fishing business, whether owner or fisherman.

I am, respected sir, yours, very respectfully,

GEO. STEELE.

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Steele.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 7, 1886.

SIR: I have to-day received your letter dated the 5th instant, accompanied by the affidavit of the master of the fishing schooner Alice M. Jordan, of Gloucester Mass., alleging the refusal by the collector of customs at the port of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, to allow the entry of said vessel, duly documented as a fishing vessel, with permission to touch and trade at any foreign port or place during her voyage, the object of such entry, as stated by the master of the schooner, being the purchase of certain merchandise.

Although not disclosed by the affidavits, I suppose the merchandise in question was fresh fish for use as bait in deep-sea fishing.

I have made instant representation, accompanied by earnest protest, to the British minister at this capital, of this unlawful withholding of commercial rights from an American vessel and her owners, and of the loss and damage thereby sustained, for which, as I have informed him, the Government of Great Britain will be held responsible.

I have, &c.,

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 8, 1886.

SIR: I have received your letter of June 5, giving at length your views upon the present "relation of American fisheries with England and her provinces."

Your discussion of the situation is comprehensive, and will receive due consideration.

The chief remedy you propose—the levy of a tariff duty of 1 cent per pound upon fresh and salt fish—is, of course, solely for the consideration of Congress.

The object and earnest endeavor of the Executive will be to secure American citizens the full enjoyment of all the rights under treaties and law without molestation, and no effort to that end has been or will be lacking on the part of those charged with the administration of the laws.

I am, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 8, 1886.

SIR: Your letter of the 4th instant was received yesterday, and that portion of it which relates to the refusal of the collector of the port of St. Andrews, New Brunswick, to sell bait to the captain of the Annie H. Jordan has already been made the subject of a letter from this Department to George Steele, esq., president of the American Fishery Union, of which you sign yourself the secretary.

It is impossible to meet all the rumors of proposed unfriendly action by the Canadian authorities towards the fishing vessels of the United States. Each case will be properly treated as it actually occurs.

But it is very clear that as the United States expect and require implicit obedience to their own laws within their jurisdiction, and severely reprehend and punish forcible resistance by individuals to their execution, in like manner they expect their citizens and counsel them, when within foreign jurisdiction, to obey strictly the laws and regulations there in force, and to abstain from any resort to force as a remedy for supposed injustice or irregularity.

It is the purpose and intention of those charged with the execution of the law of the United States to see that law-abiding American citizens are secure in the enjoyment of their rights everywhere on land and sea, and when such rights are invaded under public authority to obtain redress.

I am, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

Capt. Jesse Lewis to Mr. Bayard.

GLOUCESTER, June 26, 1886. [Received June 28.]

DEAR SIR: I write for information as regards the seizure of my vessel, the schooner David J. Adams, by Canadians. What I want to know is what is to be done, whether my vessel is condemned as my loss, or if there is any way that we could demand a trial to see just what the consequences will be, or why I cannot bond my vessel as I want here to use. I am a poor man, and that vessel is my only support. Now, I think it is injustice to me as matters now stand. Please answer this letter soon, as I want something done about it.

Yours, very respectfully,

JESSE LEWIS.

No. 85.

Mr. Bayard to Capt. Jesse Lewis.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 30, 1886.

SIR: I have your letter dated the 26th instant, stating the severe loss to you occasioned by the summary seizure by the Canadian authorities, in Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia, of your fishing schooner, the David J. Adams, which, as you say, is all the property you possess, and constitutes your "only support."

It is proper that I should inform you that the demand was made upon the Government of Great Britain for the release of the vessel, coupled with a notification that that Government would be held answerable for all loss and damage caused by her seizure and detention.

Your case commands my sincere sympathy, and ever since it was brought to my knowledge has had the constant consideration of this Department and of the consular officers of the United States in the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. William L. Putnam, of Portland, Me., in conjunction with Mr. George W. Biddle, of Philadelphia, has been engaged by this Government as its counsel in respect of its rights and duties which may be brought in question by reason of the seizure of your vessel.

If you will communicate with Mr. Putnam he will no doubt give you all information in his power in relation to the laws under which your property was so seized, and suggest what steps should be taken to protect your private interest in the premises.

Moreover, I suggest that you should carefully secure evidence of all the facts connected with the presence of your vessel in Annapolis Basin, and of the absence of any unlawful act or intent on the part of her master, crew, or owner, as well as proof of the actual loss and injury sustained by you by reason of this harsh, and, as I believe, wholly unwarranted action by the Canadian officials; such evidence to be obtained and preserved as the basis of claims for your remuneration.

More than one year ago I sought to protect our citizens engaged in fishing from the results which might attend any possible misunderstanding between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States as to the measure of their mutual rights and privileges in the territorial waters of British North America, after the termination of the fishery articles of the treaty of Washington in June last.

It seemed to me then and seems to me now very hard that differences of opinion between the two Governments should cause loss to the honest citizens whose line of obedience might be thus rendered vague and uncertain, and their property be brought into jeopardy.

Influenced by this feeling, I procured a temporary arrangement which secured our fishermen full enjoyment of all the Canadian fisheries, free from molestation during a period which would permit discussion of a just international settlement of the whole fishery question. But other counsels prevailed, and my efforts further to protect the fishermen from such trouble as you now suffer were unavailing.

To secure for them full protection in the enjoyment of all their just rights and privileges is still my earnest intent and object, and for all losses to which they may be unlawfully subjected at the hands of the authorities of foreign Governments I shall seek and expect to obtain full redress.

I regret exceedingly the disturbance in their long-customary pursuits and the serious loss and inconvenience attendant upon a disputed construction of laws and treaties by two separate Governments; and I trust that I shall soon be enabled to secure such a clear and comprehensive declaration of agreement between those charged with the administration of the two Governments as will define the line of their rights and secure from molestation those American fishermen who, obeying the injunctions of their Government respecting subordination to the laws of foreign Governments, keep within the laws of their own country.

Reparation for all losses, unlawfully caused by foreign authority, will be made the subject of international presentation and demand.

I am, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

Cushing boarded last night 8 miles from custom-house. Brought here seized to-day. Charge, seeking bait and not reporting at custom-house. Have not bought anything. Wire instructions.

C. B. JEWETT.

She left here last Tuesday with the understanding you had settled the right of our vessels to buy bait. How long are we to be tormented in this kind of style? If it is to continue long we should prefer to haul our vessels up. It seems to us about time the President issued his non-intercourse proclamation and settled this thing one way or the other.

Please instruct us what to do under the circumstances, as she is a valuable vessel.

*Mr. Woodbury to Mr. Bayard.*BOSTON, July 7, 1886. [Received July 10.]

SIR: I forward twelve affidavits of respectable fishermen of Gloucester laying the foundation to show that the Canadian authorities have this year, without notice, radically reversed their administration of laws toward American bait buyers and others. That thereby some of our fishermen have been entrapped and seized is well known to you. I retain a duplicate set, for use in case a suit is brought for a penalty of $400 against an assumed master of the D. J. Adams, which the customs authorities allege has been incurred.

I have sent these in the expectation that, in the varying phases these Canadian assaults on our commerce assume, these facts may be useful to the Department, if not in the matter of the D. J. Adams.

Gerroir, of Gloucester, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the United States of America, on my oath do say I am a fisherman, and in the course of my calling during the last fourteen years have entered many places and ports in Nova Scotia for the purpose of buying bait to be used by the vessel I was on in the deep-sea fishery.

I further say we were always freely allowed to purchase what bait we wanted, and before this year I never heard of or knew an instance where such vessel lying to or anchoring within the three-mile limits of the coast for such purpose was required to report at the nearest custom-house, or to make entry there, or was warned off. I have been in at the following places on that coast, viz: St. Andrews, New Brunswick; St. John, New Brunswick; Digby, Yarmouth, Barrington, Shelburne, Liverpool, La Have, Lunenburg, Halifax, Dover, Arichat, Canso, Bedeque, St. Anne, Sydney, Port Hood, Louisburg, Charlottetown, Souris, Georgetown; and further says not.

No. 89.

Mr. Willard to Mr. Bayard.

PORTLAND, ME.,

July 7, 1886. [Received July 9, 1886.]

DEAR SIR: We wired you the particulars of the seizure of our schooner George W. Cushing by the Canadian authorities. As yet we have no reply to our question as to what we should do in the matter. We suppose, however, that you are giving it the consideration that it deserves, and that we shall hear from you when you have reached a satisfactory conclusion.

This vessel we kept tied to the wharf three weeks, and only allowed her to go after we understood you had arranged matters and that our vessels could have all the privileges that we accorded to theirs. It seems that everybody here so understood it, and this is the cause of so many of our vessels calling at Nova Scotia ports for a week past. They notify us that we can have the vessel by the payment of a fine amounting to about $600, and that she is not held for a violation of the treaty of 1818, but for violation of customs regulations. This is plainly only a pretext, as they forbid our vessels the privilege of entering and purchasing supplies, as we understand their law, by the reading, it applies to vessels in the coasting trade, but if it applied to fishermen there has been only a technical violation, and where it can be plainly shown that there was no intent to evade the laws they ought to release the vessel, as our Government did in the case of the schooner Sisters, which was held for gross ignorance on the part of the skipper. The captain of this vessel has been getting bait and ice in their ports for thirty years, and until the present has never seen the inside of a custom house. Their vessels have always entered our ports and sold fresh fish, got supplies, and enjoyed privileges that even our own vessels have not enjoyed, but it seems that they are determined to harass our fishing vessels in hopes to drive us into letting them have our markets free, which, with the bounties they enjoy from the money our Government paid, they can destroy the business in New England and get a complete monopoly. We claim that it is not an actual necessity for our vessels to procure bait and ice in their ports, but it is more convenient, as it is nearer the fishing grounds. Only such vessels engaged in the halibut fishery ever get bait there. The cod-fishermen take salt bait from here, and besides we furnish their cod-fishermen in the spring with thousands of barrels of salt clams.

While we think that these are matters which require time and caution, we do not think there is a nation on earth that would have stood the petty bulldozing that this Government has for the last twenty years, and we are of the opinion that this matter requires more than ordinary attention and haste, for there may be a rupture at any time that might involve the Government far more than it could by pursuing a vigorous policy. Our fishermen are getting into a bad frame of mind, and men like these, used to hardship and peril, might not hesitate to do most anything. Of course we deprecate any such measures, but they are not wholly within our control.

Everybody's opinion is entitled to some weight, and we venture to give ours as to the best course to pursue.

We think that your Department ought to telegraph the Dominion Government that, inasmuch as the vessels seized have been guilty of only a technical violation of customs laws, that they ought to release the vessels on the same terms that our Government has always released theirs. If they refuse to do this, then the President, with the power given him by Congress, should give them notice that he should immediately issue his proclamation, declaring non-intercourse in all matters pertaining to the fisheries, and that from the 1st day of August no fish from the provinces can be landed in the United States and none exported from here thence, such decree to remain in force six months, unless sooner revoked.

The effect of this would be to bring them to terms very quick, as they are almost wholly dependent upon our market for the disposition of their fish, and without this privilege Nova Scotia is almost helpless.

For the honor of the old Democratic party something must be done. Three-quarters of the people engaged in this business are Democrats, and they have been made so by the actions of the Republicans in the past. We understand that there are those that would manufacture political capital out of this matter, but it is too serious a thing, and they can easily be handicapped by vigorous action in this matter by your Department.

As a faithful defender of the faith these many years, we pray that we may see one of the ends for which we have fought brought to a successful issue.

Please do not leave this important matter to assistants, and you will greatly oblige if you will let us know what we have to expect, and if we have any rights which Canada is bound to respect.

This is a private letter and is not given to the papers for publication, and if you will give us a reply in full we will treat it as confidential.

Yours respectfully, &c.,

E. G. WILLARD.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, July 9, 1886.

SIR: Your telegram of the 3d, and your letter of the 7th instant, stating the seizure at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, by the local authorities of that port, of the schooner George W. Cushing, were duly received.

Before the receipt of either, news of this seizure had been received by this Department and instant instructions had been sent to the consul-general at Halifax to proceed to Shelburne and obtain full knowledge of all the facts and make full report to this Department of the cause of such seizure, and the nature of the complaint upon which such proceeding were founded.

In the absence of such authentic information it is impossible for this Department to take any action, or to give you advice.

As the contents of your telegram and letter disclose, you are well aware that questions are now pending between this Government and that of Great Britain in relation to the just definition of the rights of American fishing vessels in the territorial waters of British North America.

I shall relax no effort to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the difficulty, and in the mean time it is the duty and manifest interest of all American citizens entering Canadian jurisdiction to ascertain and obey the laws and regulations there in force.

For all unlawful deprivation of property or commercial rights this Government will expect to procure due redress and compensation for the innocent sufferers.

Very respectfully, yours,

T. F. BAYARD.

I have just received a dispatch from Eastport, Me., stating that American boats after herring for sardines at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, were driven away last night by the Dominion cruiser Middleton, and it is announced that no American boats will be allowed to take herring for any purpose. I earnestly invoke the immediate attention of the Department to this matter.

DEAR SIR: I have just received your telegram of this date, stating that you had a dispatch from Eastport, Me., that American boats after herring for sardines at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, were driven away by the Dominion cruiser Middleton, with the announcement that no American boats will be allowed to take herring for any purpose.

And to this you invoke the immediate attention of this Department.

On the 2d of June last you called at this Department in company with Senator Hale, of Maine, and then drew my attention to a similar threat of interference with the purchase of small herring for canning as sardines from the Canadian weirs.

On the same day I made representation of the alleged threats to the British minister at this capital, and drew his attention to the alleged violation of lawful commercial intercourse between British subjects in Canada and the citizens of the United States.

I was in hopes that further interference with a recognized and legitimate trade would be prevented, but will again address the British minister on the subject.

It will assist materially in all such cases of alleged violation of commercial rights, if accurate and full statements of all the facts in each case are procured and forwarded to this Department accompanied by affidavits.

A great deal of loose rumor and sensational statement would be thus disposed of, and a tangible basis be laid for claim for compensation by the injured parties.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
 Washington, July 14, 1886. [Received July 5.]

SIR: Acknowledging receipt of your letter of 13th instant, stating that the view presented by me will receive due consideration, I beg to inclose herewith the affidavit of Stephen R. Balkam, of Eastport, setting forth the facts of the refusal of the commander of the cruiser Middleton to permit him to purchase herring at St. Andrews, New Brunswick, on Friday, July 9, 1886, as referred to in the telegram forwarded by me to the Department on the 10th instant.

I am, &c.,

C. A. BOUTELLE.

[Inclosure.]

I, Stephen R. Balkam, of Eastport, in the county of Washington, State of Maine, on oath declare that on Friday morning, July 9, 1886, I was at St. Andrews, N. B. My business was to procure herring for canning. I am employed by Hiram Blanchard & Son. The Dominion cruiser Middleton was at anchor near the beacon at St. Andrews. A boat from the Middleton, commanded by Capt. William Kent, came alongside of my boat and asked if my boat was American, and where my boat was owned. I replied that the boat was owned at Eastport, Me. He then said I could not take any herring, and if I took any would be liable to be seized. He told me if I wished to get herring I must get an English boat; that I could not get herring with an American boat. It had been my practice to buy the herring of men who caught them in seines, they delivering the herring in the gunwale of my boat. On the day the Middleton drove me away I was paying $10 per hogshead for the herring. The men of whom I bought them were Dominion fishermen. The captain of the Middleton then left me and went to other American boats and ordered them away. They left without having procured any fish. I took an English boat in tow that had taken fish from the seine, towed her into American waters, then took her fish, and came to Eastport.

*Mr. Woodbury to Mr. Bayard.*BOSTON, July 28, 1886. [Received July 29.]

SIR: I have the honor to enclose for your consideration the affidavit of James McDonald, master of the schooner Thomas F. Bayard, who has been illegally driven from the waters of Bonne Bay, on the northwest coast of Newfoundland, in direct violation of the treaty of 1818.

In this connection I would refer you to the fact that the British Government have twice declined to ratify laws of Newfoundland prohibiting the sale of bait (see Executive Document No. 84, Forty-sixth Congress, second session, House of Representatives, pp. 106-7): once when the Duke of Newcastle was minister, and again when Sir M. Hicks Beach was colonial secretary, in 1878. In 1885 I wrote to our minister at London requesting him to ascertain at the colonial office whether since 1878 any law of Newfoundland prohibiting the sale of bait to foreigners had been approved, and the reply furnished him was, none had been. This is the only instance of the kind from Newfoundland that has come to my knowledge. Captain McDonald sails to-morrow, but proof of his loss will be made up and transmitted to the Department.

I forwarded some time since some evidence as to the collector at Magdalen Islands denying treaty rights to our vessels. I inclose the affidavit of A. McEachern, master of the schooner Mascot, that he was denied at Fort Amherst, June 10th, any privilege except wood and water, and also threatened with seizure even if he should take a pilot! The Magdalen Islands, like the west coast of Newfoundland, are by treaty particularly stated to be places where the common rights of fishery on land or sea are to be enjoyed by both parties to the treaty.

SIR: The schooner Thomas F. Bayard, of Gloucester, of which I am master and part owner, sailed from Gloucester June 22 on a trip after halibut, with license and trade permit. My supply of bait becoming exhausted, I entered the port of Bonne Bay, on the northwest coast of Newfoundland, for the purpose of procuring a supply of bait on July 12. Directly on anchoring, I reported at the custom-house to the collector and stated my object was to buy bait. Mr. Taylor, the collector of the port, immediately served upon me a notice, which I transmit herewith, to the effect that the presence of my vessel in the port was in violation of the articles of the convention of 1818, and also warned me not to buy bait. Having a copy of the Ottawa circular of March 5, 1886, with me, I produced it and read to the collector the treaty clause 2 there printed, and argued with him that I had the treaty right to come in here. His reply was, in substance, that he must perform his duty and prevent me from buying bait. I returned to my vessel, and, fearing I should be seized if I bought bait or fished in the three-mile limit or remained, I sailed for home, and arrived at Gloucester July 26, my voyage being broken up, and having a small fare. I left one of the best chances to obtain a large fare of fish, that were very plentiful in the vicinity of the port. I estimate the losses of the vessel and crew at $4,000, roughly.

I thought it proper to lay this matter before you that, if I had the right to fish on that coast, I might procure recompense and damages for the injury done my voyage.

I, Daniel McDonald, master of American schooner Hereward, of Gloucester, do depose and say: That I went into Cape Canso, N. One of my crew went on shore without authority and failed to return at night; some of the crew thought he had deserted and engaged another man to take his place (all without any authority from me), but he returned the next morning.

The next morning the collector, Mr. Young, came on board and demanded my papers (charging me with shipping a man). I gave them to him, and he kept them until 10.30 o'clock that eve, when he returned them to me. As I was all ready to sail that morning, it detained the vessel two (2) days in that port, as the next day was Sunday.

CUSTOM-HOUSE, GLOUCESTER, MASS.,
Collector's Office, August 10, 1886. [Received August 11.]

SIR: In reply to your telegram of 5th instant I inclose affidavits of Captain Cunningham, of schooner Rattler, and his passenger and crew, in relation to their treatment at Shelburne, Nova Scotia, on going in there for shelter on 3d instant.

Very respectfully, &c.,

D. S. PRESSON,
Collector.

[Inclosure.]

Affidavit of Captain Cunningham, of the schooner Rattler.

I, Augustus F. Cunningham, master of the schooner Rattler, of Gloucester, being duly sworn, do depose and say: That on Thursday, July 8, 1886, we sailed from Gloucester on a mackerel cruise. On Tuesday August 3d (having secured a fare of mackerel and while on our passage home), at 7 p. m., the wind blowing hard, the sea being rough, and our vessel being deeply loaded, with two large seine-boats on deck, we put into the harbor of Shelburne, N. S., for shelter. Just inside of the harbor we were brought to by a gun fired from the Canadian cruiser Terror, Captain Quigley, and came to anchor.

Immediately a boat from the Terror came alongside and its commander, Lieutenant Bennett, asked why we were in the harbor. My reply was, "For shelter." Then taking the name of our vessel, names of owner and captain, where from, where bound, and how many fish we had, and forbidding any of the crew to go on shore, he returned to the Terror for further instructions.

Boarding us again, after a lapse of perhaps forty-five minutes, he put two armed men on board of us, asked for our crew-list, and said if I remained until morning I must enter at the custom-house, but if I could sail in the night to tell his men to fire a revolver and a boat would be sent to take them off. At 12 o'clock that night, preferring to risk the dangers of the sea to the danger of seizure, I ordered the anchor hove short, the mainsail hoisted preparatory to sailing, and told one of the Terror's men to fire a revolver, which he did.

Receiving no reply, and seeing no signs of life on board the Terror, I ordered the revolver to be fired again. This brought a boat from the Terror, commanded by First Lieutenant Bennett, who boarded my schooner, gave each of the two men on board an extra revolver, and told me the orders of Captain Quigley were, that I should not leave the port until I had reported to the customs officer at Shelburne. Upon receipt of these orders I payed out the chain and lowered the mainsail. The boat went back to the Terror and immediately returned with Captain Quigley on board.

He denied the permission given me by his first officer to sail in the night and ordered me to go to Shelburne and enter and clear at the custom-house there.

I asked him how I should go, as we were 8 miles distant from the custom-house. His reply was, "I don't care, sir, how you go; but you must go there; and on your return show your clearance to me or suffer the consequences." He told me my vessel was in charge of his two men, and to them he gave these orders:

"Gunner, you will allow the captain to proceed to Shelburne with the vessel, come to anchor, take his dory and two men, no more, and go on shore to enter. Allow them to bring nothing off in their dory; and if a man puts his hand on the wheel to go to sea, chop his arm off or shoot him, as the case may require."

I asked him if the law was not very strict that did not allow a vessel arriving at night after office hours to proceed before daylight, and why the law was enforced. He replied, it was to prove that Canadian harbors were a benefit to American fishermen.

At daylight we got under way and started for Shelburne, and Lieutenant Bennett and four more armed men came on board. We arrived at Shelburne about 4.30 o'clock a. m. I went on shore with Lieutenant Bennett and his boat's crew, woke up Collector Atwood, who, after inquiring of the lieutenant if there were any charges against me, entered and cleared the vessel.

On my return to the vessel the lieutenant requested me to exhibit my clearance, which I did, and we were then allowed to depart. I would state that when we first entered the harbor of Shelburne a Canadian vessel entered just ahead of us, and she was unmolested, sailing at her pleasure during the night, which showed plainly that an American vessel was not accorded the same treatment in Canadian ports as are Canadian vessels, although, as the collector at Halifax informed me in June last, the same laws applied to Canadian vessels as to American vessels.

During the whole difficulty my language was respectful and I quietly submitted to the detention, to the sarcastic language and overbearing conduct of Captain Quigley, but I deem my treatment and detention severe and unjust and an outrage upon the international courtesy that should exist between two friendly nations.

SIR: I inclose affidavit of Capt. Reuben Cameron, of schooner Golden Hind, of this port, who was forbidden to enter the harbor of Port Daniels, N. S., for water. This being a clear violation by the Canadian Government of the treaty of 1818, I respectfully submit the case for your consideration.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,

[Inclosure.]

Affidavit of Captain Cameron, of the schooner Golden Hind.

I, Reuben Cameron, master of the American schooner Golden Hind, of Gloucester, do depose and say: That we sailed from Gloucester July 3, 1886, bound to the Bay of St. Lawrence, on a fishing voyage. That on or about July 23, being out of water, started to go into the Bay of Chaleurs (Port Daniel) to fill water. At the entrance of the bay, four or five miles from land, was met by the Canadian schooner E. F. Conrad; an officer came on board, took my name, name of vessel, tonnage, name of owner, &c., and ordered me not to go into Bay of Chaleurs. He also furnished me with a printed "warning," with this indorsement written thereon: "Don't enter the Bay of Chaleurs, N. S." After this warning I put to sea, and was obliged to go across to Tignish, P. E. I., to obtain a supply of water for use of my crew.

This delayed me at least a week, and the loss of at least a good trip of mackerel, as during that time another vessel from the same firm, in five days, on the same fishing grounds, took 460 barrels of mackerel, and caused a loss to my owners of at least five thousand dollars ($5,000).

GENTLEMEN: Referring to your complaint of the 3d of July last, concerning the detention of your fishing schooner City Point, by the Canadian authorities at the port of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, which was at once communicated to the British minister here, I have to inform you that her Britannic Majesty's Government has made reply, alleging that the master of the City Point committed a breach of the customs laws of the Dominion by not reporting to the customs authorities, and by landing part of the crew and luggage. It is further stated that the vessel in question was subsequently released on deposit of $400.

It appears from this reply that no charge of violating the fishing laws or infringing the treaty was made against the City Point, but that the sole allegation is the failure of her master to observe the customs regulations applicable to any vessel resorting to a port of entry, and communicating with the shore.

The United States consul-general at Halifax will be instructed to watch the case, and, in the event of the penalty being affirmed, to ascertain the laws and regulations on which such judgment rests.

BOSTON, October 12, 1886. [Received October 13.]

SIR: Herewith please find the affidavits of Captain Kemp, of the American schooner Pearl Nelson; Henry Cook, her owner; William Babino, cook and steward; M. N. Gifford, cashier of bank, relative to the detention of that schooner at Arichat, and the exaction of a deposit of $200 by the authorities as the condition for her release. What statute she had violated, if any, those interested in her have been unable to discover. The only charge made was that a part of her crew had gone ashore in the night and returned in the morning.

The parties interested in her, believing that the exaction referred to was in violation of law, and of their rights as American citizens in calling at the port of a friendly nation, in stress of weather, respectfully desire the protection of the United States, and that the damages which have arisen to them by the illegal seizure, detention, and exaction may be reimbursed to them.

I have the honor, &c.,

CHAS. LEVI WOODBURY.
Pr. OWNER.

P. S.—The owners have transmitted duplicates of these affidavits to the consul at Halifax, for use before the Ottawa authorities, for remission.

[Inclosure No. 1.]

Affidavit of Captain Kemp, of the schooner Pearl Nelson.

PEARL NELSON, U. S. A.,
District of Massachusetts:

I, Murdock Kemp, of Provincetown, in Massachusetts, a citizen of the United States, on my oath do say: That I was master and part owner of the schooner Pearl Nelson, a vessel of the United States duly licensed —, 1886, for the fisheries, and holding a permit to touch and trade during the existence of said license.

I further say that the crew of said vessel were shipped on wages at Provincetown and Boston for a fishing voyage to the Grand Banks, and return to Provincetown for discharge. Said schooner, with license and permit as aforesaid, sailed May 29, 1886, from Provincetown, and in her passage home touched at Arichat, Cape Breton, driven in there by stress of weather. Sailed by the wind from Bank Quero, and blowing fresh a heavy sea running and foggy, made Point Michaux, 9 miles from Arichat. The vessel was deep; her dories floated on deck in her lee waist; wind being about west I concluded to make a harbor and wait for better weather and wind. I anchored the vessel in Arichat Harbor at 11 p. m., September 7, 1886. I had lost a man on the Grand Banks, named James Sampson, who belonged to Arichat, and I wanted to land his effects, if the customs officers would allow me to. Some of my crew belonged in that neighborhood. William Babino, my cook, and nine others of the crew took boats off the deck and went ashore without asking my permission. I saw them, but had never known that was any objection. I had been in this and other British North American ports frequently, and witnessed the landing from my own and other vessels' crews, but never before heard such landing was illegal or improper. These men took nothing from the vessel with them nor carried away anything but the clothes they wore.

From the time I left Provincetown I had been into no port any where. Next morning, after my arrival in Arichat, at 8½ o'clock, I went ashore to enter at the custom-house, and found it closed. I called at 9 o'clock and it was not open. I went again at 1 o'clock, and found the collector opening the office door. I made the regular inward report to him, and requested permission to land the clothes of James Sampson, who had been lost from my vessel on the Grand Banks. He told me he had sent a man for me. After I got there this man came in. The officer was holding my papers and told the man to go back and take charge of the vessel. I asked him why he held my papers; he replied, he seized her because I had allowed my men to go ashore before reporting at the custom-house; that all he would tell me was, he said he would telegraph to Ottawa and find out what to do with me; and he did telegraph immediately. About 5 o'clock p. m. the collector received an answer, and told me to deposit $200 and the vessel would be released. The collector would not allow me to land this dead man's clothes until after I had paid the $200 fine. I gave the clothes to the shop-keeper to be given to Sampson's widow or friends. I came out of Arichat about 11 a. m. on the 8th of September, 1886, having bought there one bushel of potatoes with the collector's permit and arrived at Provincetown September 14, 1886. I sailed from Arichat with all my crew on board and had not at any time intended to leave any of my crew at that port. They were hired men shipped to be discharged on return at Provincetown, and on our arrival there were all paid off and discharged.

Some of the crew that went ashore at Arichat returned aboard as early as 7 o'clock, and all were aboard about the time the vessel was seized. I gave them no money there, and had none myself. I further say I did not enter Arichat with any intention of violating any law of the Dominion of Canada, nor for any business, but solely because of the stress of weather that had driven me there. It was mere kindness only that prompted me to offer to land Sampson's clothes there where his friends could get them. There was no profit to the vessel, crew, or myself expected in so doing, or attempted to be gained in entering the port of Arichat, other than shelter from stress of weather we had been under from Quero Bank.

If any revenue law of Canada was violated by my vessel or by myself the same was done through ignorance and inadvertence, and not with any intention to defraud the revenue or offend the law.

MURDOCK KEMP.

Personally appeared before me Murdock Kemp, at Provincetown, State of Massachusetts, United States of America, this 27th day of September, 1886, who subscribed and made oath to the foregoing.

[SEAL.]

JAMES GIFFORD,
Notary Public.

Affidavit of Henry Cook, owner of the schooner Pearl Nelson.

Personally appeared before me, James Gifford, deputy collector of customs at the port of Provincetown, in the District of Barnstable and State of Massachusetts, this 25th day of September, 1886, Henry Cook, of said Provincetown, who, being by me duly sworn, deposes and says that he is a citizen of the United States of America, a resident of said Provincetown, and managing owner of the schooner Pearl Nelson, of Provincetown, of which Murdock Kemp was master during a fishing voyage to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and which terminated on the 14th day of this month by the arrival of said vessel at this port.

The affiant further deposes that [previous?] to the sailing of said vessel to the Grand Banks he gave explicit instructions to Captain Kemp, as he also did to five other masters of Bank fishing vessels, to not enter any Canadian port on said voyage, going to or coming from said fishing banks, unless compelled to enter by disaster to the vessel or by stress of weather; and hence the masters were not supplied with any funds for themselves or their crews, nor authorized to draw drafts on me for payment of crew's wages, or for any purpose but for repairs in case of meeting with serious disaster.

He also deposes that the crew of said vessel Pearl Nelson consisted of fifteen men besides Captain Kemp; that five of them, viz, Cyprian Briand, Henry Briand, Remie Cardo, John McDonald, and William Babino ——— were shipped in Provincetown, and the balance, viz, Alexander Cardo, William Boudrot, Albert Robin, Andrew Frazer, Jeffrey Landry, Henry Duong, Henry Sampson, Alfred Langley, E. H. C. Lisboa, Duncan McRae, and James Sampson, were shipped in Boston, and were engaged to return directly to this port from the Grand Banks at the end of the voyage; and that excepting James Sampson, who was reported by Captain Kemp as lost on said banks, they did return to Provincetown, and were discharged here, and paid each one by draft on the First National Bank of Provincetown, which are now on file in said bank.

The affiant declares that if Captain Kemp violated any law of Canada in entering Arichat on the 7th of September, 1886, he did it unwittingly, and that the affiant feels that the collection of the $200 fine imposed upon the Pearl Nelson is unwarranted by the circumstances under which the entry into that port was made.

HENRY COOK.

Affidavit of Willaim Babino, cook of the Pearl Nelson.

Personally appeared before me, James Gifford, deputy collector of customs of the port of Provincetown, district of Barnstable and State of Massachusetts, this 27th day of September, 1886, William Babino, who, being by me duly sworn, deposes and says that he served as cook on the schooner Pearl Nelson, of Provincetown, of which Murdoch Kemp was master, during a fishing voyage to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland and return to this port the present fishing season; that he shipped in said vessel in Boston, State of Massachusetts, to be discharged in Provincetown, in said State; that on the homeward passage to this port the said vessel encountered a strong head wind with a heavy sea and a thick fog, and while off the coast of Cape Breton, N. S., the wind being still ahead with the sea, and the vessel making but little headway towards her destination, Captain Kemp, without before expressing any intention to run for that harbor, sailed her into Arichat, N. S. Arriving there about 11 o'clock on the night of September 7, 1886, and having anchored the vessel, the affiant and nine others of the crew left the vessel and went ashore, where he and the others remained the rest of the night without permission of the captain. We returned to the vessel the following morning, and about 10 o'clock that forenoon a customs officer came aboard the Pearl Nelson and seized her because, as he declared, the men had landed before the vessel was reported to the custom-house; that after the captain had paid a fine of $200 the vessel was next day released, and sailed with all her crew on board for this port, where they arrived September 14, 1886, and were here all paid off in full and discharged.

The affiant further deposes he had not prior to the night of entering Arichat heard the captain say anything about entering there either for the purpose of landing the clothes and personal effects of James Sampson, one of the crew, who had been lost on the Grand Banks, and belonged to Arichat, or near there, nor for any other object.

He also deposes that neither he, nor, as he believes, neither of the 9 men who landed with the affiant, took with them any goods or effects whatever ashore, nor had he or they any knowledge or suspicion that their landing was in violation of any law or regulation of the Dominion of Canada.

WILLIAM BABINO.

JAMES GIFFORD,
Deputy Collector of Customs.

Personally appeared before me James Gifford, deputy collector of the port of Provincetown, district of Barnstable and State of Massachusetts, at said Provincetown, this 27th day of September, 1886, Moses N. Gifford, cashier of the First National Bank, in Provincetown aforesaid, and who being by me duly sworn, deposes and says that he paid, on the orders or checks of H. & S. Cook, a firm composed of Henry Cook and Sylvanus Cook, of this place, merchants and owners of fishing vessels, the following-named persons the following sums to—

Henry Sampsan	$73 79	Henry Duong	$98 32
Alexander Cardo	113 70	Emygdio A. C. Lisboa	118 19
Jeffrey Landry	115 52	Duncan McRae	97 40

William Robin	170 80	Henry Briand	133 08
Alfred Langley	77 42	Andrew Frazer	117 70

on the 15th of September, 1886, and that names of the persons thus paid all appear as crew on the shipping articles of the schooner Pearl Nelson, of Provincetown, signed by them at Provincetown and Boston, in May, 1886, as appears by said articles.

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Woodbury.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, October 15, 1886.

SIR: I have your letter of the 12th instant, accompanied by sundry affidavits, stating the deposit of $200 by the master of the American fishing schooner Pearl Nelson, under the compulsion of the customs officers at the port of Arichat, Cape Breton, the ground alleged for this action by the officials at Arichat being the unlawful landing of the crew of the Pearl Nelson before reporting at the custom-house.

The case will be presented to the British minister at this capital, and notification given to him that compensation will be demanded for violation of the treaty privileges, should the British Government be found liable for breach of international duty on examination of the law and facts.

Your obedient servant,

T. F. BAYARD.

No. 107.

Mr. Steele to Mr. Bayard.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., October 18, 1886. [Received Oct. 20.]

SIR: The season is approaching when American vessels have been accustomed to buy herring at the Grand Manan Island and vicinity, and bring them to Boston, Gloucester, New York, and Philadelphia.

The present position of the Dominion Government as to that trade concerns our interests greatly, and the fish trade desire to be informed whether that Government now considers the purchase of herring as open to American vessels, either when registered or licensed, with permit to trade.

We do not wish to explore their power of seizing or detaining these vessels, or of inflicting fines. If they object to our vessels continuing in that business, we prefer to keep away from those shores until the Dominion Government is better advised.

I apply to you for this information, which our merchants need, because I know of no other mode of obtaining it in a reliable shape.

I am, &c.,

GEO. STEELE,
President American Fishery Union.

P. S.—This trade in winter herring has been carried on in our vessels almost exclusively for many years, and fifty or a hundred cargoes come in usually during the fall, winter, and spring.

They are largely consumed as food, and to some extent used as bait in our winter fishing to Georges and the Banks.

It is very rare for a British vessel to bring herring to our ports.

No. 108.

Mr. Bayard to Mr. Steele.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, October 20, 1886.

SIR: I have just received your letter of the 18th instant, inquiring of me whether American fishing vessels, registered as such, and furnished with license to touch and trade in foreign ports, can proceed to Canadian ports, there to purchase and bring home cargoes of herring, without danger of molestation by the local authorities of the Dominion.

As you are well aware, a construction has been placed by the Dominion authorities upon the language of the treaty of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain under which they have assumed to exclude American fishing vessels from entrance into certain described territorial waters of Canada for any other than the three objects in the treaty mentioned—shelter, repairs, and to obtain wood and water—and have insisted that the words “and for no other purpose whatever” were to be rigidly enforced according to the strict letter.

This position, I need not say to you, is not accepted by the United States, but is repelled and denied, and that this Department is now endeavoring to secure such a joint interpretation of the treaty in question, considered in connection with the subsequent legislation by Great Britain and the United States creating commercial rights in the citizens of both countries, as will enable our vessels, whether engaged in fishing or not, to enter the established ports of entry of British North America and purchase lawful merchandise of any character in open market.

The United States have no diplomatic intercourse with Canada, but conduct all such matters directly with the imperial Government, through its minister at this capital or through our own minister at St. James.

This creates circumlocution and delay which is unavoidable.

It is my object to relieve the question of the rights of our fishermen from all uncertainty, and to obtain such a conceded, unambiguous, and clear definition of their rights and duties in Canadian ports and waters as will enable them to pursue their legitimate business with certainty, and in this duty I am now engaged.

It would be well for you to state whether the vessels so sent to purchase herring are to be manned and fitted out so as to be able to take fish or to trade only.

When I have received your answer on the last point I will at once endeavor to obtain a plain response to your reasonable question, and will communicate a reply at the earliest practicable moment.

Respectfully, &c.,

T. F. BAYARD.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., October 25, 1886. [Received Oct. 27.]

SIR: I have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated October 20.

My original inquiry referred both to vessels under license and to those sailing under a register. Your letter satisfies the inquiry as to those licensed for the fisheries.

We still desire to be informed as to whether vessels under registry of the United States will be allowed to enter at Grand Manan and other ports, and load and export herring to the United States.

Such vessels will be manned by a sailing crew, on wages, and not by a fishing complement of sharemen, nor will they carry the fishing gear which such vessels use when fishing under a fishing license.

The fishing interests, I assure you, appreciate the courtesy of your offer to procure this information seasonably for them.

I remain, &c.,

GEO. STEELE,
President of the American Fishery Union.

IV.—EXTENSION OF CERTAIN FISHING RIGHTS UNDER THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON.

No. 110.

[Senate Ex. Doc. No. 32, Forty-ninth Congress, first session.]

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, TRANSMIT-TING, IN RESPONSE TO SENATE RESOLUTION OF JANUARY 5, 1886, INFORMATION RELATIVE TO THE EXTENSION OF CERTAIN FISHING RIGHTS UNDER THE TREATY OF WASHINGTON.

JANUARY 12, 1886.—Read and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed

To the SENATE:

I transmit herewith, in response to a resolution of the Senate of the 5th instant, a report of the Secretary of State containing all the correspondence and information in the custody of his Department relative to the extension of certain fishing rights and privileges under the treaty of Washington from July 1, 1885, to January 1, 1886.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, January 12, 1886.

To the PRESIDENT:

In compliance with the resolution of the Senate of January 5, 1886, I herewith transmit a copy of all the correspondence between this Department and the representative of the Government of Great Britain in relation to the extension of certain fishing rights and privileges under the treaty of Washington from July 1, 1885, to January 1, 1886.

As part of this transaction the following paragraph of your late message to Congress seems appropriate for consideration in connection with the correspondence:

The termination of the fishing clauses of the treaty of Washington, in pursuance of the joint resolution of March 3, 1883, must have resulted in the abrupt cessation on the 1st of July of this year, in the midst of their ventures, of the operations of citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in British American waters, but for a diplomatic understanding reached with Her Majesty's Government in June last, whereby assurance was obtained that no interruption of those operations should take place during the current fishing season.

In the interest of good neighborhood and of the commercial intercourse of adjacent communities, the question of North American fisheries is one of much importance. Following out the intimation given by me when the extensory arrangement above described was negotiated, I recommend that the Congress provide for the appointment of a commission, in which the Governments of the United States and Great Britain shall be respectively represented, charged with the consideration and settlement, upon a just, equitable, and honorable basis, of the entire question of the fishing rights of the two Governments and their respective citizens on the coasts of the United States and British North America. The fishing interests being intimately related to other general questions dependent upon contiguity and intercourse, consideration thereof, in all their equities, might also properly come within the purview of such a commission, and the fullest latitude of expression on both sides should be permitted.

Respectfully submitted.

T. F. BAYARD.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
January 12, 1886.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN RESPECTING THE FISHERIES. CONCLUDED JUNE 22, 1885.

NOTICE.

By direction of the President, the undersigned, Secretary of State, hereby makes known to all whom it may concern that a temporary diplomatic agreement has been entered into between the Government of the United States and the Government of Her Britannic Majesty in relation to the fishing privileges which were granted by the fishery clauses of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain of May 8, 1871, whereby the privilege of fishing, which would otherwise have terminated with the treaty clauses on the 1st of July proximo, may continue to be enjoyed by the citizens and subjects of the two countries engaged in fishing operations throughout the season of 1885.

This agreement proceeds from the mutual good-will of the two Governments, and has been reached solely to avoid all misunderstanding and difficulties which might otherwise arise from the abrupt termination of the fishing of 1885 in the midst of the season. The immunity which is accorded by this agreement to the vessels belonging to citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in the British American waters will likewise be extended to British vessels and subjects engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States.

The joint resolution of Congress of March 3, 1883, providing for the termination of the fishing articles of the treaty of May 8, 1871, having repealed in terms the act of March 1, 1873, for the execution of the fishing articles, and that repeal being express and absolute from the date of the termination of the said fishing articles, under due notification given and proclaimed by the President of the United States, to wit, July 1, 1885, the present temporary agreement in no way affects the question of statutory enactment or exemption from customs duties, as to which the abrogation of the fishing articles remains complete.

As part of this agreement, the President will bring the whole question of the fisheries before Congress at its next session in December, and recommend the appointment of a joint commission by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain to consider the matter, in the interest of maintaining good neighborhood and friendly intercourse between the two countries, thus affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

Copies of the memoranda and exchanged notes on which this temporary agreement rests are appended.

Reference is also made to the President's proclamation of January 31, 1885, terminating the fishing articles of the treaty of Washington.

By direction of the President:

T. F. BAYARD,
Secretary of State.

[Memorandum. —Confidential.]

The fishery clauses of the treaty of Washington of 1871 will expire on the 1st of July next. It has been represented by the Canadian Government that much inconvenience is likely to arise in consequence, unless some agreement can be made for an extension of the period.

When the time comes (1st of July next) American ships will be actually engaged in fishing within the territorial waters of the Dominion. These vessels will have been fitted out for the season's fishing and have made all their usual arrangements for following it up until its termination in the autumn. If, under these circumstances, the provincial or municipal authorities in Canada were to insist upon their strict rights, and to compel such vessels, under pain of seizure, to desist from fishing, considerable hardship would be occasioned to the owners, and a feeling of bitterness engendered on both sides, which it is clearly the interest of both Governments to avert.

It seems, therefore, desirable, in order to avoid such possible complications, that both Governments should come to an agreement under which the clauses might be in effect extended until the 1st of January, 1886.

If this were done the existing state of things would come to an end at a date between the fishery season of 1885 and that of 1886, and an abrupt transition at a moment when fishery operations were being carried on would be thus avoided.

[Memorandum of April 22, 1885.—Personal.]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, April 22, 1885.

DEAR MR. WEST: I have on several occasions lately, in conversation, acquainted you with my interest in the fisheries memorandum which accompanied your personal letter of March 12.

Several informal talks I have had with Sir Ambrose Shea have enabled me to formulate the views of this Government upon the proposition made in behalf of the Dominion and the Province of Newfoundland, and I take pleasure in handing you herewith a memorandum embodying the results. If this suits, I shall be happy to confirm the arrangement by an exchange of notes at your early convenience.

I am, my dear Mr. West, very sincerely yours,

T. F. BAYARD.

The Hon. L. S. SACKVILLE WEST, &c.

MEMORANDUM.

The legislation passed by the Congress of the United States, act of March 1, 1873, for the execution of the fishery articles of the treaty of Washington, has been repealed by the joint resolution of March 3, 1883, the repeal to take effect July 1, 1885. From that date the effects of the fisheries articles of the treaty of Washington absolutely determine, so far as their execution within the jurisdiction of the United States is concerned, and without new legislation by Congress modifying or postponing that repeal the Executive is not constitutionally competent to extend the reciprocal fisheries provisions of the treaty beyond the 1st of July next, the date fixed by the action of Congress.

Mr. West's memorandum of March 12, 1885, suggests the mutual practical convenience that would accrue from allowing the fishing ventures commenced prior to July 1, 1885, to continue until the end of the season for fishing of that year, thus preventing their abrupt termination in the midst of fishing operations on the 1st of July.

It has been, moreover, suggested on the part of the Province of Newfoundland and of the Dominion of Canada, that in view of the mutual benefit and convenience of the present local traffic, consisting of the purchase of ice, bait, wood, and general ship supplies by the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing from the inhabitants of the British American fishing coast, the usual operations of the fishing season of 1885 should be continued by the fishing vessels belonging to citizens of the United States until the end of the season of that year, and that the local authorities of Newfoundland and of the Dominion of Canada, in a spirit of amity and good neighborhood, should abstain from molesting such fishermen or impeding their progress or their local traffic with the inhabitants incidental to fishing during the remainder of the season of 1885, and all this with the understanding that the President of the United States would bring the whole question of the fisheries before Congress at its next session in December, and recommend the appointment of a commission in which the Governments of the United States and of Great Britain should be respectively represented, which commission should be charged with the consideration and settlement, upon a just, equitable, and honorable basis, of the entire question of the fishing rights of the two Governments and their respective citizens on the coasts of the United States and British North America.

The President of the United States would be prepared to recommend the adoption of such action by Congress with the understanding that in view and in consideration of such promised recommendation there would be no enforcement of restrictive and penal laws and regulations by the authorities of the Dominion of Canada or of the Province of Newfoundland, against the fishermen of the United States resorting to British American waters between the 1st of July next and the close of the present year's fishing season; the mutual object and intent being to avoid any annoyance to the individuals engaged in this business and traffic, and the irritation or ill-feeling that might be engendered by a harsh or vexatious enforcement of stringent local regulations on the fishing coast pending an effort to have a just and amicable arrangement of an important and somewhat delicate question between the two nations.

Public knowlence of this understanding and arrangement can be given by an exchange of notes between Mr. West and myself, which can be given to the press.

3.—Mr. West's memoranda of June 13, 1885.

[Memoranda.]

It is proposed to state in notes according temporary arrangements respecting fisheries that an agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

The government of Newfoundland do not make refunding of duties a condition of their acceptance of the proposed agreement, but they rely on it having due consideration before the international commission which may be appointed.

4.—Mr. Bayard to Mr. West, June 19, 1885.

[Confidential.]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 19, 1885.

MY DEAR MR. WEST: I assume that the two confidential memoranda you handed to me on the 13th instant embrace the acceptance by the Dominion and the British American coast provinces of the general features of my memorandum of April 21, concerning a temporary arrangement respecting the fisheries, with the understanding expressed on their side that the "agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America."

To such a contingent understanding I can have no objection. Indeed, I regard it as covered by the statement in my memorandum of May 21, that the arrangement therein contemplated would be reached "with the understanding that the President of the United States would bring the whole question of the fisheries before Congress at its next session in December, and recommend the appointment of a commission in which the Governments of the United States and of Great Britain should be respectively represented, which commission should be charged with the consideration and settlement, upon a just, equitable, and honorable basis, of the entire question of the fishing rights of the two Governments and their respective citizens on the coasts of the United States and British North America."

The equities of the question being before such a mixed commission would doubtless have the fullest latitude of expression and treatment on both sides; and the purpose in view being the maintenance of good neighborhood and intercourse between the two countries, the recommendation of any measures which the commission might deem necessary to attain those ends would seem to fall within its province, and such recommendations could not fail to receive attentive consideration.

I am not, therefore, prepared to state limits to the proposals to be brought forward in the suggested commission on behalf of either party.

I believe this statement will be satisfactory to you, and I should be pleased to be informed at the earliest day practicable of your acceptance of the understanding on behalf of British North America; and by this simple exchange of notes and memoranda the agreement will be completed in season to enable the President to make the result publicly known to the citizens engaged in the fishing on the British American Atlantic coast.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, sir, your obedient servant,

T. F. BAYARD.

The Hon. L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

5.—Mr. West to Mr. Bayard, June 20, 1885.

[Confidential.]

BRITISH LEGATION,
Washington, June 20, 1885.

MY DEAR MR. BAYARD: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your confidential note of yesterday's date, concerning the proposed temporary arrangement respecting the fisheries, which I am authorized by Her Majesty's Government to negotiate with you on behalf of the Government of the Dominion of Canada and the government of Newfoundland, to be effected by an exchange of notes founded on your memorandum of the 21st of April last.

The two confidential memoranda which I handed to you on the 13th instant contain, as you assume, the acceptance by the Dominion and the British American coast provinces of the general features of your above-mentioned memorandum, with the understanding expressed on their side that the agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospects of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America, a contingent understanding to which, as you state, you can have no objection, as you regard it as covered by the terms of your memorandum of April 21.

In authorizing me to negotiate this agreement, Earl Granville states, as I have already had occasion to intimate to you, that it is on the distinct understanding that it is a temporary one, and that its conclusion must not be held to prejudice any claim which may be advanced to more satisfactory equivalents by the colonial governments in the course of the negotiation for a more permanent settlement. Earl Granville further wishes me to tell you that Her Majesty's Government and the colonial governments have consented to the arrangement solely as a mark of good will to the Government and people of the United States, and to avoid difficulties which might be raised by the termination of the fishery articles in the midst of a fishing season; and also the acceptance of such a modus vivendi does not, by any implication, affect the value of the inshore fisheries by the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland. I had occasion to remark to you that while the colonial governments are asked to guarantee immunity from interference to American vessels resorting to Canadian waters, no such immunity is offered in your memorandum to Canadian vessels resorting to American waters, but that the Dominion Government presumed that the agreement in this respect would be mutual. As you accepted this view, it would, I think, be as well that mention should be made to this effect in the notes.

Under the reservations, as above indicated, in which I believe you acquiesce, I am prepared to accept the understanding on behalf of British North America, and to exchange notes in the above sense.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, sir, your obedient servant,

L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

Hon. T. F. BAYARD, &c.

6.—Mr. Bayard to Mr. West, June 20, 1885.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 20, 1885.

SIR: I have just received your note of to-day's date in regard to the proposed temporary arrangement touching the fisheries.

Undoubtedly it is our clear and mutual understanding that the arrangement now made is only temporary, and that it proceeds from the mutual good will of our respective Governments, and solely to avoid all difficulties which might otherwise arise from the termination of the fishing of 1885 in the midst of the season.

I understand, also, that the same immunity which is accorded by this agreement to the vessels belonging to the citizens of the United States, engaged in fishing in the British American waters, will be extended to British vessels and subjects engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States. Perceiving, therefore, no substantial difference between our respective propositions and these statements as contained in our correspondence on the subject, I shall consider the agreement as embodied in our memoranda and the correspondence between us and as thus concluded; and public notification to that effect will be given in a few days by the President.

I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, sir, your obedient servant,

T. F. BAYARD.

The Hon. L. S. SACKVILLE WEST, &c.

7.—Mr. Bayard to Mr. West, June 22, 1885.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, June 22, 1885.

SIR: In compliance with your verbal request of this morning that I should restate part of my note to you of the 19th, I repeat that the arrangement, whereby a modus vivendi on the fishing question has been reached, rests on the memoranda and correspondence exchanged; that your memorandum of the 13th instant expressed the understanding on your side that the "agreement has been arrived at under circumstances affording prospect of negotiation for development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America"; that I not only had no objection to such an understanding, but, in fact, regarded it as amply embraced in our proposal to recommend a commission to deal with the whole subject in the interest of good neighborhood and intercourse, and that the recommendation of any measures which the commission might deem necessary to attain those ends would seem to fall within its province, and such recommendations could not fail to have attentive consideration.

Having thus not only admitted the proviso of your memorandum in your own language, but gone still further and pointed out that no limits would be set, so far as I was concerned, to the proposals to be brought forward in the suggested commission on behalf of either party, I do not see how it is possible for me to give any stronger assurance that the understanding has "been reached under circumstances affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British America."

I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, sir,

T. F. BAYARD.

The Hon. L. S. SACKVILLE WEST, &c.

WASHINGTON, June 22, 1885.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your notes of the 20th and 22d instant in regard to the proposed temporary arrangement touching the fisheries, in which you state that it is our clear and mutual understanding that such arrangement is only temporary, and that it proceeds from the mutual good-will of our respective Governments, and solely to avoid all difficulties which might otherwise arise from the termination of the fishing of 1885 in the midst of the season. Also that the same immunity which is accorded by this Government to the vessels belonging to the citizens of the United States engaged in fishing in the British American waters will be extended to British vessels and subjects engaged in fishing in the waters of the United States, and that the agreement has been reached under circumstances affording a prospect of negotiation for the development and extension of trade between the United States and British North America.

As therefore there exists no substantial difference between our respective propositions and the statements as contained in our correspondence on the subject, I shall consider the agreement as embodied in our memoranda and the correspondence between us as thus concluded, and shall inform Her Majesty's Government and the Governments of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland accordingly.

I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, sir, your obedient servant,

L. S. SACKVILLE WEST.

Hon. T. F. BAYARD, &c.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the Treaty concluded between the United States of America and her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, concluded at Washington on the 8th day of May, 1871, contains among other Articles the following, viz:

“ARTICLE XVIII.”

“It is agreed by the High Contracting Parties that, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States fishermen by the Convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818, of taking, curing, and drying fish on certain coasts of the British North American Colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have in common with the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, the liberty, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this Treaty, to take fish of every kind, except shell fish, on the sea coasts and shores, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks, of the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, and the Colony of Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts and shores and islands, and also upon the Magdalen Islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish; provided that in so doing they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with British fishermen, in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

“It is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that the salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and the mouths of rivers are hereby reserved exclusively for British fishermen.”

“ARTICLE XIX.”

“It is agreed by the High Contracting Parties that British subjects shall have, in common with the citizens of the United States, the liberty, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this Treaty, to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the eastern sea-coasts and shores of the United States north of the thirty-ninth parallel of north latitude, and on the shores of the several islands thereunto adjacent, and in the bays, harbors, and creeks of the said sea-coasts and shores of the United States, and of the said islands, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts of the United States and of the islands aforesaid, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish; provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the fishermen of the United States in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose.

“It is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for fishermen of the United States.”

“ARTICLE XX.”

“It is agreed that the places designated by the Commissioners appointed under the first Article of the Treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded at Washington on the 5th of June, 1854, upon the coasts of Her Britannic Majesty's Dominions and the United States, as places reserved from the common right of fishing under that Treaty, shall be regarded as in like manner reserved from the common right of fishing under the preceding articles. In case any question should arise between the Governments of the United States and of Her Britannic Majesty as to the common right of fishing in places not thus designated as reserved, it is agreed that a commission shall be appointed to designate such places, and shall be constituted in the same manner, and have the same powers, duties, and authority as the Commission appointed under said first Article of the Treaty of the 5th of June, 1854."

"ARTICLE XXI."

"It is agreed that, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this Treaty, fish oil and fish of all kinds, (except fish of the inland lakes and of the rivers falling into them, and except fish preserved in oil,) being the produce of the fisheries of the United States, or of the Dominion of Canada, or of Prince Edward's Island, shall be admitted into each country, respectively, free of duty."

"ARTICLE XXII."

"Inasmuch as it is asserted by the Government of Her Britannic Majesty that the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII of this Treaty are of greater value than those accorded by Articles XIX and XXI of this Treaty to the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, and this assertion is not admitted by the Government of the United States, it is further agreed that Commissioners shall be appointed to determine, having regard to the privileges accorded by the United States to the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, as stated in Articles XIX and XXI of this Treaty, the amount of any compensation which, in their opinion, ought to be paid by the Government of the United States to the Government of Her Britannic Majesty in return for the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII of this Treaty; and that any sum of money which the said Commissioners may so award shall be paid by the United States Government in a gross sum, within twelve months after such award shall have been given."

"ARTICLE XXIII."

"The Commissioners referred to in the preceding Article shall be appointed in the following manner, that is to say : One Commissioner shall be named by the President of the United States, one by Her Britannic Majesty, and a third by the President of the United States and Her Britannic Majesty conjointly; and in case the third Commissioner shall not have been so named within a period of three months from the date when this article shall take effect, then the third commissioner shall be named by the Representative at London of His Majesty the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary. In case of the death, absence, or incapacity of any commissioner, or in the event of any Commissioner omitting or ceasing to act, the vacancy shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided for making the original appointment, the period of three months in case of such substitution being calculated from the date of the happening of the vacancy.

"The Commissioners so named shall meet in the City of Halifax, in the Province of Nova Scotia, at the earliest convenient period after they have been respectively named, and shall, before proceeding to any business, make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide the matters referred to them to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity; and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings.

"Each of the High Contracting Parties shall also name one person to attend the Commission as its agent, to represent it generally in all matters connected with the Commission."

"ARTICLE XXIV."

"The proceedings shall be conducted in such order as the Commissioners appointed under Articles XXII and XXIII of this Treaty shall determine. They shall be bound to receive such oral or written testimony as either Government may present. If either Party shall offer oral testimony, the other Party shall have the right of cross-examination, under such rules as the Commissioners shall prescribe.

"If in the case submitted to the Commissioners either Party shall have specified or alluded to any report or document in its own exclusive possession, without annexing a copy, such Party shall be bound, if the other Party thinks proper to apply for it, to furnish that Party with a copy thereof; and either Party may call upon the other, through the Commissioners, to produce the originals, or certified copies of any papers adduced as evidence, giving in each instance such reasonable notice as the Commissioners may require.

"The case on either side shall be closed within a period of six months from the date of the organization of the Commission, and the Commissioners shall be requested to give their award as soon as possible thereafter. The aforesaid period of six months may be extended for three months in case of a vacancy occurring among the Commissioners under the circumstances contemplated in Article XXIII of this Treaty."

"ARTICLE XXV."

"The Commissioner shall keep an accurate record and correct minutes or notes of all their proceedings, with the dates thereof, and may appoint and employ a secretary and any other necessary officer or officers to assist them in the transaction of the business which may come before them.

"Each of the High Contracting Parties shall pay its own Commissioner and agent or counsel; all other expenses shall be defrayed by the two Governments in equal moieties."

"ARTICLE XXX."

"It is agreed that, for the term of years mentioned in Article XXXIII of this Treaty, subjects of Her Britannic Majesty may carry in British vessels, without payment of duty, goods, wares, or merchandise from one port or place within the territory of the United States upon the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes, and the rivers connecting the same, to another port or place within the territory of the United States as aforesaid: Provided, That a portion of such transportation is made through the Dominion of Canada by land carriage and in bond, under such rules and regulations as may be agreed upon between the Government of Her Britannic Majesty and the Government of the United States.

"Citizens of the United States may for the like period carry in United States vessels, without payment of duty, goods, wares, or merchandise from one port or place within the Possessions of Her Britannic Majesty in North America to another port or place within the said Possessions: Provided, That a portion of such transportation is made through the territory of the United States by land carriage and in bond, under such rules and regulations as may be agreed upon between the Government of the United States and the Government of Her Britannic Majesty.

“The Government of the United States further engages not to impose any export duties on goods, wares, or merchandise carried under this article through the territory of the United States; and Her Majesty’s Government engages to urge the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada and the Legislatures of the other colonies not to impose any export duties on goods, wares, or merchandise carried under this article; and the Government of the United States may, in case such export duties are imposed by the Dominion of Canada, suspend, during the period that such duties are imposed, the right of carrying granted under this article in favor of the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty.

“The Government of the United States may suspend the right of carrying granted in favor of the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty under this article, in case the Dominion of Canada should at any time deprive the citizens of the United States of the use of the canals in the said Dominion on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the Dominion, as provided in Article XXVII.”

“ARTICLE XXXII.”

“It is further agreed that the provisions and stipulations of Articles XVIII to XXV of this Treaty, inclusive, shall extend to the Colony of Newfoundland, so far as they are applicable. But if the Imperial Parliament, the Legislature of Newfoundland, or the Congress of the United States, shall not embrace the Colony of Newfoundland in their laws enacted for carrying the foregoing articles into effect, then this article shall be of no effect; but the omission to make provision by law to give it effect by either of the legislative bodies aforesaid, shall not in any way impair any other articles of this Treaty.”

And, whereas, pursuant to the provisions of Article XXXIII of said Treaty, due notice has been given to the Government of Her Britannic Majesty of the intention of the Government of the United States of America, to terminate the above recited article of the Treaty in question, on the 1st day of July, 1885;

And, whereas, pursuant to the terms of said Treaty, and of the notice given thereunder by the Government of the United States of America to that of Her Britannic Majesty, the above recited articles of the Treaty of Washington, concluded May 8, 1871, will expire and terminate on the 1st day of July, 1885:

Now, therefore, I Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States of America, do hereby give public notice that Articles XVIII, XIX, XX, XXI, XXII, XXIII, XXIV, XXV, XXX, and XXXII, of the Treaty of Washington, concluded May 8, 1871, will expire and terminate on the 1st day of July, 1885, and all citizens of the United States are hereby warned that none of the privileges secured by the above recited articles of the Treaty in question will exist after the 1st day of July next; all American fishermen should govern themselves accordingly.

Done at the City of Washington, this 31st day of January, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninth.

[SEAL.]

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

Remit $5 90 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 18, 1885.

Remit 5 26 of the fine noted in report for week ended April 18, 1885, it having been shown by late evidence that the deduction of $64.17 should have been $58.27, and that Sanson was supplied once a week from February 5, 1885.

Remit 6 68 of the deduction noted in report for week ended May 2, 1885, it having been shown by the certificates of the postmasters at Carrollton, Dallas, and Villa Rica that the only failure that occurred during the quarter was on January 23 to 24, 1885.

Remit 5 90 of the deduction noted in report for week ended May 2, 1885, it having been shown by the certificate of the postmaster at White Sulphur Springs that there were only three trips lost in February, 1885.

Remit 1 62 of the deduction noted in report for week ended May 2, 1885, it having been shown by the certificate of the postmaster at Ireland Hill that the failures of January 15 and February 12, 1885, extended over a distance of 8 miles both ways.

Remit 1 63 of the deduction noted in report for week ended May 2, 1885, it having been shown by statements of postmasters at Blountsville and Chepultepec that the whole trip was performed January 16, 1885.

Remit 75 of the deduction noted in report for week ended May 2, 1885, it having been shown by a re-examination of the register from Houston for January, 1885, and the affidavit of the subcontractor that half a trip was performed January 17, 1885.

Remit 57 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 25, 1885, it having been shown by certificate of the postmaster at Arbela that on one of the dates when failure was charged a distance of 5 miles and back was actually traveled by the carrier.

Remit 3 69 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 25, 1885, it having been shown by certificate of postmaster at Looking Glass that carrier did not fail to visit Lindsay post-office during March, 1885.

Remit 174 37 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 25, 1885, it having been shown by the statement of J. H. Sands, general superintendent of the Norfolk and Western Railway Company, and copies of the telegrams therewith, that the failures at Lynchburgh, Va., to connect during the quarter were caused by a change of schedule on the Norfolk and Western Railway, of which change of schedule C. W. Vickery, superintendent of Railway Mail Service, was duly advised, and requested to make other arrangements to meet the emergency.

Remit 7 59 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 11, 1885, it having been shown by the affidavits of J. Hill, general superintendent of the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railway Company, that the failure at Indianapolis of train No. 2, February 26, 1885, to connect was not due to misconduct or want of proper skill on the part of the agents and employes of the company.

Remit 11 33 of the deduction noted in report for week ended April 19, 1884, it having been shown by the affidavit of E. W. Winter, assistant president of the railroad company, corroborated by the statement of the postmaster at Sioux City, Iowa, that there was no failure to depart from that place with the mail March 10, 1884, as charged, and that the company is entitled to be credited with the price of a quarter trip ($24.34); and it also appearing that the failure of March 12, 1884, was one way between Le Sueur, Minn., and Sioux City, Iowa, 207.25 miles, and that the company should be charged with the sum of $13.01 additional, being for failure one way over 72.195 miles.
